LIVE TILL YOU WANT TO DIE

Natural Death Should Not Come
Till Man is 150, Says Metschnikoff

Prof. Elie Metschnikoff

SUPPOSE you were able to live as long as you wished, or, in other words, that you would not die until you had naturally developed a desire for death; that you could live to the ripe age of 100, 120 or 150 years—perhaps longer—and retain the vigor and strength of youth!

Imagine a life of healthful activity and pleasure continuing, free of disease, until one had long passed the century mark, and passing away into the eternal slumber like "one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams," without a struggle, without pain.

Many marvels have come with the twentieth century, but nothing, perhaps, more marvelous than the announcement of the possibility of the dream of De Leon. Nothing of more importance to man than a scientific assurance of the possibility of an indefinite prolongation of life.

To live longer—is it not the hope of every one of us? And to live as long as we desire to live—not to die until the desire for death comes as naturally as the desire for sleep—is this not wonderful to contemplate?

Yet such is the latest announcement of science. From no less an authority than Professor Elie Metschnikoff, the successor of the famous Pasteur, and the foremost man of science of the times, comes the word that the only natural death is that accompanied by the desire; that it is possible, barring accident and preventing disease, to prolong life indefinitely and retain one's vigor.

In his latest book, "The Prolongation of Life," the famous biologist continues his warfare on the three enemies of humanity—disease, old age and death. And in a gleeful, optimistic way he brandishes the torch of scientific victory before a startled and eager world.

This is, perhaps, the most important announcement of science for many years.

"Life's pulses now with fresher force awaken
To greet the mild, ethereal twilight o'er me;
This night, thou Earth! hast also stood unshaken,
And now thou breathe'st, now refresh'd before me,
And now beginnest, all thy gladness granting,
A vigorous resolution to restore me.
To seek that higher life for which I'm pining."
—Goethe's "Faust."

IN THE ancient Book of Kings the desire to rejuvenate old age and prolong human life is expressed; hundreds of years before Christ the Chinese gladly hailed the news that there lay in the sea Fortunat Islands, where gods gave their guests to drink of a beverage conferring immortality.

To an eager and credulous world, Cagliostro, the charlatan of the eighteenth century, declared he had discovered an elixir of life by which he had survived through many centuries.

By the use of preventive measures and rational hygiene, Elie Metschnikoff believes that science will eventually banish disease.

With certain hereditary blood diseases and specific poisons developed in the intestines eliminated and certain rules of diet observed, there can be, he says, an indefinite prolongation of life.

Then there remains but one evil, death, which, declares the scientist, is possibly, like sleep, the result of auto-intoxication. Having lived to a vigorous old age, the eminent scientist is of the opinion that man's instinct of life will be replaced by an instinct of death. And his most startling announcement is this:

That man should not die until he develops this natural desire to die!

That his passing away, after completing the perfect cycle of this life, will be one of the most pleasant sensations that can exist.

Banishment of the fear of death. Elimination of the horrible agonies of the last struggle. Dethronement of disease and its frightful, painful ravages. The changing of wretched, ugly, palsied old age to a sweet, healthful, vigorous, active old age. Wonderful assurances!

"In the Melanesian islands," declares Professor Metschnikoff, "old people who have become incapable of doing useful work are buried alive."

"In times of famine the natives of Terra del Fuego kill and eat their old women before they touch their dogs. When they were asked why they did this, they said that dogs could catch seals, whilst old women could not do so.

"Civilized races do not act like the Fuegians or other savages; they neither kill nor eat the aged, but, none the less, old age becomes very sad."

In many European countries murders of old people, declares Metschnikoff, are extremely common, while suicides of old people are startlingly frequent. In 1878, in Prussia, among 100,000 individuals, there were 154 cases of suicide between the ages of 20 and 50, and 295, or twice as many, between the ages of 50 and 80.

Of suicides in Copenhagen, during ten years, from 1885 to 1895, there were 394 between the ages of 50 and 70; and of the entire number of suicides, 36 1/2 per cent. were of people in the prime of life and 63 1/2 per cent. were of the aged.

And why is this? Why the unhappiness of the aged? You know the degeneration of the body, the horrible shrinking, the senile decay of the powers, the debility of the mind, the inept, helpless condition. Surely old age is a tragedy. But is there hope? Metschnikoff declares there is hope.

"Even among the lowest vertebrates there are animals," he writes, "which withstand the ravages of time much better than man." He cites a giant tortoise of an age of 150 years which shows no signs of age, and one aged 83 years which performs all the natural functions.

Infusoria have been propagated by Enriques to the 700th generation without any evidence of debility.

"How far," asks Metschnikoff, "we are from what should be the true condition of the human race?" And he adds, "Facts justify the conclusion that human beings who reach extreme old age may preserve their mental qualities, notwithstanding serious physical decay."

That many men are well preserved, retaining bodily and intellectual vigor up to the age of 70 and 75 years, leads Metschnikoff to conclude, "It is impossible to regard this age as the natural limit of human life."

AGE NO BAR TO GENIUS

He cites a number of men who produced their best work when they had passed what is regarded as the limit of life, among them Goethe, Victor Hugo, Plato, Michael Angelo and Titian. Besides, centenarians are really not rare, and in France each year about 150 persons die who have reached the age of 100 years.

In 1836 there were living in France 140 centenarians, about one to 220,000 inhabitants, while in Greece there is now a centenarian for each set of 25,641 persons, nine times as many as those in France.

To what age can a man live?

While Metschnikoff believes the reputed age of Methuselah, 969 years, to be a mistake of calculation, he cites the instances of Kientigern, the founder of the Cathedral of Glasgow, who died at the age of 155 years in 600 A. D., and of Pierre Zortay, a Hungarian agriculturist, who died in 1724 at the same age.

Women more frequently live to the hundred-mark than men.

Just what enables people to live to an extreme age, the scientist does not say. Undoubtedly, sobriety leads to long life, yet Metschnikoff records cases where extremely old people were addicted to tobacco, alcohol or coffee to excess.

Although it has been asserted that pure, keen air insures longevity, Metschnikoff states that Switzerland, with its mountains and invigorating air, is notable for the rarity of centenarians.

Again, it is interesting to note that most centenarians have been poor people. "There are instances of rich centenarians, such as Sir Moses Montefiore, who died at the age of 101; but such are extremely rare," he declares.

"Poverty generally brings with it sobriety, especially in old age, and it has been often said that most centenarians have lived an extremely sober life. Sobriety is certainly favorable to long life, but it is not necessary, because quite a number of centenarians have drunk freely."

For instance, there was Catherine Raymond, living to be 107, who drank much wine; Politiman, a surgeon, who got drunk every night from his 25th year; and died at the age of 140; Gascogne, a butcher of Trie, who got drunk twice a week, and lived to 120; Elizabeth Duxieux, of Savoy, who lived on coffee, drinking forty cups daily, and lived in health to 114, and Voltaire, who, as he himself said, had been "poisoning" himself with coffee for nearly eighty years.

"It is plain that any factor to which long duration of life has been attributed disappears when many cases are examined," writes the scientist. "Naturally a sound constitution and

How to Tell Your Fortune by Moles on the Face

What Your Mind And Morals Are And the Future

HERE'S just how to tell your own fortune, providing you have a mole on your face. Harry de Windt of London, has rediscovered the old "science" of "moleology." De Windt has written a book on his "moleology," in which he explains that moles come in pairs. If you have a mole on your face you have another on some part of your body.

In women the color of the mole has no significance, but in men this point must be carefully noted. A cherry mole on a man's face may mean something entirely different from a black mole.

To tell your fortune by "moleology," note the location of the mole according to the face chart shown, and then by its number you can see what the significance is.

Busiest Woman Architect In World Tells Of Architectures Growth In America

Thinks Sky-scrappers Show Signs of Mania

That New York will be the most beautiful city of its time in a hundred years is the firm belief of Miss Fay Kellogg, the foremost woman architect of this country. But of course such a busy woman as Miss Kellogg will not stay in her office long enough to be interviewed. In order to get a statement from her it is necessary to catch her "on the fly."

It was while travelling to Bridgeport the other day where this interesting little architect is putting up a waiting room and news-stand for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad that she was induced to speak.

Within the next century our metropolis will have grown to such proportions that it will have absorbed all the surrounding towns, just as London has done. The whole will be connected by such a wonderful system of tunnels that it really seems ridiculous to speak of it at this early date.

Better Buildings
"As we have larger space to grow in, our buildings, both public and private, will be the first to change; and they will not only be larger, but they will have much more of the artistic than the utilitarian character. At present they have heretofore shown a tendency to be erected as to have the greatest amount of floor space, as, for instance, in a building I have under construction. The real estate manager, who has charge of the renting of the building, tried to induce me to reduce the number of lavatories on the floor in order to add a few more feet of rental space.

"We are, of course, a practical nation, but the time has already arrived when we realize that beauty and utility can be combined. This shows the whole tendency is toward development along artistic lines of architecture. There is no nation so keen to see the good in other countries nor so quick to absorb it. This has come about through the great number of students who annually attend the French ateliers in Paris, and who are in offices of men who have been students in Paris themselves. The old Roman absorbed the Greek ideas of architecture, and we all know how they used these ideas in buildings, temples and theaters that are extant today. Americans are today doing the same thing in Europe.

Will Be Beautiful.
"How can New York help but be the most beautiful city in the world one hundred years from now? Our natural advantages—our stage setting, as it were—are already ideal. Over the rivers that run through the city will be many bridges. On the Palisades that line our Hudson will be perched many villas, upon the brink overlooking the river, just as those of Tiberius overlooked the bay of Naples. There is nothing left but ruins to remind us of the wonders of that ancient architecture, but we may have all the pleasure that our imagination can picture us for the future.

Artistically Arranged.
"What a relief it will be to have one's office open on a broad space instead of a little, narrow court, where the sun never shines and where light can only come by prisms or other artificial means.
"Sculpture, wall painting and the decorative arts will have arrived at a degree of perfection such as we do not dream of now, and as our country develops all her untold resources she will demand that her products be used to illustrate her development.
"Skyscrapers? Bless you, no! In capitals, if you please. Skyscrapers, so-called, will be a thing of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Our descendants will look upon us as a species of maniacs for having buildings forty-two stories high. In a hundred years from now, with the greater space, we will not budge in one building. We will want to spread and give our minds and bodies a chance to grow.

Plenty of Time.
"Will a New Yorker be the same hustling, rushing New Yorker of today? No, indeed! That may sound queer, but it is certainly true. He will be so much bigger and broader that business will be conducted on an individual basis, as today, but more in the form of co-operation. That may crush individuality to a degree, but the man or woman who is an individual will have plenty of chance to show it. If it is in a person it is a bound to come out.
"Just imagine having time enough to take life moderately easy. No rushing from one job to another, hurrying from job to train, snatching hastily at a sandwich on the way, sleeping in all sorts of places, cold, wet and tired. Then work will be so divided that each will have his own share done at his appointed time.

To Enjoy Living.
"Think of the possibility of going into the country on a spring day, sitting on the grass and hearing the birds sing and listening to all the murmuring sounds that woods and trees can make. A hustling business man cannot do that today. The only man who sees nature at that time is the Gentleman of Leisure, the Hobo Tramp.
"Our homes will have such conveniences and arrangements for cooking, lighting, heating and bathing as are not even thought of yet, but when they do arrive they will be marvels of ingenuity. To be sure, our homes will probably take on the spaciousness of our public buildings, light, air and sunshine, of course, predominating. But the whole tendency of our life will be rather toward a community than to private houses.

To Spread Out.
"We shall probably always have the poor man, but the conditions of the poor are growing better every day. The thickly populated districts are being weeded out to make way for plazas and approaches to bridges, making it necessary for the people to move into new homes, the majority of which are built on sanitary and model lines.
"New York is healthier than it was ten years ago. One hundred years from now her sanitary conditions will be a marvel. Water over the viaduct will pass into the city from different quarters. The baths of ancient Roman days will return in all the added glory that architectural experience will have taught us.

Improved Theaters.
"Theaters and halls of amusement will abound everywhere. The lighting of our immense city will be a series of electric plants that will make our present lighting system appear like a series of tallow candles set on poles. Wouldn't I like to come back just long enough to take a birdseye view?
"One who has seen and talked with Miss Kellogg can understand her advanced views and her remarkable success in her profession, heretofore followed exclusively by men. She modestly says that she has won out by "sticking to it" and by forgetting she is a woman while at work.

On the Job.
To see Miss Kellogg "on her job" is

Miss Fay Kellogg America's Foremost Woman Architect

a unique experience. For instance, she has done all the architectural work for the American News Company throughout the United States for the last ten years, which means that she has one hundred and fifty buildings under her charge. At present she is renovating six old buildings for this company on Park Place and also erecting a new one. Every morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss Kellogg appears on the scene, she trips lightly up six or seven flights of stairs to superintend her workmen. She runs up and down unfinished stairs, scales ladders to see how new roofs are coming on, paying no attention to the yawning beams that are open to the first floor. A short skirt, stout high boots and well polished shoes are her equipment, and when she is around everything keeps moving.

She Watches Details.
She knows every detail of her profession; construction, the theory and practical knowledge of plumbing, heating, electricity and ventilation. Then, too, she is acquainted with all her contractors, foremen and plumbers, and, as Pete, her superintendent of construction, says, "she isn't afraid of anything." And adds, "she is the most thorough man I ever met in architectural work." But very few people who admire the Hall of Records realize that Miss Kellogg had a hand in making full-sized details, from the base mouldings to the crown of the roof. She also made all the colored sketches for the interior, that the contractors might know exactly what combination of colors she had in mind. Even the floors she worked out in colors, every line showing the construction and foundation of the design, and the kind of marble she wanted.

Her Grand Staircase.
The most important work done on the Hall of Records by Miss Kellogg was the grand staircase. The drawings in which she spent six months alone in this time hundreds of full-sized details, showing every turn and twist that this remarkable staircase makes, as well as all the delicate artistic work on the decorative buds and leaves were made. Miss Kellogg is a Brooklyn girl, and began her architectural studies under a German tutor, who taught her drawing and mathematics. She went to Pratt Institute for a year, and then she en-

Stenographer Finds That IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE INTELLIGENTLY

CHICAGO, March 28.—A young woman of the west side, finding herself out of employment, has discovered that a small advertisement, unique in its wording, was able to go where she could not and that a position will be the result. Her name is Miss Blanche Patterson.

In the "ad," which she wrote without suggestion from any of her friends, Miss Patterson made a confident of her future employer, telling him her age, color of hair, disposition, and other characteristics that an employer needing the services of a stenographer would want to know. Her appeal follows:

SITUATION WANTED.—Stenographer, 23, 5 feet 7 inches, red headed, high tempered, kind hearted, independent, industrious; position of any kind on Oliver m. Former price $10; reduced to $8 up; 3 years' exp.; ref. Address T 368, Tribune.

"I do flatter myself that it was an ingenious way to approach those who may need stenographers," said Miss Patterson last night. "And it has succeeded, in part at least, for I expect to receive a position from one of the places where I made application."

"Ad" Brings Many Replies.
"I have already received more than fifty letters from business men all over the city," she continued. "I answered half a dozen of these in person." In reply to a question asking what had led her to employ this method, Miss Patterson said:

"I wanted to let any prospective employer know before he answered the advertisement just what kind of personality he was corresponding with, so that when I applied they would not be disappointed in me. There was method in my plan if you will consider that it was to my interest to economize in the advertisement. I cannot imagine why any woman should be ashamed to tell. By telling my height I wanted my future employer to know just the size of girl he was getting. You know some men like tall stenographers and others prefer girls of my height, though I consider that is an unimportant feature of the advertisement."

"But did you consider it important that you tell the color of your hair?"
"Yes, just for the same reason that I did that for my height. Many men are partial to red hair while many others abhor it."

Explains "High Tempered."
"By many 'high tempered' may be misinterpreted. It does not mean that I am 'high tempered' in the sense that I am vicious and not to be crossed. I meant by that that I have a mind of my own and if treated half-way fairly I will reciprocate in kind. You know some girls are so 'wily waxy,' 'namby pambies,' that they will submit to most anything from an employer. I will not."

"Kind hearted means that I am willing to go out of my way to favor my employer when he proves to me that he is a humane man, and that I will not grumble when I am asked to work a few minutes overtime."

"Former price $10, reduced to $8 up, is a joke more than anything else. Reading between the lines, any one can see that it does not mean that I will work for $8 for any length of time. The word 'up' will explain that. For the last three years I have not earned less than $10 a week and I don't think I would work for any less now unless I was forced to by starvation."

Just Wanted a "Job."
"As I said in the beginning the whole advertisement was inserted for the purpose of attracting attention to me, and the fact that I was looking for employment. The business man that takes me will have no fault to find with me when he does get me, for if I do say 'I myself I am a first-class stenographer.' Miss Patterson has been in Chicago three years. Her father is dead and her mother is still living at the old home-stand. She has been making her home with friends on the west side ever since she came to the city.

woman and enjoys nothing better than boxing, wrestling or rowing. She is an enthusiastic horsewoman, and at her country place on Long Island she is never happier than when riding horseback across-country with a dozen dogs at her horse's heels. This country place by the way, she bought and remodelled while her father was in Australia last year, and on the eve of his return he was surprised by an invitation to take dinner with her in the country.

Likes the Crowd.
"The exercise that does me most good is bucking up against the crowd coming over the Brooklyn Bridge. I simply love it, and I'd soon lose my health and my nerve if I didn't have this exercise. Oh, New York is a great old place and I'm glad that I'm an optimist."

MISS IDA BROUCHER

BUSHNELL PHOTO.

MRS. HERBERT SANFORD HOWARD

SCHARZ PHOTO.

The week-end was crowded with informal teas, dinners and luncheons, with a few weddings which were marked by the simplicity of the Lenten season. The marriage of Miss Anne Hammond and Henry Ensley took place yesterday at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco with the Rev. John Hammond, father of the bride, officiating. Only a score of relatives and close friends attended the pretty ceremony.

Mrs. Louis MacDermott presided as hostess last evening at an elaborate dinner given at the Claremont Country Club, with the following young people as guests: Miss Katherine Brown, Miss Florence Henshaw, Miss Ruth Houghton, Miss Katherine Kutz, Miss Mollie Mathias, Miss Laura Sanborn, Willard Barton, Fred Samuels, Melvin Jeffries, Lawrence Ertz and E. Ertz.

Mrs. Newell's tea was an event of Friday and among the card clubs which held meetings during the week were the Wheelock Club, the Monday Bridge and a number of the smaller clubs.

AN ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Bernstein announce the engagement of their daughter Leah to Dave Jacobs, a young business man of this city.

Miss Bernstein is a graduate of the Oakland High school, where she was very popular. She is attractive and accomplished, with a host of friends in the bay cities. The family home is in Alameda, and the young bride-elect will be the complimented guest at a series of affairs planned by the members of the younger set in the Episcopal city.

Mr. Jacobs is engaged in business in Oakland, and has a host of friends who are offering him congratulations.

No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

UNIQUE CELEBRATION.

Stephen Crag of this city and Philetus Everts of Berkeley, pioneers who crossed the plains together in an old-time "prairie schooner" from Ohio to California in '54, and have since made a point of yearly celebrating March 17, the eventful date of their starting, with a gathering of the clan at dinner, met this year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everts in Benvenue avenue, Berkeley.

The occasion was a particularly happy one and hearty congratulations were showered upon the two guests of honor. Covers for eleven were laid at a table lavishly appointed and decorated with ingenuity that reflected credit on the cleverness and originality of the hostess. Every possible suggestion recalled the perilous days when fortune-seekers so trustfully put themselves and their futures into the hands of fate, and frequently finding—as in the case of Mr. Everts and Mr. Crag—success the reward of courage.

An old-time prairie schooner, skillfully fashioned by Charles Everts, son of the host, occupied a central position. It was absurdly accurate in every detail and was drawn by four oxen, the yokes and harness precisely correct. Its contents represented to the letter the provisions and property that were actually carried on the memorable trip. True to life, the fluttering canvas of the miniature vehicle bore in rude printing on its opposite sides, "To Pike's Peak or Bust!" and "Off for California!" These inspiring mottoes were on the original wagon and doubtless spurred flagging spirits in many a weary moment.

The place cards, beautiful bits of water-color with cunning toys attached, were also significant in design. At Mr. Everts' seat was a ridiculous tin revolver, labeled, "The pistol that never shot an Indian!" Other cards alluded more closely to the future pursuits of the pioneers. They gold pans brought back the days of old, the days of gold; picks and shovels recalled times that were more strenuous yet less so than the present, and frying pans provided ideal incentive for anecdotes of the famous and astounding "up-chimney" method of producing "flapjacks" in mining history.

Needless to say, the occasion was a merry one. Rivalry in reminiscence furnished ample opportunity for good stories of wholesome memory and to these Mr. Everts and Mr. Crag gave delightful and humorous recital. There were present Mr. and Mrs. Philetus Everts, Stephen Crag, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everts, Mrs. Stevens of Astabula, Ohio, Miss Kenny of Hillsdale, Mich., Dr. and Mrs. J. Lorain Pease, Mr. and Mrs. George Gross.

The ceremony took place with the groom and bride standing beneath a huge bell composed of green leaves, rare exotics and orange blossoms, the whole presenting a scene that will remain in the memory of those who witnessed it.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a band of musicians, who were concealed from the view of the audience, struck up the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and instantly four large folding doors opened wide showing the immense banquet room brilliantly lighted, and where, thirty minutes later, an elaborate banquet was served consisting of courses for more than two hundred guests.

Ludwig Michels was best man, and Miss May Michels was bridesmaid. Little Nina Lederer was ring bearer. ACTRESS, WHO DENIES SHE'S PRETTY, HAS FAD OF COLLECTING RARE OLD CAMEOS

By BETTY MARTIN

"Only one thing! Whatever else you may say, please don't refer to me like the papers have been doing, as a 'society' woman, or as being beautiful!"

Mrs. Grace Travers' voice carried a note of scorn which belied the laughing mouth and eyes. She raised her bare arms in a disdainful gesture, then grabbed me impulsively by the sleeves of my cloak, though I was making no effort to escape from behind the scenes at Idora Park.

"Why not?" came the forced exclamation, since the ancient manner, I was "laid by a glittering eye."

"Why not?" Mrs. Travers looked her amazement at.

"Why not?" repeated she. "Because it's ridiculous. I never was a society woman, and never pretended to be. Everybody knows that."

"How long had you been married, Mrs. Travers before you went on the stage?"

"Five years."

"And had you followed any calling, profession, or fad as a girl, or after your marriage?"

"Denies she is Beauty."

"No!" the reply came good-naturedly. "I just went to school, and then got married. Of course I've friends—loads of them, but oh—here came a vigorous shake of the curly brown head—"you know what I mean by being in 'society'! I never was."

And as for the 'beautiful' part—it makes one ashamed to go down the street after having been referred to as a beauty. Ma beautiful bah!"

Thus did Mrs. Travers, the recently acquired addition to the Idora Park Opera Company, dispose of two sore points.

The society question is one easily disposed of. The singer speaks truly when she said she has "loads" of friends. She has. She numbers them by the score. And they are all of people of good social standing, though not reduced to the straits of New York's four hundred, which has to hire a monkey trickster to while away dull moments. So far as beauty is concerned, no two people on earth ever agreed on this subject. If the Venus de Milo were living and walking about her streets, she would, in all chance be dubbed a big, awkward husky, instead of the perfection of feminine grace and loveliness. Other women would pick flaws in her and women would pronounce her too masculine.

Has Personal Charm.

Beauty is always a challenge. I have never had the pleasure of seeing Mrs. Grace Travers, or, as she is perhaps better known—Mrs. Harry Travers—off the stage, and without make-up. But she looks pretty good to me. She has personal charm, which is a hundred per cent better than mere beauty. She is also generous personified. So, at least, her co-workers in operatic lines tell me.

We were sitting in the soubrette's dressing-room, occupied, jointly during the performance of "Half a King," by Mrs. Travers and Miss Nettie Deglow. From the adjoining room sounded girlish voices, then a whistle, then a knocking sound, accompanied by orchestral strains, at which Mrs. Travers rose took a beautiful diamond ring off her finger, opened her door, and thrust it into the palm of the waiting one, with a "There you are."

Mrs. Travers is Kind.

mured Miss Deglow, stretching her long, satin-clad limbs, 'shed lend anything she has."

"A characteristic of stage people, isn't it?" But Miss Deglow did not reply deterred therefrom by Mrs. Travers' return. She seated herself before the paint-pots with a—'you don't mind if I smudge up, do you?'"

"Not in the least."

"Thank you," Mrs. Travers dipped into a mass of make-up, extracted an ink-like looking pencil and began making sooty marks over the rouge.

"Miss Deglow—a roughish glance was cast in direction of the satin apparelled one—"is more careful of her

—let me see, shall I say 'pulchritude'?"

"Of course." The accused one shot a smiling glance at her room-mate, then at me.

"You said I, was at the San Francisco Tivoli once, weren't you?"

The old Tivoli, yes? There was decided emphasis on the word 'old.' "And I never will forget those dressing rooms."

Too Tired to Eat.

Under the ventilation, weren't they?"

"Yes, under stage and never worked so hard in my life. Think of the tunnel! so low I had to stoop to get in the door. It was in '04 I was there, during a season of grand opera. Such magnificent framing! I never let a learning a new part, in Italian, every week rehearsing in the morning, performances in the evening and singing lessons besides. I lived on raw eggs during that time. Sometimes I was so tired that my mother would make me open my mouth and swallow them against my will. I simply couldn't eat."

Judging from this little episode, Miss Nettie Deglow would be qualified to give pointers to ambitious stage aspirants.

"Whom did you study music with?" The question was put to Mrs. Travers once engaged in toying with the stripes of ragged pink cloth depending from her ragged elbows.

"I never studied singing," came the calm reply.

"What?"

"Never," reiterated she. "And I'm ashamed to confess I don't know one note from another."

"But how do you manage?"

"I have a little friend who runs over the songs with me and I catch them that way."

"How did you happen into the life of work?"

"I suppose," Mrs. Travers spoke slowly, that Mr. Frank Bacon was responsible for it. We've—I did not inquire into the plural number—known Mr. Bacon for years. He seemed to think I'd be able to act. And he was putting that Japanese sketch on the vaudeville circuit. He asked me if I'd take the part. At first I didn't consider the proposition seriously. But when I told my sisters about it 'Why not said they? So I went on. Then afterward Mr. Bishop asked me if I'd like to come here."

"Do you expect to continue on the stage?"

"That depends," came the hesitating reply. "If I make a success, I may."

Of course you meet with all sorts and kinds of experiences?"

Kind of Advice.

"Not at all. Only everybody's been very kind, both here and in vaudeville. It was so funny when I went on at the Bell. Of course they all knew I was a beginner, and they came to me with every kind of advice."

Mrs. Travers laughed.

"Don't you get letters?"

"Not I. Miss Deglow is the one to whom things happen."

"Really?"

Once in a while, came the admission. "Let me show you something."

Suiting word and action, the tall young lady carefully extracted from beneath her billowy white ruff one of the most beautiful rosaries I've ever beheld. A gold cross dependent from golden beads, alternating big and little.

"A gift?" I interrogated.

"It was sent to me during that grand opera season at the Tivoli."

"Anonimously," interposed Mrs. Travers.

"Really?" my eyebrows interrogated.

A soft admission came from the owner as she replaced her treasured belonging to its soft resting-place.

And to think I turned to Mrs. Travers that you've been all of six weeks in that opera—come opera, I mean and haven't had any wonderful experiences. Do you enjoy the life?"

Collects Cameos.

"Very much. And I have a fad if you please. See? This cameo pin which I wear in the first act, is over one hundred and fifty years old. Isn't it a beauty?" She held it out for inspection.

"It is, indeed."

"I have quite a collection of them, unmounted, principally."

"Old ones?"

"Nearly all."

"The art of cameo cutting is nearly lost," remarked I, with knowledge born solely of reading. "Modern cutters cannot compare with the earlier ones."

"I know," Mrs. Travers replaced the brooch in its case. "These bracelets, too—she handed for inspection a pair of heavy gold bands, black enameled, 'are very old, not so old, though, as the pin. And you know, that pair of white stockings I wore in the other play."

"Yes," breathlessly.

Stockings Dated 1830.

"They belonged to a friend of Harry's grandmother named Eliza Babcock. On them in indelible ink is the date '1830. But that is of interest to no one."

"Oh, yes, it is," persisted I, at which Mrs. Travers laughingly reached to an overhead shelf.

"You may say—down came an immense black hat at whose proportions I should hesitate even to hazard a guess—that I carry around a trunk just for my 'Merry Widow' hats."

"Do you wear that? Did you get it in Oakland?"

"Yes, to both questions. And the milliner put a Paris tag inside, too."

The Merry Widow's conception was tenderly replaced and Mrs. Travers from the left hand wing made an effective stage entrance from which she was borne off five minutes later, in the arms of a stalwart brigand with fierce looking, bristling mustaches.

LATEST PARIS STYLES HAVE FRIGID ASPECT,

Chiffon in January, Oo! Shivers! Tulle Illusions, With Few Flakes of Fur.

Is no one else old in Paris? I wonder. As I sit in the Graphic to judge from their models. Messieurs de couriers seem to think we live in a land where it is always summer afternoon. "Society" in tulle illusion, with a few flakes of fur more by way of decoration than of warmth are to be our coverings for the time of east winds and snow. Will no one give us anything warmer than chiffon for January? Must the lines of our adaptation of Greek art be the only consolation in a climate as un-creek as possible?

It is enough to make one wish some worthy Jager might usurp the authority in fashions of the late, Monsieur Paquin. We have borne a great deal of cold in the winter, through an Arctic summer in lawn and lace transparencies and are condemned, it seems to me, to freeze ad infinitum in embroidered and decorated with a mockery of cloth. We have got coats that slope away suddenly over chilly tulle blouses we have furs that are more by chiffon and lace we have everything I seem except perhaps the health to wear such things.

As well! Art is difficult and criticism easy. The mind intent on designing unpunctured fashions cannot be expected to remember that a woman may feel cold in their last indiscretions. They are all very original and very pretty and it is nobody's fault that the weather is always unkind. After all we have had training enough in chills all the length of a miserable summer and there are people who say that nothing is warmer than chiffon and reason about layers of warm air. It may be so but I have seen many people arms in chiffon frocks and heard doctors' opinions that were both to the point and uncompromising. But what is in England? In Paris a doctor as late as made a square of dames who smiles I need be on a wasp waist and our fashions hail from Paris so we turn a deaf ear to the voice that is crying in Harley street.

Napoleon of Fashion

The year has not begun well. Paris has lost a Napoleon of fashion, was a kind of demi-god in Monsieur Paquin. Not that he was so much more clever or artistic than a dozen others only he had some how an authority they lack. To us in London he stood for all that is admirable in Parisian chic and we copied him even more faithfully than they did in Paris. There the great world accepted him with reservations—we made none. People have talked a great deal about his "line," but it was not that which made him famous. It was his astonishing originality. We looked to him to lead us—he always did—and though we protested sooner or later we adopted his ideas, and more often sooner than not. His ideas were not always beautiful nor in good taste, but they caught on because they were his and because nothing succeeds like success. How did Monsieur Paquin persuade us to give up our cherished waists in the autumn of 1905? In those days it was a triumph. We have improved on the First Empire line since then but the glory of the premier pas was his and his alone. All the vagueness and subtlety of present day gowns are the outcome of the evolution of 1905. It is said that Mme. Sans Gene was the source of inspiration. So it is possible that L'Affaire des Poisons may revive the splendors of Louis XV. But our Napoleon of dress-making has gone, and no one but he had the courage to revolutionize the world of dress.

For Tall Women

This is mere conjecture. At present we are classical to the best of our abilities and figures. The newest idea is the penguin, a kind of double-breasted arrangement chiffron enough on a tall woman. Over an extremely clinging undershirt of velvet or cloth one wears an elaborate tunic of silk or crepe de Chine. The fashionable edging is fringe and the sleeves which repeat the material of the skirt are quite Japanese for a wonder but wrinkled and long—so long that they come well over the hand. This means not only farewell to the long glove but to any glove at all. Let no one think, however that it is an economical idea, for the absence of gloves means beautiful rings and certainly a pretty hand, rather a counsel of perfection to some of us. The hand that wields the hockey stick is not usually after a Van Dyck pattern.

I hear but can hardly believe it that no one is wearing stripes at Monte Carlo, but that subdued checks have taken their place, also that all the old colors are masquerading under new names. The Riviera must somehow keep up its reputation for novelty. What was called khaki last season is "hannston" this year and by any other name is easily unbecoming to every type. I have seen only one daughter of the gods—and music halls—who looked well in it and she was so pretty one would have forgiven her most things.

All the basques of coats and trimmings of tunics slope backwards nowadays and this dripping to the back is graceful enough when well done. In Paris they are launching fur neckbands tied with a satin bow at the neck, rather becoming, and very unhealthy but this will not detract from their popularity. I suppose also a new Diabolo muff shared like the immortal spoon. Such novelties however are merely the idle inventions of an empty season.

Green for Men

Where do our neighbors get their information concerning us? I hear from a very good French authority that in London blue green and brown evening dress for men is the order of the day, or rather night. This is what he calls "le denim" and he deems it a mode nouvelle and he warns his latest "sleek" with English words as his raideur britannique is in out. Nor are they any more reliable than his in information. From where, for instance has he taken up such an expression as "stylish" to mention only one of many?

And to think that so many poor, dear men hang on his words for guidance in the thorny path of "Snobisme." It is only eight hours from Paris to London and even Nelson was seasick surely if he had been in Paris he would have been in London. It is worth at least a near inspection and a return ticket.

It will get neither French notions about us are preconceived and nothing will change them. I believe there are to this day some quite enlightened people to whom the name of Englishman calls up a vision in huge checks, a green veil and Dundreary whiskers. Insularity does not confine itself to islands. On the other hand these are the clique of snobs whose British vernacular is more or less correct. The demand for the article has created the supply which supply is duly invented in fertile brains that have never seen even a stone of Ploce dilly, and out of their myths the man in

NEGRO JUBILEE SINGERS WILL GIVE ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE CHURCH

CLARA K. WILLIAMS, CONTRALTO.

HATTIE F. HOBBS, SOPRANO.

VIRGINIA GREENE, PRIMA DONNA.

Famous Williams Troupe of Eight Members Are to Render Southern Melodies at Foresters' Hall

Williams' famous jubilee singers will give a concert at Foresters' hall on Friday evening, April 3, for the benefit of the Fifteenth Street A. M. E. Church.

This company now has eight members and their entertainment consists entirely of singing, the numbers being chiefly negro melodies. Male and female quartets take part in the program.

The members of the troupe are all children of former slaves, are college bred and are generally considered first place among the public companies of the United States. Their singing has been heard at many Chautauquas and in lecture courses throughout the Middle West.

In a large number of towns from the Middle West to the Pacific Coast they have been engaged by the same people each season for the past four seasons one of the best pieces of evidence that they have proved entirely satisfactory.

The two hours entertainment which these singers give has been applauded by prominent men throughout the country, who pronounce them without peers.

mother asks the court to restrain her from appealing on the stage.

Several seasons ago she was unknown. After a long and hard struggle she made a hit on the night "The Orchid" opened at the Herald Square Theatre last spring. A few months prior to the opening while Miss Fulton was dancing in the Millionaire at the New York Theatre Roof she was taken with appendicitis and Dr. C. J. Goeller of No. 421 East One Hundred and Forty-sixth street was called to see her at Bellevue Hospital where she was a patient. Dr. Goeller was a friend of Miss J. W. Brandon, brother of the girl and had been asked to keep an eye on her health. A few weeks ago he performed an operation.

Miss Fulton had not regained her strength before she began rehearsing for "Funabashi" and after that play failed she signed for vaudeville. Her first appearance on the vaudeville stage was made at the Colonial Theatre Monday night.

Dr. Goeller said last night that another year of dancing would cause Miss Fulton's death. Miss Fulton says she intends to go on dancing and doesn't believe the courts can stop her as she is of age.

the street has to construct his ideas on England.

As another help there are place. Raffles in la franchise drew all Paris to the Hotel Rejane and now Sherick Holmes has had an enthusiastic reception. All this appreciation however is not without reason. Sherlock Holmes, says a Paris critic is quite the best thing we have got out of the entente cordiale but it is only fair to remember that Sir Conan Doyle's hero is of American origin and really owes his existence to Edgar Allan Poe. What an Anglophobe and as to his idea of fairness it is hardly the rendering unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.

Women Fail as Divers in European Cities

In both Paris and Berlin women have been tried and found wanting as divers. In the former city the first-mentioned city the feminine body could not make a go of it and in the German capital the woman (teach) divers were found unequal to the task. The long hours exposure and the nerve racking tangles of thick tangle made too much. It is well the trial was made. The very best way to settle the matter once and for all is to give women a chance of showing what they can do in every field of labor into which they clamor to be admitted. So long as they are foretold kept out they will be persuaded that they are as well suited to every kind of work as men but let them be put to a practical test and then if they fail let them graciously admit their incapacity or unsuitability for that particular calling. Many occupations which women are now following with conspicuous success were at first held to be wholly outside their range but being tried in them women proved themselves capable. So far so good. But there are also many others for which they imagine themselves suitable in which it is tolerably certain they would fail. The only way to convince them however is to let them try. It is the fairest course and when once women do recognize their limitations it is much more likely that the two sexes will not war so much with each other.

Actress Buys Palace

Meltonia Duse the Italian actress, has just bought Tappan palace, in Florence and she is to make her headquarters there in the future. She was already the owner of a palace on the Grand Canal in Venice but the damp climate of Venice is unsuited to her. For a long time she has written her favorite residence in Italy was her villa at Settignano near Florence and she was deeply attached to it. But it is the villa of Gabriele d'Annunzio and since the rupture of her friendship with the poet the place has become untenable to her. Of late she has stopped a good deal at the Grand Hotel Florence but the courtesy of tourists has made this more or less disagreeable so she has at last bought a home of her own. The Palazzo Tappan was built in 1520. It is a beautiful building only in need of furnishing and upkeep to make it a princely residence. It is said that she has paid about $120,000 for it.

Day of Self-Made Man Past, Says College President

BERKELEY March 28.—President W. H. P. Fane of Brown University who spoke before the members of the First Congregational Church on "The Contribution of the School to State and Church" said in part:

The value of college training is now universally recognized, it has become a common practice for large commercial firms to write to the presidents of colleges inquiring as to the number and capacity of the graduating class. The day of the self-made man is almost past the day of the trained man is here. With changed conditions change must be made in the instruments used. The farmer with a flint-lock in the days of the Revolutionary war possessed courage and achieved much but when the great fleet steamed into San Francisco bay six weeks from now, there will be with it men of courage and also of training—both now necessary.

MAE KHANE WITH "BROWNS IN TOWN"

DUNEDIN TROUPE, WORLD-FAMED CYCLISTS AT OAKLAND ORPHEUM

NETTIE BLACK IN BREWSTER'S MILLIONS

HAROLD BAUER

Macdonough

"Browns in Town." The above roaring farce comedy will be the offering at the Macdonough Theater this afternoon and tonight. The play treats with the adventures of a young college boy who marries in secret, knowing of his father's antipathy to the feminine sex and his threats of disinheritance in case of his son's marriage. Of the unexpected arrival at the cottage where the young man is living of the father and a number of mutual friends, among whom is a former sweetheart of the young man. The knowledge of the boy's marriage would ruin all, so a fictitious engagement is suggested and during the action of the play many complications and funny situations ensue, which keep the audience in screams of laughter throughout.

In fact, the play is absolutely indefinable except as one of the rarest of comedies ever seen, and this competent company does full justice to the amusing scenes and situations with which this bill abounds.

Mrs. Campbell

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who appears at the Macdonough Theater for a four nights' engagement, includes the Wednesday matinee is undoubtedly one of the most striking personalities that has ever appeared on the English speaking stage. Her intellectual force, dominating individuality, irresistible magnetism, magnificent presence, marvelous charm of voice and grace of manner, manifest themselves at once, regardless of the quality of the play or the attributes of the character she presents. Thoroughly original in her methods, but showing always the finest appreciation of the highest standards of dramatic art, she has carved out for herself a niche in the history of modern drama scarcely equaled by any player of our time. The present age owes her much in presenting the finest types of the modern drama and the best works of the greatest dramatic intellects of our day in a manner that has won for them a popular recognition which they otherwise would probably not have had in our time. In style, force and originality, she stands alone in a field of dramatic art which has won the highest praise from the highest pens in this country and Europe. The engagement at the Macdonough Theater, promises to be the social and dramatic event of the season. Society will turn out in full force to do honor to a woman, who not only is one of the greatest actresses of the English speaking stage, but is at the same time a power in the exclusive social set in London also.

For her Oakland engagement, she will appear in six different plays, namely: "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" on Monday night; "The Notorious Mrs. Eubank" on Tuesday night; "Hedda Gabler" on Wednesday night; "Magda" on Thursday night and "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" at the special Wednesday matinee.

"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS," a dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's unique story of the same name, by Winchell Smith and Byron Osgley, will be seen here for the first time at the Macdonough next Friday, Saturday and Sunday. It comes under the direction of Cohen & Harris, is a thoroughly delightful play, and ranks with the greatest successes of the past ten years.

Cohen & Harris, under whose direction the production is made, promise "Brewster's Millions" one of the most lavish stage settings ever seen in this city. The first act is superb in its richness, showing the interior of Brewster's home immediately after he received the million from his grandfather. The second act is a richly appointed office in which Brewster works night and day to spend his money.

The third act is the real scenic hit of the play. It shows a yacht in a terrific storm off the coast of Italy. The effects in this act are so true as to be wonderful and the deck scene of the yacht is the best far ever put on any stage. The mechanism for this scene alone requires an entire car for its transportation.

The Orpheum

The "aristocrats" of vaudeville—it sounds good, and apparently is pretty close to being the exact truth in the matter of giving a description of the new vaudeville folks who come to the Oakland Orpheum this afternoon. The new show which goes on at the matinee today is expected to be one of the smartest of the season, a splendid program, even better than that which the Orpheum company ordinarily is able to bring to its Pacific Coast theaters.

The show this afternoon will be particularly new throughout. Clayton White and Miss Stuart will be chief of the new stars and their contribution in the way of a classy playlet called "Cherie" will be what the sporting writers call the "star special" of the day. Although not known in Oakland they have an enviable rating in New York City. There is plenty of fun and some rare sport involved in their act, their performance being the combination of dramatic stuff and the brightest of farcial humor.

Marie Stuart is a beautiful woman, a wonderfully clever impersonator, accomplished in all the arts of the stage. Clayton White is a finished performer; together they have evolved a delightful one-act play called "Cherie." Their play abounds in fun-provoking stunts, witty lines and other bits of delicate stage stuff, all utilized by White and Stuart in a way that will make an ordinary vaudeville audience call insistently for more of the same. Their engagement in Oakland will be one of the real big events of the season.

The Dunedin Troupe of cyclists and acrobats will be a big feature next Sunday afternoon. The Dunedin Troupe is made up of four daring acrobats and two girls and two men, all members of one family. The young women are riders, dancers, singers, and both are excellent acrobats as well. Besides their sensational bicycle riding there is some wonderful balancing on the tight and slack wire by Jim and Maude Dunedin, both being seated on bicycles riding backward and forward as they work on the wire. Picturesque costumes and a general air of smartness in every part of their performance have helped to make the act of the Dunedin Troupe one of the big novelties of Europe and America.

Ida O'Day, the dainty musical maid, is expected to charm all of the Orpheum patrons who take pleasure in sweet music rendered by a pretty maiden, whose art is equal to her charm of manner and voice. With her banjo playing and other musical stunts a bit of choice humor is thrown in the songs she renders and the jests she intersperses with her selections.

Music and fun will be found mingled in proper proportions in the monologue of James F. Macdonald, one of the smartest monologue artists on the stage. Although he comes as a stranger to Oakland it is quite likely that he will be one of the reigning favorites on the bill before many performances have been given.

Edwin Stevens, whose triumphs in "Cousin Kitty" during the current week are the talk of the town, will give an entirely new performance next week. He is to appear with Miss Fine Marshall in his delightful sketch called "An Evening with Dickens." Stevens is a character actor of great power and ability. He will body forth some of Dickens' most famous characters, and Orpheum audiences there will see before their very eyes those men and women from Dickens' pages whose names for many years have been household words.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL

Additional interest will be lent to this production of "Thelma" by the fact that in it Miss Marion Barney, who has become a big favorite with local play-goers, will close her engagement here. She has been offered a most tempting engagement by Joseph M. Brooks, the general manager of Klaw & Erlanger, and as it is an opportunity that is not often given an actress, Manager Elshoff has consented to release her from her contract with him. Miss Barney is obliged to be in New York City by the middle of April, and for this reason next week will be her last in the city.

The role of Thelma is one for which Miss Barney is exceptionally well suited, both in the matter of appearance and acting ability, and she will unquestionably score an individual hit with her last performance here. She will be seen as the lover, Sir Phillip Errington, and E. L. Bennison as Olaf Guldmar, Thelma's father. George Webster as Pierre Duprez, Henry C. Fortimer as Sir Francis Lennox, Henry Shumer as the Reverend Mr. Dycworth, Jack Sheehan as Sigurd, George Cooper as Britta, Blanche Douglas as Lady Clara Winsleigh, George Knowlton as Leda, Edna and Lillian Elliott as Ulicia Jansen and all happily cast and should interpret these characters that played so important a part in Thelma's life drama to the entire satisfaction of those who have thus far made their acquaintance through the novel.

"Thelma" also has great claims as a scenic drama, and the Liberty management is sure to get all that is possible out of the play in this direction. The locale is largely in Norway, which affords opportunity for the display of some unusual stage settings. This is particularly true of the great third act, showing the fall of the Niedegor, near Baskop, which promises to be as realistic as any scene ever shown on this stage. Real water, and real trees will be used in the representation of the waterfall, and this feature alone will well repay one for a visit to "Thelma." It is to be given for one week only, with the regular Saturday and Sunday matinees.

"THE HEIR TO THE MOORAH." Manager Elshoff announces that he has secured for production at the Liberty, Paul Armstrong's wonderfully successful western play "The Heir to the Moorah," which will be produced at the conclusion of the run of "Thelma." The Liberty's production of this great play by the author of "Salomy Jane," will mark its first production in the West. It is a story of a man who is considered by theatrical people quite an achievement to have secured it so soon after its original successes.

Music-lovers of this vicinity are awaiting with eager interest the concert to be given at Ye Liberty Playhouse next Friday afternoon, April 3, by Harold Bauer, the great pianist and musician. This artist is one of the most important that Managers Elshoff and Greenbaum have yet brought up and they have certainly kept their promise to bring to Oakland the very greatest the world knows. Just think!

His program includes masterpieces of Chopin, Brahms, Rubinstein, Liszt, Weber and Saint-Saens.

There is no more important pianist living than this one and undoubtedly all matinee records for concerts in Oakland will be broken on this occasion.

MISS TILDA RETALI.

Eight acts of varied vaudeville are included in the program at the Bell Theater this week. scenes will be beautiful. They will be worked out in great detail and the costumes will be made to conform to them in artistic effect.

"The Wizard of the Nile" has been at Idora Park before. This production is in the nature of a revival for many requests have been received that it be presented again at the first opportunity. The fine harmonies and melodies of the score will be welcomed by those who have heard them and will appeal to those who have never enjoyed them.

The personnel of the cast is of interest to the public at this time for several reasons. It will include Miss Sybil Page, Miss Bernice Holmes, Thomas Perse, Farris Hartman, Miss Ann Tasker, Walter De Leon, Joseph Fogarty, Miss Edna Robinson and Miss Muggins Davies. Miss Page has sufficiently recovered from her broken ankle to sing with the company again. Her friends will undoubtedly give her a rousing reception when she steps before the footlights tomorrow evening. Miss Holmes will also be tendered a manifestation of pleasure over her return to the stage after an absence of several months. Miss Tasker will have the leading soprano role, a part that will test her versatility after she has been singing prima donna roles. Farris Hartman will have one of the most ludicrous parts imaginable. He has been seen by many in the role, that of the wandering magician who gets himself into all sorts of trouble through his love for Cleopatra, Princess Egypt.

Miss Page will be Cleopatra. Miss Holmes the queen, Joseph Fogarty, King Polemy, and Walter De Leon the deposed weather prophet who conspires for the Persian's downfall. The splendid singing solo of Farris will be taken by Thomas Perse. The chorus has been enlarged and will be handsomely costumed. There will be a very effective Amazon march led by Miss Robinson as captain of the guards. Indeed, there are few comic operas that have prettier chorus effects than those of "The Wizard of the Nile."

The last performance of "Half a King" will be given this evening. The opera has proved an attractive offering. It goes with a fine and refreshing snap and spirit with both principals and chorus at their best. The regular matinee will be given this afternoon and the last opportunity to enjoy the opera will come this evening.

Devotees of roller skating are impatiently awaiting the big masquerade carnival to be held in the Idora Park rink on next Friday evening, April 3d. The rink will be magnificently decorated and a number of valuable prizes will be awarded for costumes. All the skaters will be in fancy dress. It is expected that over 2,000 of these will be on the floor. Music will be furnished by a band of twenty pieces. There was a crowd of over 5,000 people in Idora Park last Sunday and the crowd today will, in all likelihood, be as large. There will be the usual balloon ascension and open-air concerts. All the concessions will be open to help entertain the thousands of visitors.

The four Brown brothers and Doc Kealey, with one of the best musical acts ever presented on a vaudeville stage, are to furnish the feature act at the Bell Theater the coming week. The Brown brothers are musicians, first, last and all the time, but Doc Kealey has the added advantage of being a comedian, and between the two the audience will be amused with laugh-provoking antics. As a result there is entertainment every second.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mann are to present a clever sketch entitled, "Mandy Hawkins." It is a creation of the Topsy type and is recommended as unusually bright.

Edward B. White and Miss Rola White are to present a comedy boxing act. Knock-about feature that will create many a laugh. Fun will be the key note of this feature and it promises to make a distinct hit.

DeWitt Young, the college boy juggler, will supply a unique and original act. His work is said to be remarkable.

IRVIN BLUNKALL AT COLUMBIA

Haydon and Davis are to present a bright and catchy sketch, "One Good Turn Deserves Another." It is a playlet that carries a decidedly interesting plot and is replete with humorous situations and catchy lines.

Two reels of European motion pictures, such as have recently been scoring a great hit at the Bell, will be shown. The pictures will be of new and original subjects.

Columbia

Never before has a prettier or more creditable production of "Hazel Kirke" been given in Oakland than is the one being played this week at the Columbia Theater. However, the management of this popular playhouse believes in being up to date or nothing at all, and their aim is to give the patron the very best they can. Next week they have another surprise in store. It is a special engagement of Irvin Blunkall, one of Oakland's best known and most popular leading men. Mr. Blunkall will make his appearance at the Columbia next week in conjunction with Max Steine and the Columbia company in a splendid production of "Bush Ranger," a thrilling and romantic drama, in which Mr. Blunkall will have an excellent opportunity for the display of his sterling ability as an actor in this special character. Mr. Blunkall has not been seen in Oakland for five years and will no doubt receive a hearty welcome next Monday night. Some years ago both Mr. Blunkall and Mr. Steine played together in Oakland at the old Dewey Theater, where they were great favorites, and it will seem like old times to see them together again. J. F. McDonald, also well known from the Dewey days, has been added to the Columbia forces, and will be seen to good advantage in his particular line of work.

American Theater

Joe Weber's beautiful musical comedy, "Dream City," in which the popular favorites, Little Chip and Mary Marble, are being starred this season, will be at the American Theater, San Francisco, for one week, beginning with the matinee performance today. The production will be given in its entirety just as at Weber's New York playhouse, where it enjoyed a prosperous run of six months.

"Dream City" has a story which, while not altogether logical, is at least comprehensive. According to the critics, both Edgar Smith and Victor Herbert have excelled upon all previous efforts in the matter of a witty book and lyrics and tuneful music of this catchy variety.

Little Chip portrays the role of the German farmer who has the imaginary riches in laughable style and as he is a clever dancer, as well as a good singer and comedian, a pretty time is assured when the German dialectician gets busy. Mary Marble is an old San Francisco favorite as she played a long engagement with the famous Matthews and Bulger company at the old California Theater when the Hoyt comedies were all the rage. Miss Marble was a dainty little sourette then, but is now a Broadway favorite, having won her spurs by conscientious work and is considered to be one of the best comedienne in light opera.

The much discussed Weber beauty chorus of young and graceful girls accompanies the organization. "Dream City" comes highly recommended and is said to be brimful of up-to-date specialties, high-class comedy and wholesale tunes.

1. "The candy will be finished soon,"
Says John, and tests it with a spoon.
Each hungry Teddy licks his lips.
Glad with anticipatory sips.

2. They hate to wait, as they were told,
Until the candy's hard and cold,
But slyly dinger round until
John's gone and left it on the sill.

3. They'd almost reached the sweets on high
When Johnny's father happened by.
He saw that they were bent on theft,
And rushed to rescue what was left.

4. John hears the noise, and quick declares
He'll punish all those Teddy Bears,
"I think they must be just below.
I'll scouse them well before they go."

5. Alas for Johnny's just desire,
His dad receives the deluge dire!
The Teds around the corner peer
And gayly shout, "Oh, look who's here!"

6. Poor John too late the truth perceives—
He's punished father, not the thieves.
For once the Teddy Bears escape
And leave their playmate in his scrape.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-BRED FOLK.

NEW TEA GOWNS

MY DEAREST ELEANOR:

This afternoon I ran over to see Kitty Logan; and there I found that charming Miss Page, of your city, and after we had sat and chatted a while about things seen, heard and done, the postman brought Kitty the invitation to your house party, and a more delighted girl you never saw. Miss Page then said that she hoped to go, too, and had received her invitation that morning; but, fearing that Kitty was not going to be invited, she had not mentioned it. Now that is really well-bred, really the wonderful innate courtesy with which some, but very few, people are blessed.

They sent for me to come up to Kitty's room, where the two girls were sitting in the most adorable negligee. I admit that I do not like such things as a rule. I hold that whether a woman is at home or abroad she may still be arrayed in either a suit or house dress; but the tea gowns those girls had on today almost convinced me, and I felt almost shabby, although I wore my new brown combination voile jumper dress and cheviot coat with revers and cuffs of black moire; and my new hat of black chip with the big straw pompon. These adorable creations had every line of grace and beauty possible to achieve through the medium of chiffon, ribbons and lace.

Miss Page wore a gown of palest violet crepe de chine, loose and flowing, showing a waterfall of lace frills down the front. Around the collar and through the sleeves were run violet ribbons which fell the full length of the gown. It was not negligee; it was the height of dressmaking, for even in her hair she wore entwined some ribbon, though no other adornment was in evidence.

Kitty, in a gown of yellow chiffon cloth, was ever so charming. Long lines of embroidered filet net ran from neck to hem of the costume, while little ruffles of lace were inserted in V shapes at the foot. The sleeves were of that tucked surplice style over billowy ruffles of lace that just showed at the elbow. The color of the two gowns toned admirably, and a prettier picture than they made could hardly be imagined.

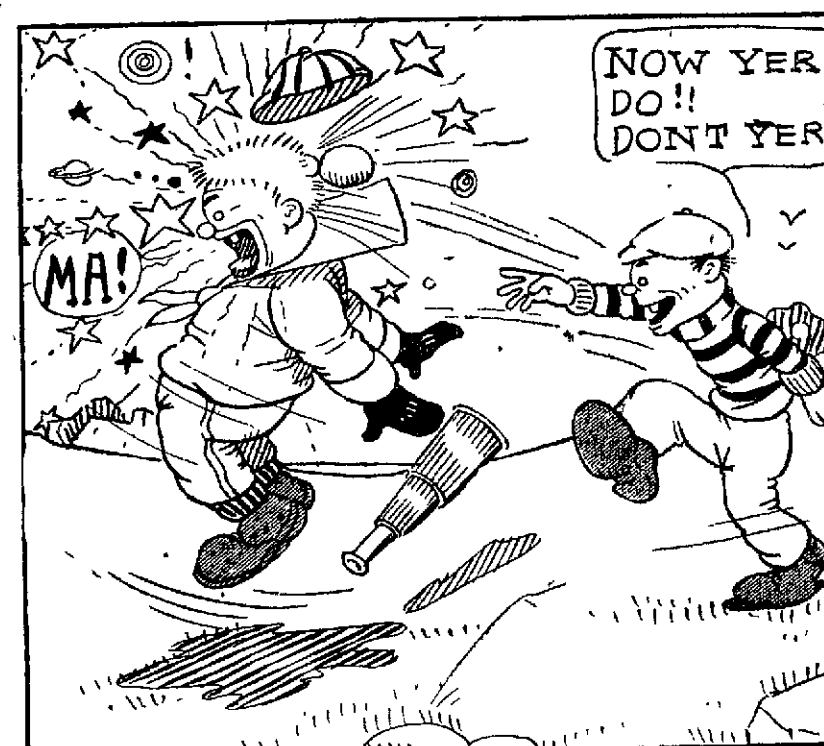

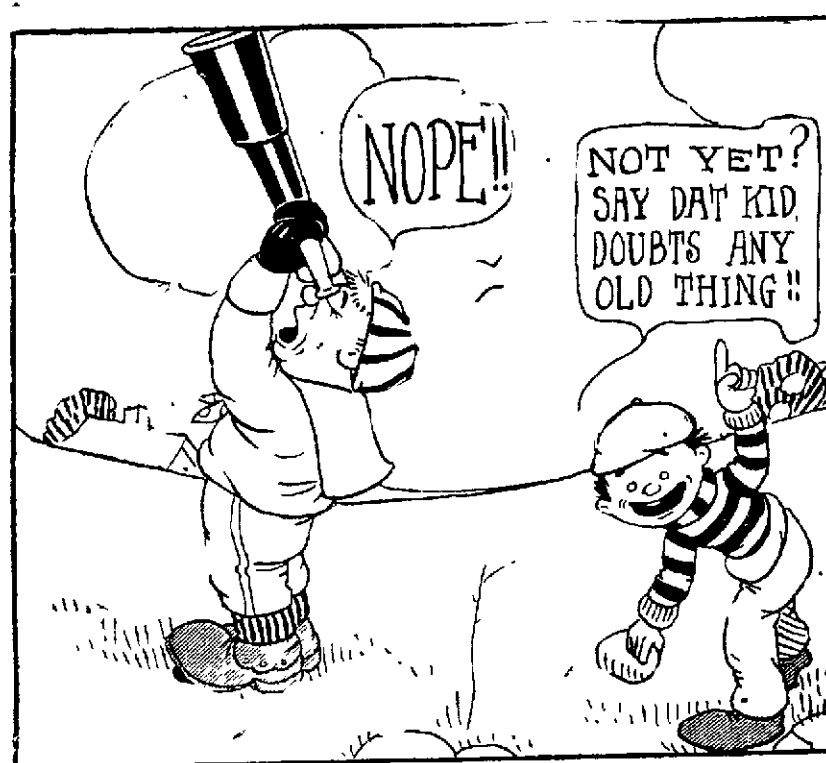

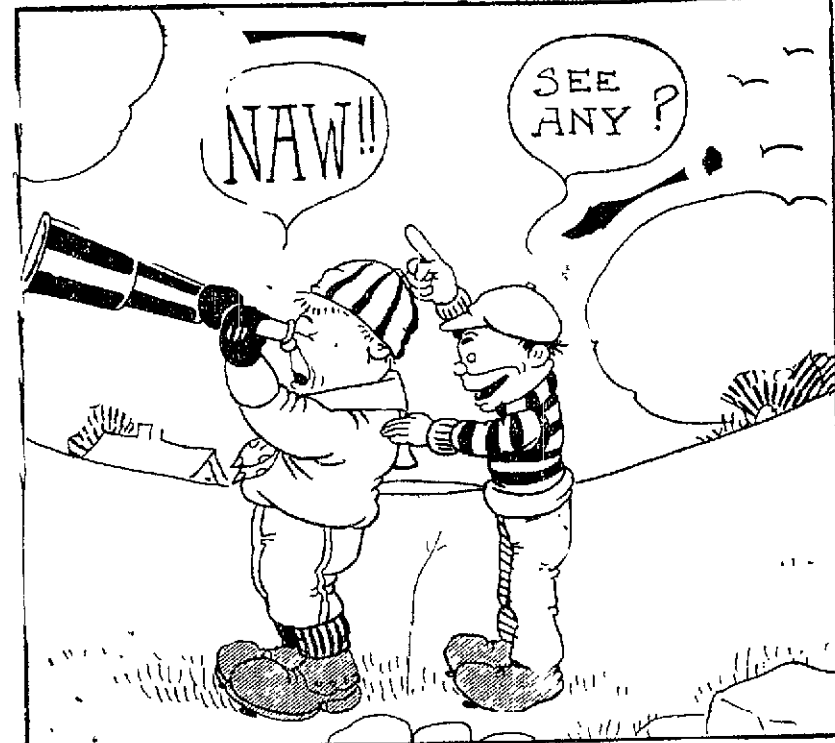

We discussed with great interest the prospect of your house party and what amusements were likely to be provided for us. Kitty and I said we were afraid that your idea of pleasure might be shown by your offering to let us play with the children, but Miss Page, a champion of yours, insisted that while you would be quite willing to allow us to see as much of the youngsters as we liked, you would be sure to provide some other form of entertainment. She also mentioned that you usually invited the most charming men to your parties. She also said many other nice things about you which I would rather tell you than write in black and white, so I will wait till I see you. Till then,

Your anticipating sister,
MADGE.

WEALTHY AMERICAN WOMEN CAUSE PRICES TO SOAR IN PARIS

LONDON, March 28.—Copy book philosophy is more often true than not. There is no doubt that the reason for the high prices of the goods of the world is the fact that the wealthy Americans are the cause of the high prices. The wealthy Americans are the cause of the high prices of the goods of the world. The wealthy Americans are the cause of the high prices of the goods of the world.

I had hoped for an improvement of the kind that has happened. The women of the long purse strings show their elegant shoulders over their frills and the fact that they would reform the world are unconsciously shown. What we need is a figure we might then be led to see what respectable mountaineers or molehills of extravagance have grown.

But no she must be ever revolting in the bright light of the world's stage. Not content till she has been seen in the Parisian themselves, she is later with twice her charm and ten times her elegance have taken to copying her extravagances. And we depend on Paris for ours so right down to that region where things are marked at something and three farthings. Some of these extra farthings must go down to America's account. Dress is really growing alarmingly expensive and for no apparent reason. Yesterday the great houses elaborated on the latest theme and one paid because it was all so intricate. Today there is a reaction in favor of simplicity and one pays more because, as everyone knows, nothing is so expensive as simplicity. Tomorrow there will be complicated editions on the same lines and one will pay most of all because of course such details must be copied and so on ad infinitum. And what is there to show for all these guineas? The latest evening frock gives one an impression of soft stuff wound round the figure and pinned here and there into delicately carved folds. Beneath the generous décolletage the scintillating trapezoid is held together by a huge barbaric brooch and one hopes that at least the pin of it is infallible. Round the hips is the inevitable Sidonie sash, and the whole idea is to make it perfect in lines only the setting of a soft Eastern night and the bearing of the tomy tomy but hark! the harsh electric light of a Paris salon.

Wonderful Bodices
In London we have not yet arrived at all that, but we shall come to it no doubt. Meanwhile we wear tight bodices of la Princesse and marvellous bodices of embroidered satin. On the one hand there is a handkerchief often tucked and always embroidered. Gold is covered with a design in gold braid has a certain degree and looks magnificent on a Cleopatra. A person who should be left alone by the mere beauty of the evening frock of our illustration is a good example of the demure Princess, with all its glitter on the top. In gray satin it has a hem of tulle with a delicate sign of lovers knots the bodice and sleeves are a mass of sparkling crystal and pearls and the long strings of pearls give the look of originality without which there is no existing nowadays. For the many who are too thin or too small for a Princess frock there is always the charming colour. It is mostly short waisted and has a soft satin foundation beneath its transparency. As for the sleeves—those treacherous sleeves which however late we may be always threaten us with a late edition—sleeves for once are kind and varied almost to a fault. Dainty thing imaginable is worn. The kimono still has its admirers. Then there is the small tulle puff of no pretensions next, the artistically negligent drape which is mostly no sleeve at all and last of all the tight wrinkled arrangement that comes over the hand. The latter however is rarely seen at night but grows daily more popular for afternoon frocks. After all the elbow sleeves for all occasions had lived long enough.

PARIS EVENING PRINCESS GOWN. AN EVENING WRAP.

A severe robe d'intérieur is more chic nowadays than the fluff of yesterday. Our illustration is a Princess in black cloth with the long sleeves, aforesaid and nothing in the way of frivolity except a band of embroidery round the neck and at the cuffs. On perfect cut for its success. Given that nothing could be more delicate and more grandiose. The small coat of the hour bears no relation whatever to its skirt. With long white cloth skirt for instance one can move on his coat. This kind of thing is at present trailing out its hour at Monte Carlo. When we take to it I hope it will be in a less violent contest of coloring. The accessories that go with a dress are the most difficult of all. In the case of the South are much less charming in the case of London. As to wraps have a way of looking dry and a little meaningless when brought out again in the season. They however could not be said of the one in our illustration which in flowered damask with a collar of white velvet and a boote of embroidered tulle would look well at all times.

The latest thing in furs is the plaid stole and muff. So far this has only been done in ermine but it will surely not end there sooner or later we shall have twisted sable. The idea is uncomfortably bizarre one of those ugly originalities that cost so much money and in all fairness to our country sense be it said are here today and gone tomorrow.

The question of hairdressing is causing much agitation in Paris just now. It has become impossible to keep faithful to the monumental pile when wear one of those more nothings of chic simplicity. How reconcile Greek art or what poses as such with a head adorned with numberless curls tied with ribbon ornamented with a rose of two and surmounted by a colossal aigrette? It could not be done and the appearance of a few heads whose hair was not waved to distraction nor tortured into impossible coils, has been the despair of the coiffeurs who foresee an end to the glory of their dais. Meanwhile they are trusting to advertisement. One may see at night in the gigantic letters of fire on a roof in the Avenue de l'Opera that all Parisiennes wear the transformations of Monsieur X. This is neither decorative nor discreet. I am thankful we ornament our skies at night with nothing worse than Bovril or Oxo.

WHOLE FAMILY IS AT OUTS

Husband and Wife Not on Speaking Terms and Children Take Sides.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Truly the Schultzes' establishment in Jamaica avenue, Richmond Hill, Queens, is a house divided against itself. Although they dwell on the same floor Edward Schultze and his wife Sophie have not spoken to each other since August 15 last. In the same walls they are as far apart as the poles.

Schultze, 37 years old, is a prosperous business man who owns the House of David where he and his wife live apart and silent. Of their five children, Edward, 22, sided with his father in the family quarrel. Edward, 15, 5 years Miss Pauline who will marry soon and the youngest Schultzes sympathize with their mother. Such bitter partisans are the children that none of the four speaks to Frederick nor he to them. An older Schultze and Frederick, keep house in the front room of the floor which is over the business shop. There they cook their meals when need be on a gas stove they do their own house work there the father has occupied a little room at night.

and Pauline go out to work every day. Mrs. Schultze, who has summoned her husband to court several times has alleged that he treats her and does not support her. She declares further that her son Frederick has beaten her and threatened her life.

Her husband denies the allegations and states his belief that his wife is jealous.

JANE ADDAMS SAYS WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE MEANS REFORM

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—"It is time for women to stand up as citizens and obtain reform by means of the ballot because reform is needed. Our present methods of doing civic and industrial good are too indirect. We have argued persuaded, promised, convinced and lobbied so much and so incessantly for the things needed, not for ourselves but for humanity, that the roundabout method is reacting on the feminine character. Advocating equal suffrage as a cure for industrial and civic evils, Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, addressed the equal suffrage league at the New Century Club.

Live Till You Want To Die

a simple and sober life are favorable to longevity but apart from these there is something inhuman which tends to long life.

The work of science now is to find the secret of long life. And Metchnikoff is convinced it will be found. In the mean time he has made many important discoveries and has evolved theories which to a great extent explain the possible cause of death and the means of attaining a long life.

Supposing you were told that one of the largest organs in your body is the cause of early death. Would you have it removed?

Metchnikoff lays his finger on one of man's organic enemies—the large intestine. While he does not advocate the elimination of this organ, he points out that it is harmful. The breeding place of the microbes which cause putrefaction which results in auto-intoxication and death.

Years ago the scientist told the world of the existence in the human body of the known as phagocytes whose chief function is to guard the body and devour invading germs. But these friends of man often become his enemies and turn on the cells and higher tissues and destroy them. They are stimulated to this activity by the products of putrefaction in the intestines. Now what is the remedy?

In brief the scientist believes that the avoidance of alcohol and the foods which conduce to intestinal putrefaction and the liberal use of lactic acid—in the form of curdled milk—will check counteraction and prevent putrefaction will tend to prolongation of life.

This phrase "a cure" declares emphatically. They fall a prey to disease or die as the result of accidents. By taking precautions one can overcome disease and a life of hygiene measures prolongs life on the verge of collapse it will be natural for the human being to develop a desire for death as naturally as children develop the instinct of sleep. Death then the belief will be one of the pleasantest of human experiences.

Declaring that true natural death must be the rule in the human race the scientist quotes Democritus a description of the natural passing away.

Arrived at extreme old age and still preserving the last flickers of an expiring intelligence, it is old man feels weakness, gain on him from day to day. His limbs refuse to obey his will, the skin becomes insensitive dry and cold, the extremities lose their warmth, the face is thin, the eyes hollow and the slight weak speed dies out on his lips which remain open. He quits the old man from the circumference toward the center breathing gas he labored and at last the heart stops beating. The old man passes away quietly seeming to fall asleep for the last time.

Death and sleep asserts Metchnikoff are analogous. Both are probably, due to auto-intoxication of the organism. Do you know why you sleep? What causes sleep?

During the working hours according to Obersteiner and Bantz products of exhaustion gather in the brain and are carried away during repose. An acid produced during the activity of the organism, the nerve centers and results in fatigue according to Preyer and Erben, these acids that may be oxidized during sleep.

Natural death may then be due to an intoxication much more profound and death may be averted for many years by a destruction by the use of lactic acid or the germs which produce the intoxication.

One of the most striking causes of a person exhibiting the instinct for death, Metchnikoff quotes from Briliat-Savarin's Physiology of Taste.

"A great aged man died at the age of 92. Although he had been confined to bed for some time, his faculties were still well preserved and the only evidence of his condition was the decrease in appetite."

"She had always been very friendly to me and once when I was at her bedside ready to tend her affectionately although that did not hinder me from seeing her with the philosophical eye that I always turned on everything about me. Is it you my nephew?" she said in her feeble voice. "Yes, aunt I am here at your service and I think you will do very well to take a drop of this good wine. Give it to me my dear I can always take a little wine."

"I made ready at once and gently supporting her gave her half a glass of my best wine. She brightened up at once and turning to me her eyes which used to be so beautiful said: Thank you very much for this last kindness. If you ever reach my age you will find that one wants to die just as one wants to sleep. These were her last words and in half an hour she fell into her last sleep."

Instead of "the instinct of death" being harmful as some of Metchnikoff's critics have averred he says it would have advantages. If men were convinced that the end of life were natural death accompanied by a special instinct like that of the need for sleep one of the greatest sources of pessimism would disappear, he says. Now pessimism is the cause of the voluntary deaths of a certain number of people and of many others refraining from reproduction. The instinct of natural death would contribute to the maintenance of the life of the individual and of the species.

Man is the only animal with a definite notion of death. There is nothing extraordinary in it if it is in man that the instinctive wish for death develops.

As sleep and "necrops" are often preceded by very pleasant sensations why may not this also happen in natural death? Several facts prove it beyond dispute. It is even probable that the approach of natural death is one of the most pleasant sensations that can exist.

As a sensation of happiness occurs in cases of pathological death it is much more likely to occur in natural death. If natural death be preceded by the loss of the instinct of life and by the acquisition of a new instinct it would be the best possible and compatible with the real organization of human nature.

Hippocrates and Aristotle in ancient times complained of the shortness of man's days. Theophrastus who probably lived to the age of 75, who dying explored that nature and given to deer and to cross a life so long and so useless and to mean only one that was often very short."

Ought we to listen to the cry of humanity that life is too short and that it would be well to prolong it? Metchnikoff asks. Would it be for the good of the human race to extend the duration of the life of man beyond its present limits?

After pointing out the objection that already the burden of supporting the old is too heavy Metchnikoff declares that with the prolongation of life there would be a prolongation of intelligence and the power to work. When we have abolished such causes of precocious senility as intemperance and disease he writes it will no longer be necessary to give pensions at the age of 60 or 70 years. The cost of supporting the old instead of increasing will diminish progressively. And he adds:

"We must use all our endeavors to allow men to complete their normal course of life and to make it possible for old men to play their parts as advisers and judges endowed with their long experience of life."

How do so? "How are you in your practical everyday life to realize what Metchnikoff says is possible?"

The following precepts formulated by Dr. Weber of London who is 83 years of age, are suggested by Metchnikoff as preliminary steps. All the organs must be preserved in a condition of vigor. It is necessary to recognize and subdue any morbid tendencies whether they be hereditary or have been acquired during life. It is necessary to be moderate in food and drink and in all other physical pleasures. The air should be pure in the dwelling and in the vicinity. It is necessary to take exercise daily whatever be the weather.

In many cases the respiratory must be especially exercised and exercise on level ground and up hill should be taken. The persons should go to bed early and rise early and not sleep for more than six or seven hours. A bath should be taken daily and the skin should be well rubbed the water used being hot or cold according to taste.

Sometimes it is advantageous to use hot and cold water. Regular work and mental occupation are indispensable. It is useful to stimulate the enjoyment of life so that the mind may be tranquil and full of hope. On the other hand the passions must be controlled and the nervous sensations of grief avoided. Finally there must be a resolute intention to preserve the health to avoid alcohol and other stimulants as well as narcotics and smoking drugs.

That people live longer today than formerly Metchnikoff says is attributable to the advance of hygiene. As the surgical removal of the large intestine or the disinfection of the digestive tubes can not be recommended he finds a specific against the deadly germs in lactic acid. In this respect it is well known that the races which live principally on soured milk are notable for extreme longevity.

Intestinal putrefaction he writes is not prevented by the acid itself but by the introduction into organisms of cultures of lactic bacilli.

From time immemorial human beings have absorbed quantities of lactic microbes by consuming in the soured condition substances such as soured milk, kephir, sauerkraut or salted cucumbers which have undergone lactic fermentation. These means they have unknown how to lessen the evil consequences of intestinal putrefaction.

In the Bible soured milk is frequently spoken of. When Abraham entertained the three angels he set before them soured milk and sweet milk and the calf which he had dressed. In his fifth book Moses enumerates among the food which Jehovah had given his children to eat soured milk of kine and goats and milk with fat of lambs and rams of the breed of Bashan and goats with the fat of lambs."

While kephir in some cases is beneficial Professor Metchnikoff says it can not be recommended for the prolonged use necessary for intestinal putrefaction is to be overcome as the yeasts which produce it at times may be harmful as they are favorable to such infectious germs in the digestive organs as typhoid fever and the vibrio of Asiatic cholera. Quite satisfactory results were obtained by Metchnikoff by use of the Bulgarian bacillus, the microbes of yakhour.

Metchnikoff advocates systematic regulations of the influence of diet which prevent intestinal putrefaction. It can be only in the future near or remote he says that we shall obtain exact information upon what is one of the chief problems of humanity. In the meantime those who wish to preserve their intelligence as long as possible and to make their cycle of life as complete and as normal as is possible under present ent conditions must depend on general sobriety and on habits conforming to the rules of general hygiene.

'BEWARE! WOMEN OF QUACKS!'

---DR. VAN ERDEN

NEW YORK, March 27.—Dr. Frederick Van Erden, the poet sociologist of Holland who has done many remarkable things in mental therapeutics spoke in the Hudson Theater before the League for Political Education last week and told his audience many things that made them gasp and several things that made them blush. Ninety per cent of the audience were women.

Dr. Van Erden told these women that the relationship between doctor and patient in mental therapeutics was so intimate that it was rather unsafe for a sentimental woman to trust herself in the hands of a physician who could love other things besides science.

Beware ladies said the doctor and the ladies began to ask questions about other things so as to charge the subject which by the way the learned doctor talked on with extreme freedom.

Quacks practice suggestion without appreciating it he said they surround themselves with an atmosphere of faith and therein lies their success. For instance take Dowie who proceeded on a strictly American plan and succeeded as long as he controlled the faith of his following.

Bread pills he said was another form of mental healing. He thinks that bread pills can accomplish wonders if applied with the proper mental suggestion. He also has a prescription for a bed ridden person. Yell fire! and watch him run. Dr. Van Erden traced the work of Mesmer the pioneer in healing without drugs and the cure from relics especially those of Lourdes. Not alone did he believe in the power of suggestive healing but that a healing fluid passed from the hands of the physician to the patient he also was certain having himself practiced it successfully.

Hypnotism meant sleep and Dr. Van Erden warned it was not anonymous with suggestive healing. Through the influence of unconscious suggestion he declared mothers could make their children exactly what they would have them mentally and physically.

How to Be Healthy and Beautiful

by Mrs. Henry Symes

ACQUIRING POISE and GRACE

Acquiring Light Step

Curing Round Shoulders

Learning Equilibrium

Balancing against Wall

A WOMAN to be beautiful must not only have beautiful features, but her figure must be perfect and her carriage graceful, and this last is what so many women lack. Those women who are not beautiful—and they are, of course, the majority—cannot control their figures, but at least they can become graceful and lithe when there are so many exercises that may be so easily done in the privacy of their own room without having to buy extra paraphernalia—dumbbells, Indian clubs and weights.

Poise is merely the art of balancing well and easily on hips and ankles, which are both supports of the body. Why should any one be expected to know exactly how to walk, how to hold one's self, who has never been taught from the time she began to cover ground at perhaps a year and a half old?

To strengthen the spine and learn how to carry the upper part of the body no Delearte exercise could have more effect than the simple home method of standing half the length of the body from the wall, resting the head against it and lifting a chair from the floor. In time such a firm footing will be established that it is possible to pick the chair up and regain an erect position.

Another exercise to strengthen the same muscles is to rest the tips of the fingers against the wall and lean toward it as far as possible, always using the hand as a guide to maintain equilibrium.

No exercise to cure round shoulders and obtain an erect figure could be better than to hold a book balanced on the head while stepping up and down on a chair. At first it is both tiresome and difficult, but it soon becomes quite easy, and it not only keeps the head in the correct position, but it teaches the ankles to balance the figure.

Walking a rail between two chairs is not only beneficial, but it is extremely interesting, and for the awkward and clumsy girl no better exercise could be devised. At first a pole may be used to prevent falls, but it is not long before the body becomes accustomed to balancing, and then all assistance may be discarded.

As for acquiring lightness of step or fairy tread, what can take the place of rope jumping and, really, what could be more fun? After the simple jumping many variations may be tried, and when every step has been mastered there is always a waltzing step that can be used. It is all such a great help and teaches so much that no set exercise need be adhered to after it proves in the least bit tiresome.

MRS. HENRY SYMES' ADVICE TO HER MANY CORRESPONDENTS

OWING to the great amount of mail received and the limited space given this department, it is absolutely impossible to answer letters in the Sunday issue following their receipt. The letters must be answered in turn, and this oftentimes requires three or four weeks.

All correspondents who desire an immediate answer must inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a reply. This rule must also be complied with in regard to personal letters.

A Face Rouge.
BELLE—Bloom of rose, a face cream, is made thus: Seventy-seven grains of rosanilin, one and three-quarter ounces of white wax, fifty grains of spermaceti, 80 grains of white petrolatum, one-half fluid dram of alcohol. Perfume to suit. Dissolve the dye in alcohol, add this solution to the fats previously melted, and incorporate the whole together, continuing the stirring until the mixture has cooled.

Chinese Eyelash Stain
JESSIE—This is the recipe which you inquired about: One dram of gum arabic, one-half dram of India ink, four ounces of rosewater. Powder the ink and gum and triturate small quantities of the powder with the rosewater until you get a uniform black liquid, and then add the remainder.

To cure a double chin, massage daily, using the following movements: From point of chin, with open hand press firmly downward, throwing the head backward at the same time. Bathe the chin and throat frequently with cold water.

You will find this a good powder for the teeth: Two ounces of precipitated chalk, two ounces of powdered orris root. Crush and mix.

Brown Hair Stain
DISTRICT—Two ounces of green walnut skins, one-quarter ounce of alum, four ounces of pure oil. Heat together in a water bath until the water has been completely evaporated. Then express, filter and perfume.

Sage tea may be used to darken the hair. Make a strong brew of dried leaves, strain the liquid carefully through muslin, and to each pint add two teaspoonfuls of alcohol. This should be rubbed on the hair every night before retiring.

Hardening Pomade
Q. Y.—This is an anstringent and should not be used as a massage cream, but should be applied after massage, to restore shrunken or flabby skin. Six ounces of oil of sweet almonds, three ounces of white wax, one and one-half ounces of tincture of benzoin, one and one-half ounces of rose water, six drams of pulverized tannin.

To fatten the legs, exercise is the best possible result. A gymnastic feat which is said to be certain to enlarge the lower limbs is to stand on one foot, and with the other leg held out as nearly at right angle to the body as possible, try to touch the knee to the floor.

To Remove Stains From Hands
SISTER—To remove the ink stains from your hands with oxalic acid, put an ounce of the crystals in a pint bottle and fill up with water. Mark the bottle plainly with the name and also the word "poison." Wet a piece of cloth with the acid solution, and rub the stained places. Use a pointed orange-wood stick beneath the nails. Follow with a thorough washing in clear water.

Here is a recipe for a pleasant vermifuge: Five fluid ounces of fluid extract of sassa, three fluid ounces of extract of senna, ten drops of oil of anise, ten drops of oil of caraway, eight fluid ounces of simple syrup.

Dose: One or more teaspoonfuls for adults; one-half teaspoonful for children, at intervals until purging commences.

To expand the chest try this exercise: Depress the chest, letting the shoulders come forward, with the head up and back. Raise the chest by muscular effort, not by breathing, to the point of greatest expansion. Raise and lower the chest this way eight times.

Dr. Shoemaker's Bleach.

P. S.—For freckles and brown spots try the following: Eight grains of bichloride of mercury, in coarse powder, two ounces of witch hazel, two ounces of rosewater. Agitate until a solution is obtained. Moisten over the affected parts. Keep the preparation out of the way of ignorant persons and children. Label "poison" and "for external use only."

This is the recipe for camphor ice:

Two ounces of refined mutton or lamb tallow, a piece of camphor as large as an English walnut. Melt together, and stir until they are thoroughly mixed, then allow to cool.

Wart Eradicator

B. M. R.—To remove the wart from your finger apply this powder to it: Calomel, thirty grains; boracic acid, fifteen grains; salicylic acid, ten grains.

Cucumber Lotion or Cream

L. Z.—A very good lotion is made for the skin thus: Expressed juice of cucumbers, one-half pint; deodorized alcohol, one and one-half ounces; sweet almond oil, three and one-half ounces; shaving cream, one dram; blanched almonds, one and three-fourth drams.

This is a suave lotion, very whitening, softening and cleansing.

Breathing through the mouth very often causes catarrhal inflammation. It is important to breathe through the nose, for then the air is better prepared for the lungs.

Old Depilatory

PERPLEXED—One hundred grains of sulphate of soda, 200 grains of chalk. Mix thoroughly, and keep dry in well-corked bottle until wanted for use. Take enough to make a paste, and add warm water to it until the proper consistency is secured. Spread over the hairy surface, and allow to remain for from one to five minutes, according to the nature of the growth and the susceptibility of the skin; then scrape off with a blunt blade, a paper-knife, for instance. It should be removed, as in every case with a depilatory, when the burning sensation is produced. Too long contact with the skin should be avoided, and immediately after the hair has been removed the denuded surface should be gently washed with warm water and a cold cream or a bland oil applied to prevent irritation.

Exercise is Necessary

CURIOUS—Every one should take a certain amount of exercise in the open air. The best form of exercise, and the most natural, is correct walking, which brings into play every function of the body. A healthy person may easily walk five miles a day; those who have not sufficient strength should only go so far as is not fatiguing.

Diet for Skin Diseases

PHOEBE—The following diet list

may be adapted to almost all skin diseases:

MAY TAKE.

Soups—Fresh fish soups, vegetable broths—clear.

Fish—Raw oysters, fresh fish, boiled.

Meats—Fat bacon, boiled or broiled chicken, game (all sparingly).

Farinaceous—Cracked wheat, oatmeal, rice, sago, hominy, whole wheat bread or biscuits, rye bread, graham bread or rolls, crackers, dry toast, milk toast, macaroni.

Vegetables—Mashed potato, green peas, string beans, spinach, cabbage, cucumbers, cress, lettuce, celery.

Desserts—Plain milk pudding, junket, rice and milk, sago and milk, stewed fruits (all without sugar).

Drinks—Weak tea (no sugar), milk, buttermilk, toast water, pure water (cold or hot).

Thoroughly masticate all foods. Eat slowly.

MUST NOT TAKE.

Veal, pork, goose, duck, turkey, salted, dried, pickled or preserved fish or meat (except fat bacon), eels, mackerel, crabs, salmon, lobster, eggs, rich soups, gravies, patties, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, asparagus, mushrooms, rhubarb, lemons, pickles, vinegar, fried or made dishes, rich puddings, spices, pies, pastry, sweets, cheese, nuts, dried fruit, tobacco, coffee, cider, malt liquors, sweet wines, champagne.

To Make the Hair Lighter

R. V.—A pinch of soda used in the shampoo water tends to lighten the hair and is not injurious.

You cannot expect to have good health if you do not take enough rest. When you go to sleep force yourself to throw off care, so that you will have peaceful and restful slumber. Then when you awake, a body and soul will feel refreshed. It is advisable to relax the muscles frequently during the day. Lie down for half an hour or more in the middle of the day, and if you cannot sleep, forget your troubles and think only of pleasant things.

Results Cannot be Expected

MRS. H. S.—I do not think the Vaucaire remedy will have any effect on you until you are cured of the trouble you mention. It may be too, that the ingredients were not pure. I would take the recipe to another druggist and have it filled again.

Shampoo for Light Hair

ANXIOUS MOTHER—Take one ounce of white castile soap in shavings, twenty-four ounces of water, thirty grains of potassium carbonate, 120 grains of borax, two ounces of cologne water, two ounces of bay rum. Dissolve the soap in the water and add the other ingredients. Rub well into the roots. Cut the ends of the hair so that they will be even, then continue to clip off one-quarter of an inch every two weeks.

side flap not straight, and the effect of an otherwise attractive figure is ruined. The woman or girl has failed to glance at her back in the glass, an operation that would take no longer than fifteen seconds.

Needless to say, any one who is so negligent in the house is going to look just as badly in the street, but there her blouse and skirt are hidden by her jacket, leaving her hair and veil only as indications to her character.

Stray locks should be held tightly in, veil ends should be tucked under and neatly pinned at some unobtrusive point in the hat.

Scrutiny of the back takes no little time and is so easy to do that there is no excuse for any one to complain that they were "in a hurry." A turn on the heel, a twist of the mirror, the deed is done, and mildly may sally forth conscious that from every view she is neat and clean cut.

What a threat!

To dress well, to look well, and to always feel comfortable it is necessary to have carefully inspected the fastenings on waist and skirt before venturing into the society of family, friends or strangers, and when the fastenings are in the back the precaution is doubly necessary.

Collars should be fastened straight, blouses must be buttoned and securely pinned at the waist line, and skirt and belt should always be arranged so that no unsightly safety pins or hooks can possibly be seen by criticizing eyes.

Blouse and belt being in order, the next care is the placard. It would seem impossible for a woman to neglect this detail, yet many do—hooks off, in-

TOM, the CHIMNEY-SWEEP

TOM was a very dirty little chimney-sweep. He lived in a big city where there were plenty of chimneys to sweep. Tom never washed himself, for there was no water in the court where he lived. He cried half of his time and laughed the other half. He cried when he had to climb the dark flues, rubbing his poor knees and elbows raw; when soot got into his eyes; when his master beat him; and when he had not enough to eat, which happened every day. He laughed when he was toting pennies with the other boys or playing leapfrog. Tom never worried about being a chimney-sweep, or being hungry, or being beaten. He said to himself, "When I am a man there is a good time coming."

One day Tom's master, Mr. Grimes, got an order to clean the chimneys at a very grand place, far out in the country, owned by a very rich gentleman. So, at 8 o'clock one summer morning, Tom and his master started out. Mr. Grimes rode the donkey in front and Tom, with the brushes, walked behind out of the court and up the street, and soon they had left the city far behind. At last they came to a very grand lodge and Grimes rang at the gate. Out came the keeper at once. They all walked up the great avenue in front of the mansion. Tom as he went along peeped at the sleeping deer, which he had never seen before, nor had he ever seen such big trees. It seemed to him that the sky rested on the tops of them. There was a queer murmuring noise all about, and Tom, much puzzled, asked the keeper what it was.

The keeper told him it was a great many bees buzzing among the flowers. "What are bees?" asked Tom, never having heard of bees before. "They make honey," said the keeper. "What is honey?" asked Tom. "Hold your tongue!" said Grimes.

"Let the boy be," said the keeper. "He is a nice, civil little fellow," and Grimes laughed. "I wish I were a keeper," said Tom, "to live in such a beautiful place and have a real dog-whistle at my button, like you." The keeper laughed and told Tom that some day he might be.

At last they reached the house. Tom swept so many chimneys out that he got very tired and a little mixed up. He came down the wrong chimney and found himself standing on a hearth in a room, the like of which he had never seen before. This room was all white and had pictures on the walls, and he saw a washstand with soap and towels and a large basin full of water on it. He thought, "What a lot of things for washing; she must be a very dirty person who has to wash so much." And then he looked toward the bed, and there he saw the person and held his breath with wonder, for there lay a most beautiful little girl. Her face was almost as white as the pillow, and she had long hair like threads of gold.

MADE HIM WONDER

Tom wondered whether she was a real live person or a wax doll. "No, she cannot be dirty," thought Tom, and said to himself, "Are all people like that when they are washed?" and he looked at his own dirty feet and tried to rub off some of the soot. "I wish I could look like she does."

He looked around and saw standing close to him a little ugly black, ragged figure, with big eyes and grinning white teeth. He soon saw it was himself, reflected in a big looking glass. For the first time in Tom's life he found out he was dirty, and he felt ashamed. As he turned to sneak up the chimney to hide he upset the fender and threw the fire-tongs down with a noise like thunder.

Up jumped the little white lady in her bed and, seeing Tom, screamed. In rushed a stout, old nurse, and she made for Tom, as she thought he had come to rob them. Tom doubled under her arm and across the room, and was out of the window in a moment. Under the window spread a tree, and down the tree he went like a cat and across the garden lawn toward the woods, leaving the old nurse screaming murder and fire at the window. The gardener saw Tom and threw down his scythe and gave chase. The dairy maid got the churn between her knees and spilled all the cream, and yet she lured up and the great old Saxon tower it stands, and it is all that remains to mark the spot where lies the heroic lad whose martyrdom is pathetically told in "The Chatterbox."

The youth was a choir boy of King's College, and was about 15 years old. Before King's College Chapel was occupied by Oliver Cromwell's soldiers during the civil wars, a faithful band, among whom was the choir boy, had cut out the beautiful stained glass windows and buried them in a secret place.

The boy was seized and brought before Cromwell. He was ordered to reveal the hiding place of the windows, under pain of instant death. He bravely chose death, and without a trial, was mercilessly shot outside the chapel.

Many visitors come into the churchyard to examine the slab and to talk of the heroic death of the martyred choir boy.

The Boy Martyr

IN THE beautiful churchyard of Grantchester, near Cambridge, England, there is a small slab about a foot square. Close under the eaves of a grand old Saxon tower it stands, and it is all that remains to mark the spot where lies the heroic lad whose martyrdom is pathetically told in "The Chatterbox."

AN "APRIL FOOL" REVENGE

"I JUST tell you, Skinny, he's grown so all-fired conceited that I can't stand him. What's more, I'm not going to try," firmly announced Billy. "Oh, I say," pleaded Skinny, "let's give Jerry one more chance. He'll see what the fellows think about it, anyway."

As a result of this conversation, a hasty and secret meeting of the "Bloody Robbers" was held in Warner's hay-loft. All were present except Jerry Coleman, and especial care was taken you're right; maybe it's best to try out some of the others. I've had my eye on one feller in particular. He knows heaps more than any of the rest of us, an' I've no doubt he'd make a superby kind of a leader. Fellers, I nominate Jerry Coleman for captain."

After about one minute was consumed in the election of Jerry. This vote was unanimous; enthusiasm was unbounded. Jerry, evidently conscious of his new dignity, strutted over to the highest one" sputtered the "April Fool" caption.

Skinny laughed carelessly. "Oh, say, Jerry, you didn't really think we elected you captain, did you? I thought you would know it was only an April Fool joke."

"Only a-a-a April Fool joke!" stammered Jerry, leaning against the fence for support. But Skinny had already darted off, merrily whistling, leaving Jerry staring blankly after him.

The lad who had been captain for a day sank down by the roadside. For fully five minutes he lay as though he were dead. Then he buried his face in his hands and sobbed violently. Jerry was not in school that afternoon, nor was he seen by any "Bloody Robber" during the rest of the day.

The fun part of the joke as they had expected. Indeed, one and all confessed that it was "an awful mean thing to do." They hadn't even the satisfaction of knowing that the lesson, cruel though it was, had effected a cure. But it had.

JERRY THRILLS HIS AUDIENCE

that Jerry should not hear of the conviction. There was a silence for a moment after Captain Bill Mumford had stated the purpose of the meeting. Then Bill, whose house, all always formed ones, misty quickly, and clung to them.

"Fellers," said he, "I think there's a whole lot in what Bill says. Jerry brags more than anybody I've ever known."

"Never made your own acquaintance, then," suggested Joe Stanton. "And he does less than any one else," continued Bill, disregarding the laugh which Joe's remark had caused.

"April Fool should be the best time of all to cook up some kind of a revenge on Jerry," remarked Skinny, reflectively.

"Why not hold a sham meeting the first of April and elect Jerry captain?" When Bill had seated himself at the head of the group, he called out to the meeting to a semblance of order at the appointed time, on April 1, and began.

"Members of the 'Bloody Robbers,' I've asked you to come here so to elect a new captain. I ain't got no special reason for resignin'. Though I haven't done nearly as good as Skinny did as captain, still I ain't altogether ashamed of my record. But there are other fellers here who are much more deservin', and I want to give 'em a chance."

When Bill had seated himself at the conclusion of this announcement, Skinny slowly raised himself to an upright position. "Billy," said he, "you do yourself credit. We've never had a better captain either. But, after all, maybe part of the haypile in as haughty a manner as the uneven and unstable surface of the hay would permit. As he gazed over his audience his chest swelled visibly, and as Bill Kane afterward declared, so did his head.

"I am deeply flattered by the honor you fellers have bestowed on me in so great a quantity," he said solemnly.

"Jerry for Jerry!" yelled the band. "An' I want to say that I'm awful much obliged to you. Comin' from another town, as Skinny says, I've learned a lot of twists that you fellers ain't accustomed to. 'Course, I ain't stuck up about it, 'cause I know it's happened so. But you can bet your life that I'm goin' to lead you fellers the very best I know how. And when I say, 'I'm dog-gone sure that every one of you will follow me, captain into the thickest of the fight,' that's all I want to say, 'cept to thank you again."

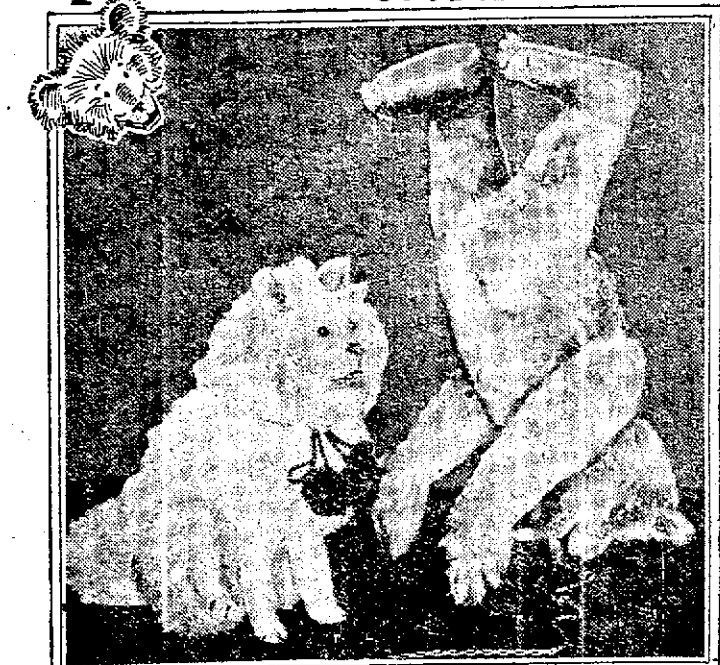

In the general hand-clapping and howling that followed this gallant speech, Jerry failed to hear Jack Warner's matter to Skinny.

"He says he'll lead us into the fight, does he? What that guy never was in a fight in 'is life!"

Before the members of the band separated Jerry pompously announced that there would be a meeting tomorrow after dinner at the Cave, an' he didn't expect to find any feller late. The next afternoon, as Jerry came from the house, he met Skinny, who had purposely loitered outside.

"Hello, Lieutenant Skinny," said Jerry in a tone of infinite condescension. "I s'pose you're on the way to the meeting place?"

THE TEDDY WHO STOOD ON HIS HEAD

"The old cow jumped the moon," remarked Ted.

"When she should have been snug in her bed."

"Here's a trick she can't do—And the Teddy stood right on his head."

"Little boys think they're smart," said the bear.

"But I wonder if they are aware That with me they've no show. For they couldn't, I know, Stand all day with their feet in the air."

Said the Fuzzy Dog, "Teddy, my dear, Pray take care, there are tacks scattered here."

"Oh, I'm not much afraid, For of plush I am made."

Ted replied as he spun on his ear.

"Much more comfort you'd find, if you stood and stood firm and upright on your toes!"

The wise Fuzzy barked: But the foolish Tedarked. And for answer just whirled on his

Magnetic Experiment

LAY an ordinary one-foot rule across the top of a glass. Grasp one end of the rule between the forefinger and the middle finger. Secure a small sheet or plate of hard rubber. Rub it vigorously with a piece of silk to generate electricity. Hold the piece of rubber between the thumb and forefinger of the same hand in which you grasp the rule. By touching the rule with the rubber you will find that pieces of paper thrust upon the under side of the other end of the rule will remain suspended without visible means of support.

The paper, of course, is attracted by the magnetized rule.

Marie Avoided the Tax

TO DRIVE in the magnificent landau with madame was a thing to be proud of, and madame's maid, Marie, was as proud as proud could be.

When they reached the chateau, which was madame's destination, the great lady bade Marie trudge to the neighboring town and purchase some eggs, while she herself paid her call at the chateau.

Marie clutched the coin tightly in her hand and started out upon her errand. For a wonder, she bought the eggs without mishap. Returning, however, she was stopped by the police, who explained that, inasmuch as she had crossed the border of another province, she must pay duty on the eggs before she could return to the chateau at which her mistress was visiting.

Marie was in a quandary. Madame had given her just so much to spend, and she had no more money with her. But she had also been told not to return without the eggs. What should she do? She retired to the place where she had bought the eggs to think it all over. Half an hour later she again appeared before the police. This time she was permitted to pass, inasmuch as no eggs could be found about her person.

"Well, Marie, maybe you come back with the eggs?" asked madame, when the maid arrived at the chateau. "Yes, madame," the police wouldn't let me pass with the eggs, they said; but I fooled them—I ate the eggs, and got by without the least bit of trouble."

Marie was so pleased with what she had done that madame hadn't the heart to scold her brilliant maid.

Not Treated Right. Jimmy was standing near a hole in the ice, shouting at the top of his voice to one who approached he explained his grievance. Johnny's down there," said he, pointing to the hole, and he won't give me the skates. He's had 'em more than his share of time now."

found himself swimming about in the stream. In fact, the fairies had turned Tom into a water baby, and a merry, happy water baby he was, and he was never tired or dirty again.

The Cat Orchestra

THERE were four of them—Fluffy, Snowball, Tabby and Thomas. But Thomas, the pussy with the glossy black coat, was the cleverest of the four. He it was who organized the quartet. The four pussies sang ever so nicely, under the leadership of Thomas, and surely it was only envy that made the Human Beings around them angry. However, this did not prevent the quartet from practicing.

One evening when they had gathered in the big library for a chorus, Thomas suddenly thought that the music was incomplete without the accompaniment of stringed instruments. So he directed the other pussies to twang the violin and guitar t at lay on the couch nearby. He had often seen Human Beings play these instruments, so he knew exactly how it was done. He explained it all very carefully to the other members of the quartet.

Then Thomas waved his paw in air as a signal for the music to begin. The next moment, instead of sweet instrumental music mingling with the song of the chorus, there was a succession of snaps and whirrs as the strings broke under the sharp claws of the four pussies.

Thomas never found out just what the matter was, for a Human Being sent the quartet flying in all directions, while he said very ugly things about cat choruses in general. Thomas' feelings were greatly hurt.

STRANGERS FLOCK TO OAKLAND FOR HOMES

TWELVE-ROOM RESIDENCE TO BE ERRECTED AT VAN BUREN AND LEE STREETS AT COST OF $12,000. CHARLES MAN, ARCHITECT.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE PLANNED AND WILL BE ERRECTED HERE IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Steady Progress Is Making Oakland a Great Metropolitan City

The summary of the building permits and alterations issued for the past week, the reports of all the realty dealers in the county, the many deeds of sales of property recorded at the County Recorder's office, and the influx of strangers into the city, all show that Oakland is steadily forging ahead and is becoming a metropolitan city in every respect.

Work on many large buildings now in course of construction is proceeding rapidly, and many men are being given employment to do this work. Taft & Penoyer took out another contract this week for another portion of the work on their large building now being erected at Fourteenth and Clay streets, and the Novelty Theater took out a permit for the remodeling and enlarging of its building on Broadway. Both of these permits show the necessity of large buildings to meet the demands of the rapidly growing population of this city.

The Western Pacific railroad is gradually nearing the city, and it will be but a short time when another transcontinental railroad will have this city as a terminus.

The company has advertised for bids on two ferry boats to ply between its Oakland terminal and the San Francisco shore, and the final link of the Gould system uniting it with the Western extension will be well on its way to completion by the end of the coming summer, according to the officials of the company.

The plans and specifications call for two boats built on the lines of the Key Route ferries, but larger, and these will be added to when the system is properly connected with its Eastern branches.

The company expects to begin the operation of its ferries as soon as the California end of the road is laid, regardless of the completion of the line through the State of Nevada, where a tunnel of more than a mile in length, known as the Flower Lake tunnel, remains to be dug, and will delay the completion of the road for a year.

A tunnel nearly a mile in length near Niles in Alameda county is nearly finished, daylight now showing through the bore.

Western Pacific officials further state that eighty per cent of the new mole has been built although little of it shows above water yet, and that it will not be long before passengers across the bay will see the beginning of the ship and ferry house that are to be built near the end of the Oakland estuary.

Plans are now ready and in charge of City Engineer Turner for the improvement of the Oakland water front. They were prepared by P. F. Brown, a prominent engineer, who worked on the plans of the New York harbor. The Board of Works will probably soon report to the Council some plans for the improvement of the harbor as was requested.

$12,000 HOME TO BE BUILT

Architect Mau Completes Plans for Fine Residence in Adams Point Tract.

Architect Charles Mau has completed plans for a $12,000 residence to be built at the corner of Van Buren and Lee streets in the Adams Point tract, north of Lake Merritt. The owner of the proposed new home does not desire at the present time to have its name mentioned.

The new residence will be one of the prettiest and most attractive in the Adams district, which already is one of the finest sections in this city and one of the most picturesque.

The new dwelling is to contain twelve rooms, all elegantly appointed. The interior will be finished in hardwood and the architect has planned many unique features.

The exterior will be concrete to the first floor and shingled from the first floor to the top. A perspective of the residence is shown herewith and it can be seen that it will be attractive in the extreme.

BIG APARTMENT HOUSE WILL BE BUILT

Structure to Cost $250,000 to Go Up at Corner of Thirteenth and Jackson Streets.

Another big apartment house is to be built in this city at the corner of Thirteenth and Jackson streets, at a cost of $250,000. The structure will be in the latest modern style, and will be built on the site of the old building which was destroyed by fire. The building will be five stories high and will be constructed on the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Jackson streets. The owner is Dr. W. D. Huntington and Dr. Dow. The structure will cover a lot 100x120 feet. It will be of brick and contain all the modern improvements usually found in structures of this kind. The working plans are already in the hands of contractors and are being figured on for the purpose of enabling the structure to be completed at the earliest moment possible.

There will be 200 rooms in the building and these will be so divided as to make it possible for patrons to secure quarters ranging from one room to suites of six and eight rooms. The architect is D. F. Oliver.

SEEKING HOMES IN ISLE CITY

Alameda Realty Market Looking Up and House Builders Are Numerous.

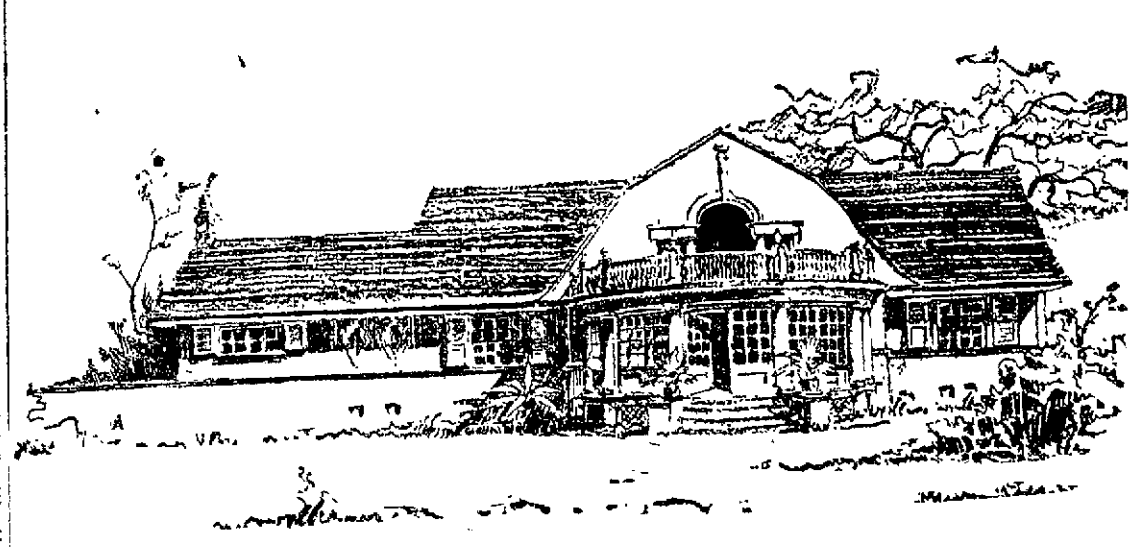

ALAMEDA, March 29.—Now that banks have resumed the business of loaning money, which they discontinued when the financial stringency came on, realty brokers say that there is a noticeable increase in building and in the transferring of property. The men who deal in houses and in the building of new homes are looking for a more active market during the spring months.

Persons owning unimproved property realize that this is a profitable time to build because of the reasonable cost of labor and material. Knowing this, many lot owners who have held their lands for years for speculative purposes are planning to erect dwellings thereon and others already have houses under way. The cottage is the favorite style of home with persons seeking a residence in Alameda and a cottage with a "for rent" sign on it is a rarity.

Fine Opportunity.

The realty agents say that there was never a better opportunity than now for persons with ready cash to invest in Alameda property, as numerous bargains are to be had, the persons offering them being those who are in want of cash.

Mr. Miller reports that he has secured several good sales recently and that he has others in process of negotiation. His patrons have mostly been people from outside of Alameda, says that there is an increasing demand for building lots and houses for rent in that portion of the city. The West End is particularly favored by those who do business in San Francisco and who are required to cross the bay daily. They arrive at their homes from ten to fifteen minutes earlier in the evening than East End residents who must take the bay trip and are not required to arise as early in the morning.

STORY AND A HALF BUNGALOW, OF COLONIAL DESIGN, WHICH IS TO BE ERRECTED IN PIEDMONT. C. W. DICKEY, ARCHITECT.

PLAN TO BUILD IN PIEDMONT

Bungalow of Colonial Style of Architecture Planned by Architect Dickey.

One of the most attractive homes to be built in Piedmont will be that which is now being planned by Architect C. W. Dickey. It is a story and a half bungalow and will cost $6000. A perspective of the rear view of the house is shown herewith.

The proposed dwelling will contain seven rooms, four of these apartments being sleeping rooms on the second floor. The interior will be finished in redwood, stained in a pretty shade of brown. There will be paneled walls and beam ceilings. One of the features of the proposed new residence will be the immense living room, which will occupy the greater part of the lower floor. There will also be a small breakfast room and a commodious kitchen.

DESIRE TO BUY AND BUILD NOW POPULAR

Mr. Rosenheim of the W. N. Crown Company says that prospects are exceedingly bright for a good summer business in realty. "A feature of the business today," said Mr. Rosenheim, "is the sales of vacant properties for the building of apartment houses. Up to about a year ago there were few apartment houses in Oakland, but now this form of investment is proving to be very popular and is made necessary by the steady increase of population. There is a good inquiry for suburban places that can be bought on monthly payments with about $500 down. We could sell at least twenty of these if we had them. On the whole, values are well sustained and I think that the investing public is showing a tendency toward buying open property and building upon it rather than to buy property already improved.

WANT TO ANNEX TWENTY-ACRES WORTH MORE THAN MILLION DOLLARS

Improvement Club Wants to Add Area With Fine Residences

BERKELEY, March 28.—If the building permits go for anything Berkeley real estate is assuming its old-time form. Up to last night there were 104 permits issued for the month against 115 for March a year ago. As there are still four days in the month the contractors would not be surprised to see the figures of a year ago surpassed. When it is considered that in December there were only 66 permits issued and 71 in January, it is evident that the last two months have seen a wonderful improvement.

The class of houses planned for the past week include many of the higher grades. The building industry this year seems to be centered in what is known as the fashionable hillside region, the whole distance from the Oakland line to the north town limits resounding with the hammer and the saw.

The North Berkeley Improvement Club has revived the project of annexing the territory lying north of the present town boundary and a petition is being prepared calling for a special election. In the region it is proposed to annex there are about 250 acres and many new fashionable homes. The assessed valuation is about $1,250,000.

Want Annexation.

It will include practically all the developed country north of Bunice street and east of St. Joseph's Academy. Some months ago an effort was made to bring this territory into the town, but the whole region between the county line on the north and east and the Berkeley water front was included in the scheme. The west and people here are not favorable. There was opposition from the people living north of Peralta Park and about St. Joseph's Academy. The proposition of annexation was first broached about two years ago and was endorsed by all the other improvement clubs, and while it has been felt that the west end should be included the determined opposition of the powder trust people, backed up by the people about the county line along San Pablo avenue thwarted it. Now the plan to leave out the west end, it is declared, assures the incorporation of the east portion of the region as a portion of Berkeley. The Realty C. W. Dickey, 2-story, 6-room cottage, 100 feet west of Randolph street, 200 feet north of Clifton street; $2250.

Want Hill Property.

Real estate men say there is a steady call for hill property, especially in the Claremont region and in North Berkeley. The inquiries are for the most part from homeseekers and people who desire to purchase a home

TWO-STORY, SIX-ROOM HOUSE TO BE ERRECTED BY ALAMEDA LAND COMPANY ON CENTRAL AVENUE, AT GRAND STREET, ALAMEDA. C. M. COOK, ARCHITECT.

OPENING UP A LARGE TRACT 2 NEW HOMES ARE PLANNED

Wickham Havens Has Large Gang of Men and Horses Working.

Wickham Havens, president of the firm of Wickham Havens (Inc.), said in a recent conversation. "Now that good weather has come to stay we are busy engaged in putting through developments outlined in our plans of last fall, which were interrupted by the rains. We have several hundred head of horses and a large gang of men at work on Fourth Avenue Terrace and East Piedmont Heights tracts. We are laying a large sewer along Lake Shore avenue (leading from Lake Merritt to Piedmont) and this avenue will be widened to 100 feet as soon as the sewer and street car lines are finished.

"Fifteen houses are now ready to be built in Fourth Avenue Terrace and this week will see the start of almost all of them. We expect to make a building campaign in this tract and East Piedmont Heights and will be prepared to accommodate many people with homes who could not have otherwise enjoyed the luxury of living in houses that are not rented. It is a curious thing that the home feeling does not exist in a rented house, even though that place may be much elaborately and expensive than the occupant could buy. The old saying 'that there is no place like home' is never clearly understood until one has even a small unpretentious house which he can call his own.

"Anyone who is at all interested in watching the upbuilding of Oakland and its wonderful environs, will enjoy a street car ride to any of these tracts, where they can walk over the rolling hills and see for themselves the wonderful changes which are now in progress.

2 NEW HOMES ARE PLANNED

Alameda Land Company Will Erect Attractive Cottages in Isle City.

C. M. Cook, the architect, has just completed plans for two two-story homes to be erected in one of the most fashionable parts of Alameda, on Central Avenue, near Grand street. This section of the Isle City is rapidly building up, many beautiful and costly homes being under course of construction.

The two houses which Cook has prepared plans for are to contain six rooms each and will cost about $2500 each.

NEW FACTORY TO BE STARTED

Alaska Graphite Company to Have Big Plant in This City.

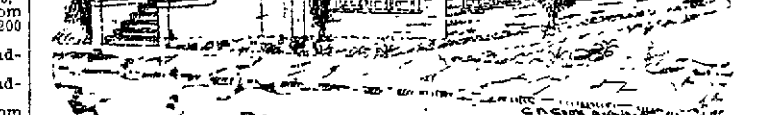

Charles W. Jenkins of this city is interested in the Alameda Graphite Company, which has large deposits of graphite in the Port Clarence district in Alaska. This deposit is about 100 miles from Nome and is on the sea shore. Jenkins has his office in this city and he reports that great headway is being made with the promotion of the project and that in all probability this city will be made the distributing point of the company.

Jenkins also states that the company will probably within the near future erect a paint factory in this city, the plant to be constructed on a large scale and will be one of the principal industries here.

REAL ESTATE MARKET IS EXCEEDINGLY GOOD

W. L. Achard Company reports a large percentage of inquiry for suburban improved property that can be bought on easy terms.

"Though the large majority of people are not acquainted with the details of the real estate business," said Mr. Achard, "there may not appear to be much activity at this time, but to the business, the market is exceptionally good. Buyers all appear to be anxious to obtain the best terms possible and prefer to make a moderate cash payment and to provide for balances by installments. There is but little disposition to borrow because of the uncertainty which exists as to the calling-in of loans."

ANOTHER TWO-STORY, SIX-ROOM COTTAGE TO BE ERRECTED BY ALAMEDA LAND COMPANY ON CENTRAL AVENUE, NEAR GRAND STREET, ALAMEDA. C. M. COOK, ARCHITECT.

HEALTHY TONE TO BUSINESS OF WEEK

Charles Taylor of Taylor Brothers reports that the past week has been a very busy one. "I do not notice any special activity in any one branch of business," said Taylor, "but there is a healthy tone throughout." Among the sales made last week by Taylor Brothers are the following:

105 foot frontage on north side of Forty-third street to W. H. Keefer who will build at once a block of flats.

Forty feet frontage facing the Boulevard on First avenue for the immediate building of double flats.

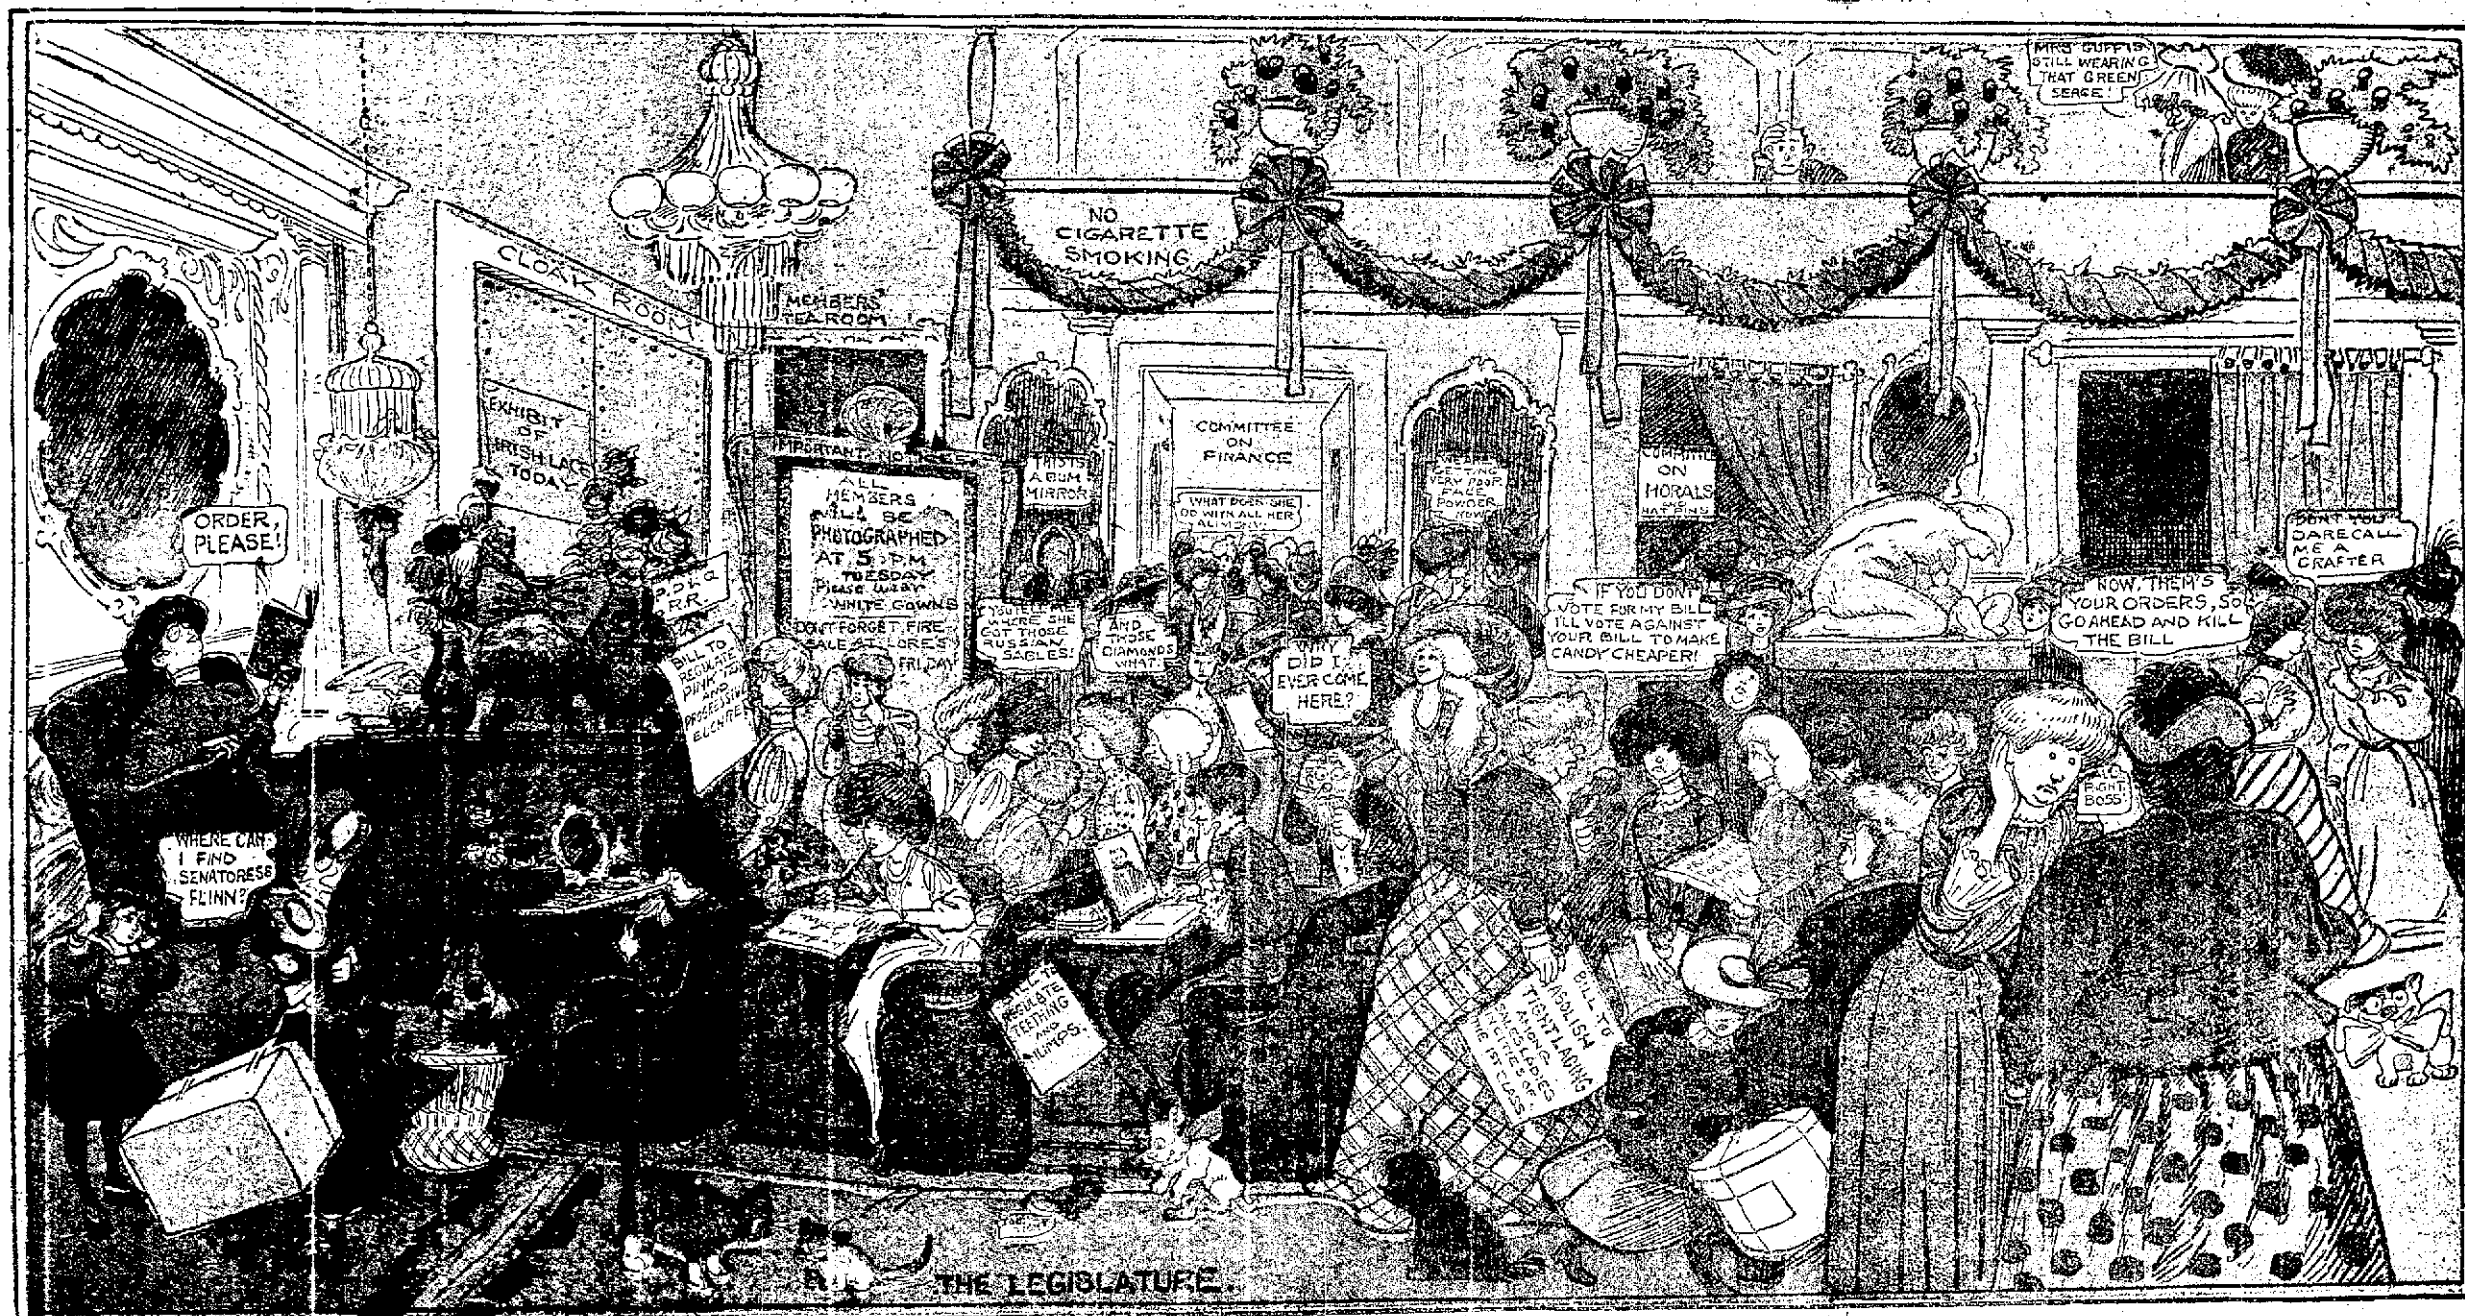

To Joseph Elliott corner Twenty-second avenue and Lincoln street, vacant property for a residence.

To Mrs. Josephine M. Swigard a 2-story residence on Thirty-seventh near Grove.

To W. H. Donahue, Chief Deputy District Attorney, a 10-room, 2-story Swiss residence at corner Newton and Fourth avenue, also 85 feet frontage adjoining.

DESPERADO ELUDES POSSE

Unknown Vaquero Who Shot Constable and Farmer Yesterday—Victims May Die.

At a late hour tonight the search for the desperado who, early yesterday morning, shot Constable Groom of Danville, Contra Costa county, and Joseph Amaral, a farmer and a resident of the same vicinity, was abandoned owing to darkness. The chase, however, will be renewed early tomorrow morning.

In the search there was a posse under the leadership of Sheriff Veale of Contra Costa county. That official was assisted by Constable J. M. Locke of Pleasanton, this county, Constable Palmer of Martinez, and George Perry, Ralph Harrison and Howard Veale of the same place.

The shooting will, in all probability, result fatally, so far as Amaral is concerned.

The would-be murderer used a shotgun. Groom was shot in both legs and in the right hand. He was painfully wounded and physicians declare that, unless great care is exercised, serious results may follow.

Amaral was the more seriously wounded of the two. He was shot in the face and side. His face was horribly lacerated and the shot which penetrated his side was supposed to have penetrated the intestines.

This morning Amaral is to be taken to a hospital in San Francisco for the purpose of trying to save his life.

Shooting Unprovoked.

The shooting was one of the most unprovoked crimes of the kind that ever took place in this vicinity. The would-be murderer is unknown to anybody in the vicinity. He appeared on the scene for the first time, last Friday night. No body knew from whence he came. He acted strangely. People in the vicinity of Tassajara came to the conclusion that he was crazy. He had, however, threatened several residents in the vicinity of the town mentioned and the townspeople did not feel that they were safe while he was at large.

Complaint was made to Constable Groom and he started in the direction in which the stranger had been seen. Groom came upon him on the Fitzgerald ranch in the vicinity of Tassajara and started to place him under arrest. At the time there was also present Joseph Amaral.

Opens Fire on Both.

The stranger was armed with a shotgun and before the constable had an opportunity to place him under arrest he opened fire upon Groom and Amaral. Both were wounded in the manner indicated. The desperado then disappeared.

Notwithstanding his wounds, Groom was taken, at his own request, to a telephone, and it was he who sent out information of the shooting. The nearest officer who could be contacted was Constable L. M. Locke of Pleasanton. Locke immediately informed Sheriff Veale in Martinez of the tragedy and then joined the sheriff's posse in the attempt to run down the murderer. Information was, later, received from Tassajara that Groom, after having been shot by the desperado, had, himself, fired several shots at his assailant, but the fellow had succeeded in getting beyond the range of the constable's gun. The hunt for the murderer will be continued today.

Declare Martial Law In Treadwell Strike

SEATTLE, March 28.—Federal troops, one company from Ft. William, Seaside, and one from Ft. Stevens, were landed on Douglas Island today and at once took up a position about the Treadwell mine. The striking miners offered no resistance and the non-union men, sent north on the Lynn Canal steamer Humboldt and City of Seattle, to take the places of those on strike, were put ashore from the vessels on the island.

While no formal declaration has been made to such an effect, Douglas Island, or at least that portion carrying the Treadwell mines, is under martial law.

Fear Tidal Wave On Mexican Coast

CITY OF MEXICO, March 28.—No direct communication has been received here from Acapulco or other Pacific coast points since the earthquake.

Arrivals at Chihuahua from the town of Vico say it was reported there that a tidal wave had followed the severe shock and had swept away towns in the low country bordering the coast. This report is not credited here, as it is thought that the government, meteorological bureau would have been advised of any such calamity had occurred.

POLICE FEAR ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF MRS. ROOSEVELT

Suspected "Red" Is Arrested Near Party

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 28.—The arrest of a Syrian named George Shadid, a Wichita, Kansas, resident, considered an excitement when Mrs. Roosevelt and party arrived here over the Queen and Crescent railroad this morning.

The President's wife had been presented with bouquets all day, which had been carefully examined. Shadid, with a grip in his hand was running excitedly toward the party when he was stopped by the police. An examination showed that he was an agent for Oriental goods. Chief of Police Groom ordered him to be locked in jail until Mrs. Roosevelt and party boarded the Mayflower. Shadid says he went to the depot through curiosity.

MOTHER MAKES LAST PLEA TO HUGHES FOR SON'S LIFE

Show Evidence Girl Committed Suicide

ALBANY, N. Y., March 28.—After listening all day to evidence intended to show that Grace Brown was not murdered by Chester Gillette, but either committed suicide or was drowned by falling into the water because of an epileptic fit, Governor Hughes refused to decide until tomorrow. Mrs. and Mrs. Gillette and Attorney Miles and Dugan, the counsel are confident of a respite. If it is granted, it will take effect within twelve hours of the time set for Gillette to be executed.

Upon a brief diary handed to Governor Hughes by D. L. Sanders of Scotland, New York, may depend the life of Gillette. So important did the Governor consider the contents of this diary that he adjourned the final hearing in order that Sanders might reach the city with evidence which he says surely will result at least in a commutation of the sentence.

The diary tends to show that Grace Brown contemplated suicide long before she went to Big Moose with Gillette.

Another mysterious witness testified before the Governor. Who he is or what he said, the Governor would not divulge but it is presumed that, like the other witnesses today, his evidence tended to show that Grace Brown committed suicide or fell from the boat while in the throes of an epileptic fit.

VANDERBILT POSTPONES HIS TRIP ACROSS OCEAN

Crowds Go to Dock, but Are Disappointed

NEW YORK, March 28.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt failed today to carry out his announcement made twice during the week that he would sail for Europe. Instead of sailing Vanderbilt remained in seclusion at the Knickerbocker Club.

Until late in the afternoon, when he took a short drive in his automobile. He returned to the club and denied himself to callers.

Public interest, aroused by the reported separation of Vanderbilt and his wife and the presence of crowds at the departure of the steamship St. Louis of the American line and the Etruria of the Canadian line this morning, the spectators hoped to witness the departure of Vanderbilt.

At the last moment Vanderbilt decided to defer his trip for a few days. His apartments at the Plaza were closed this morning the larger part of his baggage being sent abroad on the Etruria, but several large boxes were sent to New port. During the few days he will remain in the city Vanderbilt will make his headquarters at the Knickerbocker.

Vanderbilt declined today to comment upon the interview given by his wife last night. He said that he had absolutely nothing more to make known to anyone regarding his private and domestic affairs.

While he was out driving in his automobile during the afternoon he passed at Sixth street and Fifth avenue a handsome carriage in which Mrs. Ruess and Mrs. Flores were riding.

The young woman, gave Vanderbilt a salute that was almost military in its character. Vanderbilt bowed, but his machine continued on the avenue at full speed. Friends of Vanderbilt state that he is not a good sailor and that upon learning of the stormy trip of steamers at present he had decided to delay his departure until Wednesday of next week.

Harriman Secures Control Of the Huntington Trolleys

Huge Transfer Involves About $50,000,000

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—Henry E. Harrington, quondam trolley magnate of Southern California is no longer a factor in the steam or electric railways of this city and state. The entire interests of Mr. Harrington have been taken over by Mr. Harriman, and Mr. Harrington has retired permanently from the field.

Semi-official information on the big deal, which was consummated in this city last Sunday at the time of the visit of Epes Randolph, and previously arranged when W. F. Herrin paid a hurried visit to Los Angeles, shows that Mr. Harrington will retire completely from the field, and that Mr. Harriman will be in absolute control of all the lines which are now operated by four or five separate companies.

Furthermore, the transfer, which involves something like $50,000,000, means that the Southern Pacific will be in control of the trolley lines of Southern California, in addition to the majority of the railroad lines which have been operated as feeders to the vast Harriman system for many years.

According to the terms of the agreement it is said that Mr. Harrington will retire for all time from active participation in the management of the great properties which he built up in Southern California under orders from Mr. Harriman during the past eight or ten years.

At the local offices of Mr. Harrington in this city it is not known whether he will return to Los Angeles or make his permanent headquarters in the East, where he has been for six months.

CONTEST OVER DELEGATES TO NATIONAL CONVENTION

Mayor Mott and Charles E. Snook Will Oppose George W. Reed and J. E. Rogers in This District.

A new move in the political game shows that there is going to be a contest over the election of the Republican delegates to the National convention from this district. The people who take an interest in politics were given an inside hint yesterday that Mayor Frank K. Mott and Attorney Charles E. Snook will be candidates in this district against Attorney George W. Reed, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, and J. E. Rogers, County Clerk of Solano county. It has not yet been determined whether Judge Henry A. Melvin will be a candidate for delegate-at-large to the National Republican convention.

It was a surprise to some people to learn that Ex-Mayor H. B. Mehrmann, chairman of a local political club, is working on behalf of Mott and Snook. When Dr. Mehrmann withdrew from the Coroner's contest at the last county election peace articles were agreed upon between Congressman Joseph R. Knowland, Coroner Charles L. Tisdale and Mehrmann. The latter was given quite a bit of patronage throughout the county, and it appeared to the politicians that the ex-Coroner was in the Tisdale camp. Now comes the information that Mehrmann is against Tisdale's candidates, Reed and Rogers.

If the contest goes to the polls, as is now promised, it will be an interesting one. County Treasurer M. J. Kelly is said to be backing Snook and Mott.

HER ANKLES JAR THE KAISER

Mrs. Hill's Eccentricities of Costume Said to Be at Bottom of Diplomatic Muddle.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Robert Bacon, First Assistant Secretary of State, may be the next American Ambassador to Germany, according to well-defined reports among members of the foreign diplomatic corps here. Charles Maguire, the present Ambassador, is to be recalled from this post voluntarily, or to be recalled by the President, according to information from the State Department. The appointment of Secretary Bacon is regarded as certain, because of the fact that the usefulness of David Jayne Hill is ended so far as American Ambassador at the court of Berlin is concerned, owing to the misunderstanding which has suddenly developed as to his standing with the Kaiser.

Nothing will be done, however, until the letter which the German Emperor is reported to have written to the President, explaining his attitude in the affair is received and considered by President Roosevelt and Secretary Root. Nothing further developed today to clear the mystery which has surrounded the affair since the report that Dr. Hill would not be satisfactory to the Kaiser.

It was said today that nothing further had been learned and that nothing would be done until the arrival of the letter. The appointment of Mr. Bacon to this post is regarded as certain, because he is the only man now in the State Department who has a large private fortune which would enable him to carry out the administration's policy of splendor and display which is now considered necessary at the more important diplomatic stations of the continent. Further, he has the backing of J. Pierpont Morgan, whose partner he was for many years in New York banking house.

His New York banking house has many friends in New York who would be pleased greatly over his selection by the President.

Mrs. Hill "Peculiar."

Dr. Hill, it was pointed out today, has no large private fortune which would maintain a large establishment and entertain upon a scale which Mr. Tower has followed.

Further than this, Mr. Bacon is thoroughly familiar with the policies of the State Department and has been training under Secretary Root for several years, being entirely familiar with the work which the government desires to be followed.

Diplomatic factions in Washington discount the theory that Dr. Hill is not as able a diplomat as the Kaiser would like to have as the United States representative at his court.

The most remarkable bit of gossip relating to the whole affair is that it will be found, if the Tower letter is ever published, that Mrs. Hill is discussed therein.

One of the officials of the State Department, who knows Dr. Hill very well, said today that the only reasonable supposition was that the German courtiers who had retailed small talk to the Kaiser got hold of the story of Mrs. Hill's "democratic methods" while in Washington.

This official said that it was a well-known fact that Mrs. Hill was regarded in society as "peculiar."

Asked what that meant, he said:

"Well, she dresses too gaily for a woman of her age and distinction as the wife of an American diplomat. One of her customs was to go to market herself, often in her bicycle. She usually wore a jaunty little Dutch cap and many said that the skirts of her bicycle suit were short. All this, however, can have little weight in the opinion of a broad-minded man like the Kaiser."

"It is possible that Mrs. Hill did a great deal of bicycling and possibly marketing when she was at Bern, where Dr. Hill was Minister before he went to Bern. It is possible, also, that she did the same thing at The Hague, and that the German Imperial delegates did not like her democratic methods, and so began the gossip which doubtless had some assistance from American enemies of Dr. Hill now in Berlin. Perhaps, too, as the personalities, as they call them, of Mrs. Hill were known here, the information which the German officials are dispensing might have gone direct from this city."

"When all is said and done, however, we do not see how the fact that an Ambassador's wife prefers to go to market herself, that she goes on a bicycle and that she wears Dutch caps and that she does not wear long skirts when riding, and that she is democratic, should enable Dr. Hill's enemies to get any assistance from a democratic country like the United States. It is just possible that the letter of Charles Maguire to the Kaiser ever sent across the Atlantic."

"So far as Mrs. Hill is concerned, she is the peer in intellectuality of any woman on either side of the Atlantic."

DUKE OF MANCHESTER AND DUCHESS AT OUTS

ANOTHER FOREIGN MARRIAGE ON THE ROCKS

Love of Title Adds One More to the List of the Disappointed.

LONDON, March 28.—There is said to be a coolness between the Duke and Duchess of Manchester because of the Duke's attitude lately toward the peasant at Kilmore Castle, Ireland. According to the reports from there the Duke who has until recently won the affection of his tenants by his kindly treatment of them, has now assumed a tyrannical position and has changed front from the side of the home rulers to that of the landlords. The tenants have requested the Duke for an additional allotment of land from the 400 acres which he used for cattle grazing and he has refused and threatened to evict them all, according to one informant. It is said that the Duchess has taken up the cause of the tenants against her husband and that her action has caused a serious disagreement between them.

Russian Torpedo Destroyers Collide

ST. PETERSBURG, March 28.—A dispatch received here from Liban says that the Russian torpedo boat destroyers Moskhitian and Dubovskis collided recently while maneuvering in the Baltic and were seriously damaged.

GILLETT NOT INVITED TO BANQUET

Nor Will Phelan Get Bid to State's Feast to the U. S. Fleet.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—The offer of $25,000 to the fund being raised for the reception of the fleet on the condition that Chairman James D. Phelan of the fleet reception committee resign was the chief topic of discussion in all quarters today, and it brought to light that the relations between the San Francisco committee and Governor Gillett and his official family and friends are strained.

The committee headed by Phelan will give a banquet to Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, Admiral Dewey and Rear Admiral Evans and the officers commanding the ships of the fleet. Neither Governor Gillett nor any of his staff has been invited to this function, and the matter has caused a deal of unfavorable criticism.

Overlooked or Forgotten.

General George Stone of the Governor's staff, who is in charge of arrangements of the banquet to be given by Governor Gillett tonight, admitted the neglect of the state officials.

"It seems that Governor Gillett and his official staff have been overlooked or forgotten in the matter," he said. "But it is not intentional, but no, there is no means of knowing, but no one that I know of is working."

The banquet of the committee of which Phelan is chairman will be given on May 8. This date was fixed some time ago and later when the Governor decided upon the details of a banquet, the date was set for May 7, so the San Francisco affair will come a day later than the State function.

Phelan Not Invited.

James D. Phelan will not be invited to the Governor's dinner. That has been definitely decided upon. Speaking of the matter of invitations, General Stone said:

"Governor Gillett will give a banquet on the night of May 7 to Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, Admiral Dewey, Rear Admiral Evans and the officers of the fleet. He will invite such State officials as will be coming to such a banquet, and he will also invite representatives of foreign countries who may be within calling distance. The Governors of the Pacific Coast States will also be invited, as will the Mayors of the bay cities. That will be as far as he will go in the matter of invitations, except, of course prominent churchmen, but others will attend by purchasing a ticket."

$20-a-plate Dinner.

"This is to be a $20-a-plate dinner, as it will be necessary to raise about $10,000 and there will be covers for about 450 persons. We intend that this shall be the most elaborate dinner ever given in California, and it will be a State function."

"Governor Gillett will be on hand to welcome the fleet to San Francisco. The State of California is greater than the city of San Francisco, and the Governor intends to act accordingly."

MET DEATH FIGHTING FIRE IN SHAFT

Widows and Orphans Crowd at Opening to Flaming Pit, Begging Men to Attempt Rescue.

HANNA, Wyo., March 28.—The lives of eighteen men were sacrificed this afternoon when an explosion of gas and dust in the No. 1 mine of the Union Pacific Coal Company completely wrecked the workings, shattered the timbers and outside buildings and wrecked dwellings and business houses in town. But for the fact that this was an idle day at the mines the loss of life would have been much greater.

The men who are buried deep in the bowels of the earth and who were hurried to death by the fire now raging in the workings if they were not killed outright by the explosion are:

ALEXANDER BRIGGS, mine superintendent; JOSEPH BLIXTON, foreman of Mine No. 1; JAMES KNOX, foreman of Mine No. 2; ALFRED DODDS, foreman of Mine No. 3; JOHN RIMMER; HARRY JONES; ROBERT HERRON; JOHN EVANS; F. E. BOYD; GUS REAMEY; BENJAMIN PERRY; THOMAS FLINT; ROBERT WARBURTON; CAPPA LAITI; EMILE SILFROIST; JOHN KAMIN; WILLIAM PASCHIOE; PETER MINSON.

The bodies of James Knox, Joseph Burton, Peter Munson and Robert Warburton have been recovered.

Fire Raged Since Sunday.

The started in the colliery last Sunday, where which time regular attempts have been made to extinguish it. Today it was deemed unsafe to send the miners down into the levels and they were laid off. Superintendent Briggs, with a team of picked men, the best and most experienced hands in the camp, went into the mine early this morning to fight the fire, but at 2 o'clock the flames had gotten beyond their control and at 3 o'clock communicated with the walled off gas and a terrific explosion followed. The victims are all below the tenth levels and all hope of getting them out alive has been abandoned, and it may be many weeks before their bodies are recovered.

It is more than likely that the flames have consumed the corpses of this. It was in this mine that 169 miners lost their lives on June 20, 1903, by a similar explosion. The men who lost their lives this evening were all married and leave large families. The widows and children are grief-stricken and the scenes about the wrecked mine shafts where the women and children are calling today to the relief workers to rescue their loved ones are heart-rending. Relief parties are being run into Hanna from nearby towns to assist in the work of rescue.

Second Explosion.

While a rescue party of fifty miners were taking out the bodies of Robert Warburton, James Knox, Joseph Burton and Peter Munson at 10:30 tonight a second explosion in the east shaft of Mine No. 1 completely buried the rescuers and it is feared all will be dead before the rescue party that arrived late tonight from neighboring towns can reach the entombed relief party.

Unless they can be reached soon all will be killed by the damp, even if they survived the explosion, which was more terrible than the first.

Civil War Veteran Commits Suicide

NAPA, March 28.—Louis Siebecker, a Civil War veteran aged 77 years, a native of Germany, committed suicide tonight in a local lodging house by drinking carbolic acid. He was an inmate of the Veterans' Home at Yountville for seven years and was discharged from there at his own request on Monday.

SUPERVISORS SHOULD HEED EAST OAKLAND'S PROTEST

Proposed Crematory Is Very Objectionable

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors tomorrow morning the protest of people in East Oakland against the establishment of a crematory for the incineration of the dead bodies of human beings at the corner of East Fourteenth street and Twenty-sixth avenue will be brought up for consideration.

The protest was filed a week ago, and to it were signed the names of about 150 persons, whose property will be injured by the proposed crematory, and who desired the Supervisors to pass an ordinance preventing the opening of crematories for the purposes mentioned save in close proximity to cemeteries for the burial of the dead.

East Oaklanders are not alone in their antagonism to the establishment of a crematory for dead bodies at East Fourteenth street and Twenty-sixth avenue. Many residents of other parts of Oakland realize that if such an uncanny institution is allowed to be operated at that point, in the heart of a thickly settled residential district, a similar crematory may be established at any time at their own doors.

There is no justification for the attempt to establish this crematory at East Fourteenth street and Twenty-sixth avenue, or in any other district of the city in which hundreds of homes have been established. It means not alone annoyance to residents and passers-by, but also practical confiscation of property to satisfy the greed of people reckless of the comfort and rights of others.

The true condition of the situation will be set forth before the Supervisors tomorrow and they should set their faces against the establishment of the proposed crematory.

ANDREW MCCARTHY IS BACK FROM THE EAST

Andrew G. McCarthy, treasurer of the firm of Sherman, Clay & Co., has returned from New York whither he went recently on important business for the firm. Mr. McCarthy's trip was very successful, and he is one of the rising young business men of San Francisco.

DUCHESS OF MANCHESTER

MADE BOMB TO MURDER POLICE

Victim of His Own Infernal Machine Declares He Sought to Slay in Order to Get Revenge.

NEW YORK, March 28.—"It was for the police. I was to throw the bomb at the police because a policeman assaulted me one day. I had to do this."

Lying in a hospital, horribly mangled from the premature explosion of the bomb he had intended for the police, Selig Cohen thus began the story of how he started the fatal riot of today.

"I bought the nitroglycerin for the bomb at a drug store at Clark street and Broadway, Brooklyn," he said. "I made the bomb myself from a piece of gaspipe." He refused to make any disclosures as to his accomplices, if he had any, but in a rambling way told the police that he had a wife and two children in Russia, and had been in America ten years. He said that he had been employed by a tailor. It was not until late tonight that the police secured definite information about the man. Then they located at 32 Beaver street, Brooklyn, Mrs. Jacob Alexander, who admitted that Cohen was her cousin.

Said He Was Atheist.

"Selig Cohen is his mother's maiden name," she said. "He always used that in preference to Cohen. He came here to live with me about three weeks ago, saying that the doctor had ordered him to stop work on account of his lungs. He got a lot of books from London printed in Yiddish. They were all about the freedom of thought, and pretty soon Selig declared that he was an atheist, and believed only in nature. His other cousin, Lippman Cohen, who lives at No. 21 Park street, Brooklyn, told me that Selig called himself a radical socialist. We all said that he was crazy."

Reputable Man's Act.

Cohen selected the climax of a meeting that had been advertised to discuss the wants of the unemployed to hurl his bomb. It has not been ascertained that he was in any way connected with the conference of the unemployed, under whose auspices the meeting was to have been held. A statement was issued by those who are interested in this movement tonight, repudiating the man's act. The meeting had been advertised two weeks ahead. A permit for the gathering was refused by the police department. Hundreds of people began pouring to the meeting out of the East side and other sections where the poor live. Advised ahead of time that some attempt might be made to hold the meeting, despite the refusal of the police, inspectors Schmittberger and Steinbruck, commanding 150 policemen, of whom about one-third were mounted, went to the spot to keep the crowd moving.

By the thousands the crowds flocked to and around Union-square Park, so that by 2 o'clock a situation of extreme delicacy presented itself. The police made the first move when they placed under arrest the drivers from three trucks from the tail ends of which orators had attempted to speak. The mob growled and swarmed off. Then orders came to clear the park of 8000 persons assembled.

The order came suddenly and no time was allowed any one, nor was any dis-

Oldest Member of Elks Celebrates

SAN DIEGO, March 28.—Charles C. Clusker, who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest member of the Elks order, was assisted by fellow members of the lodge here in celebrating last evening his 98th birthday. Although within two years a century mark Mr. Clusker continues to enjoy good health. He came to California from Kentucky in 1849 and attributes his remarkable preservation largely to the fact that he has lived a vigorous outdoor life in the mild climate of this State.

President Faunce Meets Accident

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Dr. Wm. H. P. Faunce, president of the Brown University, was the victim of an automobile accident near San Jose this evening and narrowly escaped serious injury.

He was hurrying back to San Francisco, where he was to be the guest of honor at a banquet given in his honor at the Fairmont hotel by the California Upsilon Chapter, when the machine became unmanageable and dashed into a telegraph pole, which was broken in two by the impact and the occupants of the machine thrown from their seats but escaped unhurt.

Lodging House Gutted by Fire

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—A two-story lodging house at 136 East street, was gutted by fire about 9 o'clock tonight and was preserved from total destruction, together with adjoining structures, only by the prompt and efficient work of the firemen, who beat back the flames when they roared out over the roofs of the structure.

One fireman, Jas. Rogers of Engine 17, was burned about the face and cut by flying glass. As soon as the fire was discovered a band of thieves rushed into the building and began pillooting the rooms. Even when the firemen arrived they continued their looting, but policemen drove them away.

OLD RESIDENT IS RUN OVER BY AUTO

SANTA CRUZ, March 28.—W. H. Lockhart, an old resident and over 80 years of age, was run down by an automobile last night in charge of H. S. Deming, a chauffeur, and as a result died early this morning.

Lockhart made as to persons. Jeering and hooting followed. Simultaneously the policemen on foot took hold of the crowds that blocked the sidewalks and attempted to force them into the cross streets.

By this time the throng had increased to at least 15,000 people. They were for the most part of foreign birth, and they were angry at being denied the right to hold their meeting. They moved sullenly and sluggishly, and the policemen began to use their clubs to hurry them. The mounted police, having cleared the park, took a hand. The mob, without a leader and deprived of their meeting place, hesitated, halted, sought about for what to do, and finally found an outlet for their pent-up feelings in song. Away off to the west burst place a group of about a hundred living into the strains of the "Marseillaise," and suddenly from 10,000 throats there came a ringing air of that revolutionary anthem.

Some one formed a line, and others quickly fell in, and round and round the four sides of the park the throng moved, singing as they swung along the ominous words of the old French rally song. Schmittberger saw the point and telephoned for reinforcements.

It was when the reinforcements reached the place that the explosion occurred. None of the six police injured in the panic which followed was seriously hurt. The identity of Cohen's companion, who was blown to pieces, is still a mystery. Many in the mob were severely beaten by the police and trampled by horses.

"UNCLE JO" COONS COL. HEPBURN

The Latter Decides to Postpone Contemplated Revolt Against Speaker's Iron Rule.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Col. William P. Hepburn, leader of the Roosevelt faction in the House, which was contemplating a revolt against Speaker Cannon, has called off his plans for a revolt and is consequently laying low for fear he may be checkmated, by Uncle Joe.

Evidence of the threatened revolt was manifested today when friends of Col. Hepburn began canvassing for votes to recall from the House Judiciary Committee the bill carrying amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law. This bill has been referred to the committee by Speaker Cannon and Col. Hepburn thought that it should have been sent to his committee, that of Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Col. Hepburn urged that the Judiciary committee was the graveyard of important measures, a number having rested there since the opening of the present session and the committee gives no indication that an early report on any of them is contemplated. He also intimated that, as the Sherman anti-trust amendment bill has been referred to a sub-committee with Representative Littlefield as chairman, his chances of being reported out were bad. The bill is said to be in the interest of labor and Mr. Littlefield is no friend of organized labor.

Roosevelt Interested.

As President Roosevelt is specially interested in the passage of the bill, Col. Hepburn thought he could rally the Roosevelt Republicans and get sufficient assistance from the Democrats to bring about a change in the reference.

Mr. Littlefield and Minority Leader John Sharp Williams had a lengthy conference today concerning the bill and the hearings to be had by the committee on the measure and the interests covered by its many features. It was denied that the question of the possible change in reference was discussed. It was noticeable that great interest attached to the conference on the part of members of the House and that, as its conclusion, friends of Col. Hepburn grew less active in their canvass of the Democratic vote.

All admit that Col. Hepburn, when aroused, is a good fighter, and the prediction is freely made that "Uncle Joe" will hear from him later on if the committee now having the bill in charge is not diligent in its consideration. Leaders on each side in the factional fight are keeping close watch on the tactics adopted by the other.

Deport Englishman On Insanity Charge

F. H. Hubbard, 17 years of age, brother of M. Hubbard, 185 Seventh street, was ordered deported to England yesterday on a charge of insanity.

Hubbard was committed by the Superior Court to the State hospital in Stockton last December, and, as he shows no sign of recovery, will be sent back to his native land under a clause in the immigration law to the effect that if, inside of two years' residence in the United States, a foreigner becomes a public charge, he shall be deported.

MME. GOULD TO FLEE TO PARIS

Family's Bitter Opposition to Marriage Makes Return to Europe and Early Wedding Probable.

NEW YORK, March 28.—It would surprise no one in society if Mme. Anna Gould, who has been in Paris since her departure for Paris with her children, and who is thoroughly angry over the stand which her family has taken against her proposed marriage with Prince Helle de Sagan, if she decides that nothing can be gained by remaining at the home of Miss Helen Gould, it means an early marriage in Europe. The prince is ready to follow her to the end of the earth, and both are quite determined on the matter.

Prince Helle, himself, strongly intimated that Mme. Gould would soon return to Paris. In an interview at his quarters at the Waldorf-Astoria, the prince said:

"New York is proving most distasteful to Mme. Gould. She is used to complete freedom in Paris, and it is not unlikely that she will return to it."

"But the newspapers are no longer watching her movements," said the reporter.

"It is not the newspapers," laughed the prince. "Chaperons by reporters is trying, but at the same time it is amusing. Mme. Gould's family is not treating her kindly."

"Did you see her today?" he was asked.

"Not today," he said, with a deep sigh.

"When will you see her again?" "I may have to go back to Paris to see her," he said with a dejected air.

The prince, it is said, has been informed that George Gould has voiced his protest so strongly to Mme. Gould that a continuation of the courtship here is unpleasant.

Prince Helle had somewhat recovered from his illness Friday night, and went about today. He dined at Sherry's last night and afterward called on friends. He does not go to theaters, because he has difficulty in comprehending jokes on the stage when they are spoken in English.

The prince has been "put up" at the Union and several other prominent clubs. He expects to spend little time at them, as he declared he is not a clubman.

He will spend his second Sunday in America looking up friends of a former visit to America. The people he knew then were considerably older than himself, and he finds that most of them have died or dropped out of sight.

When seen by a reporter tonight the prince asked if any further news had been received from Paris about the condition of Henry Farman, who was injured on Friday by being thrown from his aeroplane.

"I knew Farman well," said the prince. "It was his father who taught me English. I hope his accident will not be serious."

"When I return to France this summer I am going to have an aeroplane and learn to fly. It is the most thrilling sport I know of. The trouble with most people who attempt it is that they want to make a long flight with the first jump."

ASKS COURT FOR ITS RECOGNITION

Unable to Move Mayor Taylor, Independence League Appeals Its Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—The Independence League party yesterday petitioned the Supreme Court for the issuance of a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Taylor to appoint as members of the Board of Election Commissioners two members of that party. The mayor has previously been twice requested to do so, but has refused.

The petitioners found their claim on the words of the city charter where it is stated that "two of the five members of the Board of Election Commissioners first appointed shall be chosen from each of the two political parties casting in the city and county the highest vote for Governor at the last preceding general election. The fifth member shall be chosen from the political party casting the third highest vote at such election, if there be such third party, and if not, then at the discretion of the mayor."

The Independence League polled the second highest number of votes at the last election. From this fact the league appeals to the Superior Court to be granted its rights.

Mayor Taylor was served with the request that he make the two appointments on the ninth of this month, and again on the eleventh. The mayor refused to do so, and the petition was filed as a result.

"Kin' it git off tomorrow, sir? Me grand."

"Your grandmother died last week, Johnny."

ALLEGED SHARPER LANDS IN PRISON

Barton Pittam Faces Charge of Fraud on Mining Stock Deal.

Barton Pittam, charged by numerous persons with having defrauded them of large sums of money through skilled manipulations of alleged spurious mining stocks, was arrested yesterday afternoon at his home, 1221 Second avenue, East Oakland, by Detective Goff of the San Francisco police force, and landed in the city prison there. A former bail bond given by him was forfeited by Judge Welser, it having been shown to be fraudulent, and it was owing to this action that Pittam was finally landed behind the bars.

The main charge against Pittam is made by John M. Ober of Carson City, Nev., who alleges in the warrant he swore out that he was swindled out of $4127. Others who state they have been defrauded by Pittam's schemes are B. W. Winship of Napa; Henry Russ, son of the former proprietor of the Russ House; E. E. Perley, a trustee of the Mechanics Institute; George A. Waterbury Jr., and others. The total of these losses is said to amount to over $50,000 and may reach a far greater sum.

According to young Waterbury he lost about $25,000.

CRUISER PRAIRIE HAS GONE HARD AGROUND

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—The auxiliary cruiser Prairie while backing out of her dock at the League Island navy yard today preparatory to sailing for Cuba, went aground in the Delaware river. The cruiser is said to be hard aground and may not be floated at the next high tide tonight.

SOCIETY WOMEN TO TAKE PART IN ROMANTIC PLAY

MRS. MARTIN BRIGMAN.
—Pitchford Photo.

Town and Gown and Hillside Clubs to Give "Love or Art" and "Mystic Play."

Under the auspices of the Town and Gown and Hillside Clubs of Berkeley, two dramatic performances will be given in the Town and Gown hall on Dwight way, Monday evening. Berkeley's smart set will be well represented and the event promises to be one of the most interesting affairs of the season.

Society leaders of the college town are all agog over the affair.

"Love or Art," a one act sketch, written by Charles Keeler, scheduled to precede "A Mystic Play," an extravaganza which is also a product from the pen of that noted California poet.

The leading role in the last play will be essayed by Mrs. Martin Brigman, the well-known impressionistic photographer, who will be seen as "Sibyl," of Nephthys, with Sam Hunter as Knight Elourin and Miss Janice Meredith as the "Will of the Wind."

They are of the Maek and Deger club of the University of California.

Scene Laid in Enchanted Forest.

The scene is laid in an enchanted forest, where eight children impersonating fairies will dance and sing.

Mrs. A. O. Leuscher and Professor von Neumeier are to be seen in the leading roles of the first play, "Love or Art," an episode of human life.

Mrs. Ray Shinnos of Berkeley wrote the music for "A Mystic Play."

The performances are under the direction of Charles Sabin and M. J. Savoy.

Wallace Keeler, a scenic artist formerly of Chicago, and a prominent member of the Studio Club, has painted the scene.

END FIGHT OVER COLTON ESTATE

Heirs Compromise Famous Will Contest for Millions of Railroad Magnate's Widow.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—It is reported that a compromise has been reached which will halt further proceedings in the famous Colton will case. It is understood that as a result of the agreement now being arranged by the attorneys in the case, Helen Margaret Beatrice Sacher, the seven-year-old great granddaughter of Mrs. Ellen M. Colton, will receive one-fourth of the latter's fortune, or about $250,000.

Mrs. Colton was the widow of General D. D. Colton who, with Collie P. Huntington and other pioneers, built the Central Pacific railway. She died in February, 1905, at her home, 1617 Connecticut avenue, Washington, leaving an estate worth $1,000,000.

Mrs. Carolina Colton Dahlgren was left one-half of the estate. Helen Sacher was left one-half of the estate. The case involved many dramatic features, among them a suicide, a wrecked bank and the indictment of two high officials on embezzlement charges.

An effort was made to probate the will in California, and only recently was it brought here and filed for probate after a hard fight.

The terms of the settlement have not been determined. These form the subject of conferences now being held by attorneys and will be made public in a few days. Under the compromise, it is understood, Mrs. Dahlgren will receive one-half of the estate, Miss Sacher one-fourth and Miss Catherine Martin one-fourth.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—William J. Barnett, vice-president and director of the defendant California Safe Deposit and Trust Company, spent five hours at the Kohl building office of his attorneys, Gray & Cooper, where he had been summoned to make a deposition in regard to his final account as administrator of the estate of Ellen M. Colton.

Barnett testified to the correctness of the report which he had filed at Santa Cruz, showing that $195,000 in money remained on hand.

"Where is that money now?" was asked.

"In December, 1906, replied Barnett, 'the Superior Court of Santa Cruz made an order that the money be deposited in the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company. I obeyed the order of the court.'

It was further shown that the money was held by the bank at the time of the failure, but that it is secured and will be paid to the heirs.

FAINTS WHEN HER HUSBAND RETURNS

H. A. Kempf, Architect, Says He Has Been in San Francisco Hospital.

H. A. Kempf, the architect, who was reported missing since last Monday, returned to his home, 1201 Eleventh avenue, this city, shortly before 8 o'clock last night.

Kempf had been taken suddenly ill and was confined in a private sanitarium in San Francisco since Monday. He did not wish to worry his wife and left word with Max Gelet, his draftsman, to notify his family that he was in San Rafael.

Gelet, he says, failed to do this.

Mrs. Kempf was so overjoyed at seeing her husband that she fainted as he entered the door.

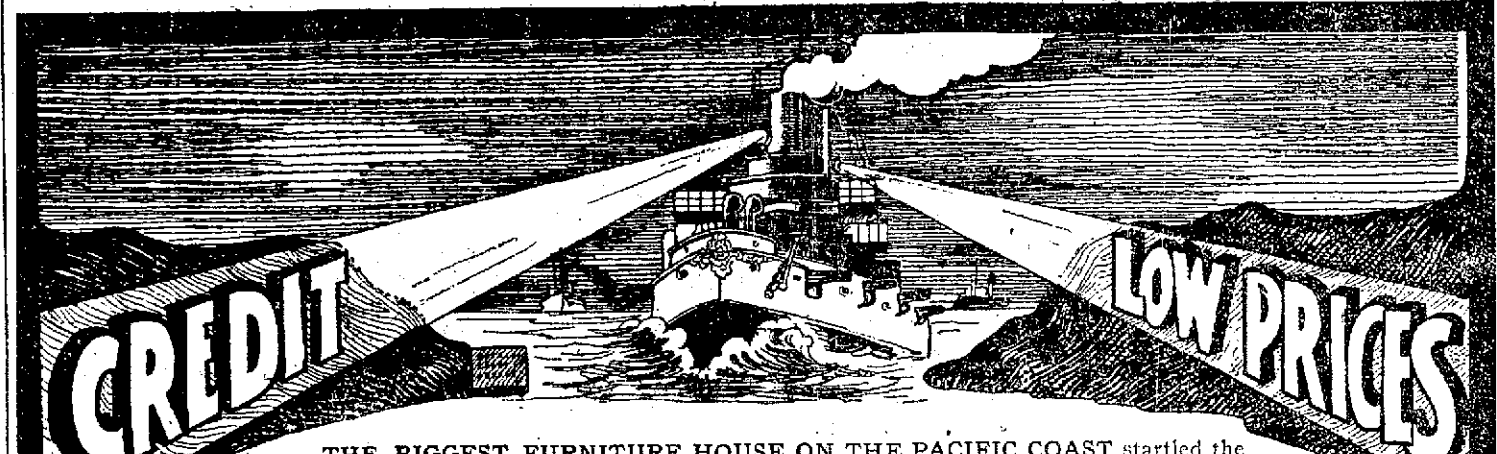

Kempf, himself weak from three days' illness, was taken to the hospital under the care of physicians, completely collapsed from the shock of seeing his wife so affected, and is now confined to his bed.

VINEYARDISTS WILL FORM ASSOCIATION

TRESNO, March 28.—Hundreds of vineyardists have signed a call for a monster mass meeting to be held next Saturday for the purpose of organizing an association to further the wine industry. It is expected that 1500 growers will attend. A committee has sent notice to all state wine districts urging them to hold similar meetings prior to the formation of a state association, when the prohibition movement will be fought.

SAFELOWERS STILL IN SONOMA VALLEY

SANTA ROSA, March 28.—Burglars at an early hour this morning entered the Northwestern Pacific depot at Glen Ellen, blew open the safe and secured $100 in cash. The burglary was discovered when the agent went to the depot this morning. Sheriff Smith and Detective Powers are working on the case. This makes the fourth depot burglarized in the Sonoma valley in the past few months.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY FOR IRISHMEN LOST

Miss Chance to Celebrate Two St. Patrick's Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—What an opportunity to do honor to the Emerald Isle and its patron saint was lost on the liner Asahi! It was the 17th of March for two days in succession on board the steamer when she was passing the 180th meridian of longitude on the way here from the Orient, and there was not an Irishman aboard. There were Americans and Englishmen and Germans, a Frenchman or two, a few Australians and some Japanese and Chinese, but no Irishman.

Captain Harry Gunkroger, Britisher by birth and German in name and tastes, did not overlook the day. He said yesterday that he started a few games on deck on St. Patrick's day and tried to arouse enthusiasm.

"I was sorry that the Hibernian Society was not with us. We would have made the week's ring," said the jolly captain.

COLLECT SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR KOREANS' DEFENSE

Countrymen Regard Assassins as Heroes of the Age.

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 28.—At a meeting of Koreans, last night, a movement was started to raise funds to assist in the defense of the two Koreans who assassinated President Stevens in San Francisco. D. Y. Chung and C. Y. Lee were appointed a committee to receive subscriptions.

Mr. Chung said that the two Koreans who shot Stevens are regarded as heroes and patriots by their countrymen.

"The greatest misery in the world is now being forced upon Korea by the Japanese," said Mr. Chung. "Stevens in giving false pictures of conditions in Korea, was simply continuing his work of aiding and abetting the Japanese, who are ruining our country. The patriots removed him as he started for Washington. We expect to see them acquitted at their trials."

PRESIDENT FAUNCE TO BE GIVEN BANQUET

On Monday evening, April 6, the Baptists of the bay cities will banquet at the Home Club, East Oakland, in honor of President Faunce of Brown University. An elaborate menu has been planned, to be followed by an address by President Faunce, who is everywhere honored as one of the leading educators of the country, as well as one of the foremost in the Baptist denomination. The toasts of the evening will be interspersed with solos by the popular contralto, Miss Ruth Waterman.

BURN OLD HOTEL FOR MOVING PICTURE SHOW

LONDON, March 28.—The quaint old Red Lion Hotel, the Hampton-on-Thames, well known to many traveled Americans by its proximity to Hampton Court Palace, has had a curious end. After standing for centuries it was condemned to destruction in order that it might be replaced by a modern building.

It was made the object of a faked conflagration in order to entertain the people of Hampton, give the local firemen some exercise, and incidentally to provide a realistic scene for moving pictures. After the timber work of the old house had been soaked with petroleum it was set alight and blazed merrily, while the firemen performed gallant deeds of rescue which were carefully prearranged.

STEINWAY AND OTHER PIANOS VICTOR TALKING MACHINES

A. B. CHASE PLAYER PIANOS

== Here is the only piano-player that operates the piano action direct —The A. B. Chase player-piano mechanism, actuates the hammers upon the strings in precisely the same manner as the keys do when struck by the fingers in playing by hand, thus preserving the delicacy of technique which distinguishes manual from mechanical playing.

—The musician has no feeling that he is operating a mere machine, but is, instead, amazed at the ease with which his musical sensibilities may be thrown into the composition before him.

—It is easy to understand how the keys of a piano may be struck mechanically, but to realize how the soul of music, the delicate shadings of touch, or tempo can be accomplished, one must see and hear and play the A. B. Chase Player-Piano.

—Sold for cash or terms or on fair exchange for other similar instruments or old pianos.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

—We do not employ house-to-house canvassers for tuning or repairing. Any person claiming to represent us in this class of work is a fraud. We have competent tuners and accept orders only through our office.

—Solicitors so dishonest as to claim employment by us are not safe to deal with.

WORCESTER, Eng., March 28.—A largely attended meeting of the Herefordshire and Worcestershire hop-growers was held in this city this afternoon and a resolution was passed protesting indignantly against what was described as the dumping of America's surplus hops in this country. Enormous quantities of hops are said to be due to arrive here in a few days. They are being offered from 13½ to 25 shilling a hundred weight, which is less than half the English price.

CHIEF'S CLERK TO DO PATROL DUTY

Lon Agnew Will Quit Upper Office to Gain Deserved Promotion.

Lon Agnew, who for the past ten years has held the position as clerk to the Chief of Police of the Oakland Police Department, is to be promoted to the position of patrolman on April 1. Agnew this morning filed his application with his superiors to be put on street duty and refused to head requests to remain in his present position. Agnew's action is taken after serious consideration and acquiescence of the fact that he has failed to obtain appointment to positions in the department to which he feels he is entitled and which have been filled by younger men on the force.

Agnew was appointed clerk to ex-Chief of Police Schaeffer on February 1, 1898, and served until August 1 of the same year. As the position of clerk was not then connected with the department, Agnew went out when Lloyd succeeded Schaeffer. Agnew was re-appointed clerk on April 1, 1898, by ex-Chief Fletcher, and has served in that capacity both to Hodgins and Chief Wilson ever since, with the exception of three months—February, March and April, 1906, when he

NEGRO EX-CONVICT TELLS OF MURDER

Plot Executed in Death of J. A. Collins Revealed For First Time.

EMPORIA, Kas., March 28.—In a signed statement given out here today Louis T. W. Archer, the negro ex-convict, reiterated his recent charge that two other negroes planned the murder of J. S. Collins, the wealthy Topeka real estate man, for whose killing John Collins, the university student, is now serving a life sentence in the Kansas penitentiary.

Archer recently was released from the same penitentiary where young Collins is serving his sentence. "I became educated while in that institution and has with much labor produced a book of his connection with this famous case. This he has supplemented today by his statement, which follows:

"At the time of the Collins trial in Topeka, in May, 1898, I was in the Kansas State prison. Therefore I was not able to give any definite facts in relation to the case.

"I was afraid to communicate with young Collins while I was in the penitentiary from the mere fact that he had forced the world to believe that he was guilty, and I was afraid that if I revealed anything to the warden that he would think that I had gone crazy about the case.

"My colored people told me when I went to the penitentiary that after they got John Collins in the penitentiary if I attempted to reveal the scheme the public would ignore me and put me in the insane asylum. So I kept mum. No one knows how old man Collins left this world except my colored people and myself."

By "my colored people" Archer means the two negroes that he asserted asked him to enter the plot to murder and rob the elder Collins.

Young Collins was convicted on the testimony of two negroes.

TRIP MAKES HIM PREFER OAKLAND

Louis Schaeffer Returns After Visiting Eastern and Southern Cities.

Louis Schaeffer, capitalist, former councilman and chief of police of this city, has returned from a three months' trip to the Eastern States.

Mr. Schaeffer before leaving here understood the possibilities of this city and knew of the brilliant prospect which it enjoys. He returns more confident than ever of that future, because he has seen in the East what have natural advantages that cannot equal those of this city.

In New York, Mr. Schaeffer saw his aged mother and four brothers, whom he had not met for many years. All of them were in good health. He was favorably impressed with everything he saw in New York, Washington, New Orleans and other cities. He stoutly asserts that Oakland is good enough for him.

THE SCALE.

A fifty-dollar hat is a conceit. A thirty-dollar hat is a confession. A two-dollar hat is a sin and a shame and a perfect justification for going home to mother.

President Roosevelt has been compared to Andrew Jackson. Well, the big suck is, in a way, suggestive of Old Hickory.

There are some fine cities out West—Montana has a Butte.

Three Cruisers Now at Monterey

The Admiral and other officers will have luncheon at the Del Monte Hotel and will be taken around the seventeen mile drive. The squadron will leave at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for San Francisco.

SAYS ODELL WILL STUFF THE BALLOTS

NEW YORK, March 28.—Congressman Herbert Parsons, chairman of the County Republican Committee, issued this statement today:

"I charge that Benjamin B. Odell Jr., ex-governor of the State of New York, is relying for his success in the coming primary election on the ability of his lieutenants to have repeaters employed by them to cast thousands of illegal votes."

Phelan the Sunflower of Breeding.

The graft prosecution, through Mayor Taylor, made James D. Phelan chairman of the Fleet Reception Committee. Because Phelan was at its head the committee encountered great difficulty in securing subscriptions to the reception fund. On all sides prominent and wealthy citizens expressed their willingness to subscribe liberally under other circumstances, but declined to do so with Phelan at the head of the committee. Very recently a group of gentlemen offered, through Assistant United States Treasurer William C. Ralston, to contribute $25,000 to the reception fund if Phelan would resign from the chairmanship of the committee. Phelan did not resign, but said the offer of $25,000 came from opponents of the graft prosecution. This is the sort of answer Phelan usually makes to any proposition not in harmony with his wishes and designs.

Phelan's enemies and critics are all crooks, according to Phelan, and Phelan can always prove what he says by the San Francisco Bulletin, which has Old Bill Jones distanced when it comes to proving up a case for an old pal in distress.

The matter of the fleet reception fund does not concern us greatly, but it seems to emphasize Phelan's characteristics and methods. Once easily the most popular public man in San Francisco, Phelan has become the most universally unpopular person in the city. Not even Abe Ruef is more cordially detested than the millionaire ex-mayor. All classes unite in holding him in loathing and contempt. Whether in the aristocratic clubs or the shops, where labor toils with grimy hands, he is the object of general dislike.

To a stranger this intense aversion to a man to whom the city has accorded its highest honors and best wishes is singular, but to those familiar with Phelan's career and personal characteristics the reason is plain. Phelan sprang from working people, and is without genuine sympathy with the toiling masses. He played the workmen of San Francisco for fools in the game of politics, and was detected and exposed. He proved himself a bogus reformer, twisting the char to factional and personal ends and making his practices work his professions. Arrogant, vain, conceited, censorious and untruthful, he is a false friend and a shabby demagogue. His wealth was amassed in the liquor traffic. Yet he affects to despise the occupation in which his father spent his life and grew rich. He has endeavored to use his race and his religion to serve his political ends, and has been true to neither. While denouncing the spoils system in politics, he quartered his parasites and political retainers on the public purse. Pretending to abhor bossism, he aspired to be a boss and employed all the power and patronage at his command to make himself a political dictator. He systematically worked church fairs, social clubs and commercial organizations. For many years he has subsidized a newspaper to malign those who opposed him politically or offended him personally. In all controversies he has opened the debate by telling his adversary, "I am holier than thou," and has met criticism by traducing the motives of those who offered it. Standing in the market place the embodiment of selfishness, insincerity, false pretense and hypocritical profession, he has continually pointed to himself as the moral perfection of the age. A whitened sepulchre in private and public life, he has sedulously defended his own reputation by destroying that of others. Professing to be a stern moralist, he is guilty of the vices and debasing practices at which he points the accusing finger as a proof of his own righteousness.

Such a man is James D. Phelan. He imposed upon many for a time, and still holds under a delusive spell a few, but the mass of San Franciscans have learned to know his real character, to understand the sordid nature beneath the polished exterior and the arrogant assumption of moral superiority. The man of mean mind, sordid aims and di-honorable expedients may deceive the public for a time, but sooner or later he will stand in his true light. His self-manufactured haloes are now seen to be the tinsel of a pretender, and the virtues he affects to be the airs and pretensions of a faker and a Pharisee.

That is why men despise him, why they regard him as a contemptible fraud. He has emphasized his hypocrisy by offering insult to the mass of men. He has endeavored to rise to political eminence and greater wealth by breaking the reputations, fortunes and hearts of others.

Phelan is a political and social wrecker. He is a sorry compound of Michael Feeny, Machiavelli, Beau Nash and Friar Tuck—a gentleman without honor and a patriot without principle. For his wealth (which he did not earn) he is envied, but for all else that distinguishes him he is covered with a vast contempt that permeates all ranks of society. Yet he essays the role of First Gentleman of San Francisco! It is a beautiful sight that ought to be worth $25,000 to the Fleet Reception Committee. Philippe Egalite was not more truly representative of the ancient royalty of old France than James D. Phelan is of American manhood and American standards of honor.

The retirement of Congressman Littlefield to practice law in his Maine home takes another able thinker out of Congress.

Of course, but better yet, come out this way and save the expense.

Poor man! The spring hats have most of their brims in the back. How can one answer the question "is my hat on straight?"

The sort of white suit that Mark Twain wears is unusually becoming, for Mark Twain is a sort of rather "white fellow."

Terse Press Comment

A LESSON TO OTHERS

The sensational personal attacks made by Francis J. Heney in his speech before the Men's League of the First Congregational Church in Oakland Thursday evening should be a lesson to other similar clubs and organizations.

A church club should take more care in the selection of its speakers. It is neither the business of the church nor of any society so closely allied to it as these clubs are to go into the muck-taking business, and to seem to countenance wholesale vilification and abuse like that indulged in by Heney Thursday night is to put the church in a wrong light.

If there is any place where intemperate speech, personal attacks, uncharitable insinuations and shameful denunciations are out of order it would seem to be the church. Without wishing to appear to discountenance legitimate efforts to purify public life, it can be said that the man who selects a church for his muckraking and feels that he is called upon to "expose" somebody every time he is invited to give an address, shows extremely bad taste and should be discouraged.

TRIAL BY NEWSPAPER.

"Uphold the graft prosecution," cries one of the papers that is doing its best to have the newspaper forum supplant the courts. The best way to uphold the prosecution is to let the courts decide the cases as they come before those tribunals. While the press, as a power, is not to be undervalued its legitimate field in criminal matters is to bring criminals before the courts, not to usurp the functions of the judiciary—Stockton Independent.

OAKLAND ENGINEER FILES BIG SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Harry Wilson Seeks Reparation
For Wrongful Arrest.

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—Harry Wilson, a minor engineer of Oakland, today filed a suit for $50,000 damages against four directors of the San Jose Reduction Company, and James H. Cresley, their attorney. The directors named are H. F. Ashton, J. N. Mead, George S. Montgomery and D. C. Mitchell. Wilson charges that he was arrested in Oakland as a result of a conspiracy among the defendants, whom he charges with splitting him out of that city while an important trial was in progress. Wilson was discharged from custody here after a hearing wherein it

Court at Winnipeg Holds It Has No Jurisdiction.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 28.—The case of the Czar of Russia against S. J. Ludkoffsky, who was charged with embezzling $200,000 while occupying an official position in Turkestan, was dismissed by the court today. A writ of attachment was issued recently against Ludkoffsky's home, his large store and stock of goods, after which he and his wife fled to San Francisco, where they now are. The judgment was that the court had no jurisdiction to try the case. It was decided that there was no ground for his arrest.

PREDICTS PANIC IF ALDRICH BILL PASSES

Lawson Starts Wild Excitement on Stock Exchange With Yukon Gold.

BY THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.
NEW YORK, March 28.—Passage of the Aldrich bill by the Senate had a very depressing effect on the stock market today because it will ultimately create a frightful panic if it becomes a law.

The wild excitement over Lawson's Yukon Gold was another restraining influence, for it was a natural impression that Lawson had to take a great deal of amalgamated and smelted to manipulate the market up for the effect on Yukon.

Knowledge that the Union Pacific springs next week would make a very bad showing and that the Erie directors must decide within a week whether to let the company go into the hands of a receiver caused apprehension. The market is over bought and is top heavy with little traders who are staggering under the high loads at high prices. The big people have been selling freely the last week, and simply because they believe the market will do better later in the year, they are willing to take a wet-back now. Such a little thing as a reduction in the price of steel, the trust is liable to start a selling movement. Liquidation of the $30,000,000 French loans might do it.

Railroad Reports Bad

Railroad reports were uniformly bad. Reading showed a decrease for February of $218,736 in spite of its splendid business. The Atchafalaya shows a deduction in gross of $674,107 and in net of $182,053.

Union Pacific will make its new bonds only four per cent, but it already has borrowed and is paying interest on $35,000,000 and it needs at least that much more. The issue will be something like $75,000,000. The corporation is reaching out for cash. The last of the clearing house certificates issued by New York banks were retired today when the National Bank of North America turned in $250,000 in settlement of its issues.

Loan Made in the Street.

A loan of $800,000 for six months at four per cent on stock exchange collateral is reported from the First National Bank. This is a new low price for time money and indicates the banking situation.

In spite of heavy selling of amalgamated which seemed to come from Lawson brokers, the insiders are talking about a short interest of 300,000 shares. They say they are going to put it to par.

Another bit of business in the other side of the market is reported by international brokers, who say they are sending a remarkable lot of stocks to France, the stocks in many cases being transferred to many share holders in the names of farmers and small merchants throughout France.

The number of shares of stocks sold on the stock exchange today was 395,995.

The total par value of bonds sold today was $1,477,000.

And now Daniel J. Sully is going to become famous on the curb market with his Cerro Colorado Mining and Milling Company. This mine is located in Arizona and D. Sully is on the spot. It was Sully who predicted seventeen cent cotton four years ago and made his prediction come true. Today he notified his brokers that there has been struck on the property, running 130 ounces of silver and 47 per cent lead. He predicts shipments of at least $200,000 a month in another year.

AMERICANS MEET LADY ST. HELIER

Reid, Astor and Morgan Hobnob
With Royalty at Cultured Gathering.

LONDON, March 28.—American society in London is always welcomed at the house of Lady St. Helier, the widow of the brilliant divorcee judge, who made his reputation under the name of Justice Jeune.

She has just moved into a new house in Portland place, which is slightly nearer to the center of London than her old house in Harley street. It is a great roomy dwelling, within a few doors of the former residence of her son-in-law, Lord Maitland, who gave up the house on succeeding to his father's title and estates at Godalming and his Eaton square town house.

The great attraction of Lady St. Helier's salon to Americans has always been the culture and intellect one was always sure of meeting. The foundations of this brilliant circle were laid by her husband, the late judge, but the traditions have been lately carried on by Lady St. Helier. Here one may meet the leading members of all the professions and services and the most renowned artists and literateurs of the day.

Here also royalties are frequent visitors, while the gatherings are generally convened by a fair sprinkling of Americans, especially those interested in Lady St. Helier's great social work. A big reception is being arranged at Portland place as a house warming, at which Whitelaw Reid, W. W. Astor and J. Pierpont Morgan have promised to be present.

LONDON MAKES WAR ON THE HOUSE FLY

LONDON, March 28.—The war against rats, which was recently started in London with a powerful association behind it, is to be followed by a vigorous campaign against the house fly, which is regarded as just as dangerous in carrying infection as the ill-omened rodent.

The following strong views against the fly have been expressed by a leading London physician: "It is inconceivable to me how people have tolerated the fly pest so long. I firmly believe that flies will convey from place to place almost every infectious disease known, and their agency in causing epidemics of illness among children is well recognized."

The Melville Clark "Apollo" Piano

Is the piano uppermost in the public mind today.

It is the only instrument in the world which plays each individual key of the modern 71-3 octave piano—38 notes—thus enabling any one to perform the compositions of the great masters exactly as WRITTEN without any rearrangement of bass and treble, which is unavoidable in the common type of sixty-five (65) note player piano.

Please note particularly that with an Apollo Player Piano the whole keyboard is used—bass, middle register and treble—whereas, all other player pianos use only a few octaves in the center or middle register.

Another exclusive advantage of the Apollo Player Piano is the patented TRANSPOSING DEVICE, which permits the playing of a selection in your choice of half a dozen different "keys" to suit the voice of any singer or accompany instruments, such as violin, mandolin, flute, cornet, guitar, etc. This change of key may be accomplished instantly, during rendition if so desired—all other player pianos play in only one key.

The Apollo player pianos contain fourteen (14) points of superiority over all others. Prices moderate and payable on easy monthly installments. Old instruments taken in exchange at a fair valuation.

WAGNER DESCENDED FROM CHRISTIANS

German Genealogist Denies Assertion of Chronicle, That He Was Jew.

BERLIN, March 28.—Dr. Von Stradovitz, the expert in genealogy employed by the Kaiser, denies the claim of the Jewish Chronicle that Richard Wagner had Jewish blood in his veins. Stradovitz investigated the Wagner family tree, both on the father's and the mother's side. The composer's father was Carl Wagner, secretary of the Leipzig City Court, who died in 1813. The genealogist shows that fifteen of Carl Wagner's ancestors were Christians. Richard Wagner's mother was Johanna Paez, and investigation shows that for at least eight generations the Paez were also Christians.

REPORTS ACTIVITY IN REALTY CIRCLES

John C. Hill of the Holcomb Realty Company says that his firm is at present negotiating with Los Angeles parties who are seeking to invest upwards of $50,000 in Oakland property just as soon as they can find that they want. Other Los Angeles parties are anxious to trade their holdings in the southern country for Oakland property, believing that this city has more to look forward to.

"The way business has been going this month," said Mr. Hill, "is very satisfactory, and in our suburban tracts of Sunset Terrace, Decoto and Hayward city, we have sold just about 100 lots since March 1st. Our country department is exceedingly busy and while the population of Oakland is rapidly increasing there is just as much proportionate development in the outside country. Altogether we are more than satisfied and are firmly convinced that this summer will prove a very prosperous and profitable one in the real estate business."

FOR PIMPLES, TOO

New Discovery Cures Eczema and Eradicates Minor Skin Troubles Over Night.

A few months ago the dispensers of poslam, the new discovery for the cure of eczema, decided to allow the druggists of the country to handle it. Previous to that time it could only be obtained direct from the laboratories.

Since this change in the method of distribution, poslam has met with the most phenomenal success of anything introduced to the drug trade in the last thirty years. All leading druggists including the Owl Drug Co. in Oakland are now carrying the special 50-cent size recently adopted also the $2 jar.

This great success is not surprising when it is remembered that, in eczema cases, poslam stops the itching with first application, proceeds to heal immediately and cures chronic cases in a few weeks. In minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, acne, herpes, blotches, rash, etc. results show after an overnight application. Experimental samples of poslam are sent to anyone by mail free of charge, by the Emergency Laboratories, 82 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

Talks ON Teeth

By THE REX DENTAL CO., Incorporated

AN EMINENT DENTIST Praises Alveolar Method

Testimony in support of the Alveolar Method of supplying missing teeth without the use of plates or bridge work—as it is commonly done—continues to pour into all three offices of The Rex Dental Co.

There is no stronger or more convincing advertising than that which comes from grateful patients.

A letter such as that which we are going to read is worth a great deal to us, and to you if you are suffering from the effects of ignorant dentistry. Nothing but merit could induce such a distinguished man as DR. A. T. EMERY to write such a letter and then allow it to be published.

It is another triumph for the great discovery in dental science, as the Alveolar Method has frequently been styled. Read this letter.

Los Angeles, Cal. March 25th, 1908. The Rex Dental Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

Being a dentist myself and in practice over 40 years, naturally I was somewhat skeptical about your Alveolar Method, but when I called and had it explained to me I could see the feasibility of the new way of putting in teeth without the use of a plate or bridge.

I only had four teeth in my lower jaw and they were all in front. Not having any on either side I felt your work would not be a success, but you were so thorough in your diagnosis and explanation that you convinced me even as a dentist that you had something of value and I gave you my case and watched each step with a great deal of care.

The work when completed astonished me, and when placed in my mouth, knew it would be a success and it has proven so and with my experience I feel I know.

Thank you, gentlemen, for what you have done and use my name as reference where and when you please.

Yours truly, DR. A. T. EMERY,

1349 West Fifth St.

There are tens of thousands of just such cases as Dr. Emery's on this Coast.

Thousands of people haven't tasted their food for years because the partial plates interfere with the sense of taste.

How much more evidence do you want, if you are a plate victim? What else shall we offer to bring you up to the point of paying us a visit? You have nothing to fear. We won't hurt you. The work does not call for any cutting or boring into the gums.

Isn't it dious, it is no more expensive than an first-class dentist would charge you for first-class work. Provided he could match it which he cannot do for the system is ours.

Isn't it worth a half hour of your time to find out if you can have all your missing teeth put back in your mouth, without a plate? You won't ask you to you to agree to have any work done. Not an obligation of any sort. You shall decide for yourself.

Why don't you come in today, or the very first day you are near our office?

If you live too far to call do the next best thing and send for book, "Alveolar Dentistry," which is free to you for the asking. It's a great book, you will enjoy reading it. Send for it today.

'THROW HIM OUT!' MEANING PHELAN

Compared to an Old Man of the Sea on San Francisco's Shoulders.

(From the S F Leader, March 28)

SAN FRANCISCO'S reception to the American fleet threatens to be a fizzle. The merchants are refusing to contribute to the funds. The politicians are all up in the air over the date of arrival. The general public is disgusted. How else could it be with such a pigmy colossus as Shamus a Hocka bestriding the celebration?

It is another proof of our frontier condition that we should allow such a person as Phelan to represent our city on such an occasion. We haven't yet got beyond the mustang Barbary Coast period. We are inviting the great personages of the nation. At least let them be welcomed by a respectable man.

It is time for the people to protest against Phelan. The merchants are protesting against him effectively by boycotting the fund. But it is time for the decent element of the town to relegate him once more to innocuous desuetude. He is an evil influence in our city, and far more dangerous than all our bubonic fleas or infected rats.

We have enough to suffer from those who have been slandering us without being compelled to put up with the permanent defamation of character that comes from Phelan representing us. It is time to make him step aside. It would be a cruel insult to the decent ladies of the East to compel them to meet their husbands and brothers and sons under the patronage of Shamusheen Phelan.

What right for publicity is it that drives him to seek the first places at the tables? Does he not know that he is a failure as a man, a failure as a Mayor, a failure as a politician? What claims has he to public notice beyond his money? He told the workmen to go to work if they did not wish to get clubbed. Now, the merchants are giving him the boot.

What is everybody's business is nobody's business. That is the trouble with the Fleet Reception Committee. But certainly the people ought to have some regard for the good name of the city. We don't care who is made head of the body as long as he is one whom respectable people can meet without a mental reservation. It, however, Phelan is like the Old Man of the Sea and can't be shaken off, we suggest that the Prague Doctors save up a good store of disinfectants for the occasion. The visitors will need them.

HOW TO BOOST OAKLAND

Life of This Metropolis Depends Upon Proper Publicity.

If you are making your living in a city, never neglect an opportunity to say something good of that city. If you have a club and must use it, do it on the individual that you hear running down the city. Chicago, San Francisco and Detroit are great cities and have great natural advantages but they would not be the cities that they are if their people had not been loyal to them. The knockers from the outside have had little effect on the knockers at home that hurt a city.

This condition is one of the problems which the people of every progressive city must solve and eliminate municipal pro-motors make is that of entrusting too much to one committee. If a purely business committee is appointed its energies are bent in setting forth the business advantages of a city. If a 'new industries' committee is appointed it will devote its time in setting forth the manufacturing advantages of a city. Now, in many cities this is about all that is done in the way of appointing committees. They forget all about attracting home-seekers to their community, which is one of the greatest mistakes a city can make.

By all means a 'home-seekers' committee should be appointed which should supply information in regard to water, schools, tax rate, paved streets, realty, value, churches, fire protection and surroundings. As an illustration probably a manufacturer is drawn to your city by your attractive picture of a residential city. Within a few months he organizes a company and is prepared to expend $400,000 in establishing a manufacturing plant. This was the case of a lumber merchant who was attracted to Victoria, B. C. through its home-seekers committee. He bought a residence on one of the finest sites in the city and before he had settled he had invested $200,000 in lumber mills which gave employment to many men.

A committee on conventions is another thing which is overlooked by many cities. In fact the value of a convention to a city is not apparent to a great many municipal promoters. Some put forth the argument that funds spent in this way are merely wasted—that no one is benefited except a few hotel keepers, restaurant men and auction keepers. To this I must differ. Holding conventions in a city is one of the very best forms of advertising you could devise. Men who attend conventions are generally representative and observing men and if your city has merit they will not let in opportunity to praise your city go by.

In the State of Illinois there is a city of 70,000 inhabitants, namely Peoria, which contains on an average of 100 conventions annually. The convention committee in this city visits all the important conventions held throughout the United States. At these conventions they present the inducements offered by Peoria to secure their next convention. They distribute literature descriptive of the city and spare no labor or expense in an effort to secure these gatherings.

SPEAKERS ADDRESS

REPUBLICAN CLUB

The James G. Quinn Republican club held its regular meeting at Stacker hall, Thirty-second and Adeline streets, Friday evening. The meeting was largely attended. The North Adeline Street Improvement Club came in a body and speeches from Mr. Blon, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Underwood, Mr. Boyer and Mr. Landers, all from the North Adeline Improvement Club, were interesting to the club. Mr. McDonald spoke on the success of the club, which is to take an active interest in all coming elections. Councilman Eugene Stachler and Mr. Herby spoke on the water front which they said is the most important matter for the City of Oakland at this time and should be attended to at once.

The principal factors in upbuilding a city. By locating new factories in a city the business interests of the entire community are benefited. Property valuation is increased, bank clearings are increased, postal receipts are increased, etc.

Two big factories have been landed by the Greater Des Moines committee—the American Glue Company and the R. O. Stutsman Coffee and Peanut Roaster Company, employing respectively 350 and 400 men. This committee has also landed the best sugar storage plant of the Merchants Transfer Company which will have a capacity for 1,000 cars of sugar.

Any city which is desirous of upbuilding must go about it in the same manner that a merchant builds up his private business. A city must advertise and advertise all the time. Without advertising a city can no more be expected to grow up rapidly than can any private business.

The newspapers of a city afford a means of explaining the reputations of the city which are second to no other advertisement. If the paper is able, clean and prosperous outside readers reach the conclusion that they are representative of the city in which they are published. If the papers have an opposite appearance they reflect poor credit on the city.

By publishing special issues a newspaper does much good by drawing attention toward its city. Of course a newspaper cannot spend thousands of dollars in advertising patronage on the date of the special issue. Besides benefiting the city, if a newspaper is the city, the advertiser benefits his willingness to go to the expense of issuing a special number. It is but right that the business men of that city should do this.

CZAR POWERLESS TO CHECK CORRUPT OFFICIALS

American Accused of Being Involved in Sale of Useless Warships.

OFFICERS FATTEN ON 'FAKE' CONTRACTS

Kaiser to Make Honorary Colonel of Crown Princess Cecilia.

(By MALCOLM CLARK.)
BERLIN, March 28.—That the American naval architect, Lewis Nixon, received several million rubles from the Russian government for torpedo boats which were absolutely useless is the statement made in a secret report of the controller of the Russian empire, which has just been published in the Berlin Tageblatt.

The paper, which cannot by any means be classified as a sensational report, says in regard to the published report that it has every reason to believe it genuine and adds that in his inability to put an end to the thefts of a hopelessly corrupt bureaucracy is found the reason for the czar's lack of interest in anything which may be found.

The report indeed shows how utterly helpless is Czar Nicholas to deal with the problems of cleaning the Russian Augean Stable which more than anything else was the cause of the defeat of the empire during the Japanese war.

Gigantic Swindle.
The report shows many indictments of swindling in the various government departments and in each instance gives name and figures which have every appearance of being genuine.

On the naval budget there appears regularly enormous expenses for experiments with apparatus which has long ago been found useless by all other powers. The fact that the experiments are never made, the money simply goes into the pockets of officials, from Grand Dukes down to heads of departments. The naval depots are always full of worthless materials, while there is always less on hand of real necessary materials than official reports show.

The report mentions one incident which is of special interest to Americans: In 1904 the Russian government ordered from the American naval constructor, Lewis Nixon, ten torpedo-boats intended for the Russian Pacific coast. Before the contract was signed the American received a large part of the contract price, and long before the torpedo-boats had been finished he was paid three-fourths of the whole amount, about 2,600,000 marks.

Full Price Paid.
Afterwards the Naval Construction Bureau declared the torpedo-boats absolutely unfit for use, but in spite of the protests of the Imperial Controller and Major General Tylew, Chief of the Technical Bureau of the Navy, the boats were accepted and the full price paid to Nixon.

Even more interesting is an incident dealing with an order for French armor. On February 24, 1904, the Minister of War convinced the czar of the necessity of buying 100,000 armors for the Manchurian army from the French firm, Simonet, Gauthier & Co. But on February 23, the day before, Sacharow had signed the contract with the firm for 4,750,000 marks. Colonel Salubousky, who was sent to France by the personal command of the czar to supervise the work on the contract, immediately discovered that the whole affair was a swindle, and that the factory where the armor was to be made did not exist. Nevertheless, the members of the firm demanded that 1,500,000 marks be paid to them by the Russian government, before they would start the work.

Paid Big Sum for Nothing.

On April 13 Minister of War Sacharow knew from the reports of Colonel Salubousky that the firm had no idea of making any delivery. He also knew from the reports of the czar's agent at Paris, M. Raffalovich, that M. Simonet did not own any factory, and that his own capital was only between two and three hundred thousand francs, but nevertheless the Minister paid out the whole amount of the contract to the French firm and not one single armor was ever delivered to the government, but nothing was said about it.

Princess Made Colonel.

Before leaving for his vacation the Kaiser promised his daughter-in-law, Crown Princess Cecilia, the highest distinction he ever confers upon a woman.

During the summer the Crown Prince and his young wife are to visit the western provinces of the kingdom of Prussia, and the crown princess is then solemnly to be made an honorary colonel of the Eleventh Regiment of Hussars, which is stationed at Krefeld.

It was this regiment which was transferred to the above-named city after a delegation of young girls had complained to the Kaiser that they did not get opportunity enough to dance, because there

WOMAN CAUSES CLUB WITHDRAWALS

Prominent Members of Imperial and Colonial Society Leave Its Ranks.

LONDON, March 28.—Clubmen and club women are greatly agitated over the circumstances connected with the formation of the Imperial and Colonial Club. Mysterious notices have been appearing in the daily papers stating that one celebrity after another has withdrawn his membership. As a matter of fact, a very great many noble lords and ladies have withdrawn their names and there is every chance that the club will never be started—at least not in its present form.

The secretary of the club, a divorced woman, who was connected with the formation of the American Renaissance in Regent street, and who has had a very varied career, is the cause of all the trouble. From various sources, including the Colonies, a sum of about $40,000 has been raised for her hands for "organizing" the club, which has temporary premises near Piccadilly. As a very small part of the sum mentioned remains the noble lords and ladies asked for details of expenditures, which are not forthcoming.

The first cloud came when the Bishop of London withdrew his name. His resignation was followed by that of the Duke of Newcastle. Then Sir Robert Bland and Lord and Lady C. Bland withdrew gracefully, retired and were followed by the Marquis de Soveral, the Portuguese Minister, and many others. The fair secretary is a woman, although many have been pursued by creditors in all parts of London, and the bitter fight now raging is likely to be heard of in the law courts.

All Noise Has Musical Sound, Is New Theory

VIENNA, March 28.—Theodore Lessing, the noted author, has joined Mrs. Rice of New York in the published book entitled "Noise" ("Noise"), retitling Mrs. Rice's criticisms and recommendations and adding a number of new points.

Like Mrs. Rice, Lessing considers noise from the musical standpoint only that the music produced is horrible. The stamping of a horse's hoof on the cobblestones sounds like the clashing of the great dissonance of the notes D and F. When a young lady passes him, balancing herself on high heels, Dr. Lessing grows very nervous, for the noise produced by the high heels sounds to him like "high B."

If, however, he meets a coal heaver, tramping along in No. 12 boots with hobnails and double soles, the noise produced sounds to Dr. Lessing "like G in the bass."

In musical matters he calls the Kaiser a barbarian "because he invited a male choir of twelve hundred voices to sing before him."

"ESCAPE AGENCY" FOR CONVICTS IN CAYENNE

PARIS, March 28.—Interesting revelations are being published with regard to the "Escape Agency" which exists to help convicts to get away from Cayenne penal settlement in French Guiana. The agency charges $50 for a successful escape, and $100 paid in advance, if the attempt fails, an estimated average outlay for canoes, provisions and arms being just under $150.

CZAR AGAIN PARDONS SLAYERS OF HEBREWS

ST. PETERSBURG, March 28.—The czar has granted another pardon to participants in the massacre of Jews. Fifteen men convicted last autumn by court-martial and sentenced to imprisonment for killing, wounding or robbing Jews, have been released by decree signed personally by the czar. The pardon begging the release was presented by the Union of the Russian people.

This is the seventh time in the last year that Nicholas II has intervened to save persons guilty of anti-Jewish outrages from the punishment inflicted by his own courts.

was no military garrison in the city. A month later the regiment arrived.

A story which shows the terrible ignorance and labor ferocity of the Russian peasant comes from the city of Minsk. A patient who had escaped from an insane asylum sought refuge in a peasant's house, but because of his strange actions and incoherent speech the peasant took him to be a spy. After trying to make him confess he tied him naked to the tail of a horse and dragged him twenty-four miles to the next village, where he was buried alive.

In this instance Russian justice was swift, however, and the ignorant peasant, who still believes that he did a patriotic act, was sentenced to eight years in state's prison.

ITALIAN OFFICERS MAKE WHOLESAL ROBBERIES

SPANISH SUBJECTS DISLIKE THEIR QUEEN

Young 'Count' Avenges Wrong Done Mother by Second Husband.

By PAUL VILLIERS.
PARIS, March 28.—Scandalous frauds, which defy all description, have been committed by high military officers who have robbed the country of hundreds of thousands of lire.

The government, which is conducting an investigation, has made the discovery that in case of war Italy would barely be able to fire a shot, because magazines supposed to be filled with ammunition have been found either empty or filled with shells and powder which are absolutely worthless. Hundreds of thousands of uniforms have been sold, and it is the same way with shoes and all other kinds of equipment.

The names of the guilty parties are as yet kept secret, but King Victor Emmanuel has ordered the whole affair sifted to the bottom and the guilty officers punished, no matter how high their rank.

Coming so soon after the discoveries of frauds in the navy and the existence of what is known as "butter armor," an Italian man-of-war, the revelations have stirred up an enormous sensation.

Popularity on Wane.

While King Alfonso of Spain is said to be more in love with his wife than ever, Queen Victoria's popularity among the Spanish people is on the wane. They accuse her of being too frivolous, too unconventional and too fond of showy dresses. Socialistic papers have repeatedly pointed out that while thousands of men, women and children in Spain are out of work and starving, the queen often appears in public literally covered with diamonds, and this has created much ill-feeling.

At court the queen, who, by the way, expects another heir, has never been popular, because she absolutely refuses to be followed by one or more duennas wherever she goes, and the ladies of the aristocracy, who draw high salaries as duennas, a position which is also considered a high social honor have started a war of gossip.

They first tried to get the sympathy of the king, but soon found out that according to his view anything the queen did was above criticism, so they began to attack the queen. The petition begging the king to return and have his revenge by killing the countess. Terrified by his threats the lady appealed to the police. But the young count decided to take the law into his own hands, and generally speaking, people are sympathizing with the youthful homicide.

Boy Held for Murder.

For shooting Gabriele Pitteri, head waiter of a fashionable restaurant at

QUEEN VICTORIA, WHOSE POPULARITY AMONG PEOPLE OF SPAIN IS ON WANE

Milan, Count Vitale-Bertrand, a boy of sixteen, is awaiting his trial, which will undoubtedly end with his acquittal.

The incident is the scandal of the day in Milan, by reason of the high station of a woman who is implicated. The Countess Vitale-Bertrand, an extremely beautiful woman belonging to the Lombard aristocracy, was left a widow a few years ago. Her husband inserted in his will a clause to the effect that she should enjoy his fortune only so long as she remained unmarried. In the event of her taking a second husband, the property was to pass absolutely to their two children, one of whom, the son, is now sixteen years old, the daughter being eighteen.

But the countess was attracted by Guido Pitteri, then a head waiter, an extremely good looking man. At length she married him, but only went through the religious ceremony, and thus retained her hold on the property left by her first husband, as the religious marriage has no civil effect.

Persecuted by Lover.

Two children were the fruits of this union. But the marriage in recent times was disturbed by serious events. Pitteri became hopelessly enamored of the daughter of the countess and persecuted her continually with his protestations of love. A few days ago the countess surprised Pitteri while he was making amorous declarations to the girl, whereupon, summoning the servants, she had him driven from the house.

Pitteri was furious and swore that he would return and have his revenge by killing the countess. Terrified by his threats the lady appealed to the police. But the young count decided to take the law into his own hands, and generally speaking, people are sympathizing with the youthful homicide.

PUT FATAL ROPE ON HER OWN NECK

Russian Woman Revolutionist Lightly Trips Up Gallows to Death.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 28.—Sophia Perevsky, only 23 years old, has been put to death at Filin as a dangerous revolutionist. When she was taken from her cell in the early morning she walked gaily to the gallows and ran lightly up the steps leading to the noose.

She refused to have the usual sack thrown over her head and shoulders, tearing it from the executioner's hand and tossing it away. Pushing away her guard she cried: "Long live the revolution!" This is how a Russian woman dies. Then, sitting the noose around her neck, she swung herself off the platform.

This was the end of Sophia Perevsky's eight years as a revolutionary. She was first captured at Bielostok in 1905 in charge of a secret printing press, on which occasion she nearly blew up herself and her captors by putting her lighted cigarette to some explosives. She escaped from jail in broad daylight, making her way to England. After a second visit to England she was recaptured in November, 1907.

WIRELESS MESSAGES ARE PUBLIC PROPERTY

BERLIN, March 28.—Professor Slaby, the inventor of the system of wireless telegraphy in use by the German Navy in Austria, etc., has told an interviewer that there was no absolute remedy against thefts of wireless messages.

"As the criminal code cannot prevent thieving on earth, so only amount of law making will fail to stop robberies in the air," he said, "and I cannot conceive of any technical way to forestall the tapping of wireless messages."

ALL THE TIME IS THE TIME FOR LOVE-MAKING

PARIS, March 28.—Madame Gerard d'Houville, author of the book "The Time to Love," which failed to stipulate the exact time and period, said to a correspondent who put the question direct: "The time for love-making is all the time."

She continued: "To begin with, love has nothing to do with age. To some it comes early and is of short duration, others enjoy it late in life, while still others love as long as they live."

"Ninon de Lenclos was loved and admired as a woman of seventy-five. Gray-haired Julie de Lespinasse died of a broken heart and of disappointed love. Benjamin Constant was a mere youth when he became enamored of Madame Charriere, twice as old as himself. Goethe fell in love with Bettina when a very old man, and Rousseau was the admirer of Madame d'Houdetot when tottering near the grave. But no one thought of his passion ridiculous. Chateaubriand, when sixty, wooed the beautiful Hortense, who responded to his passion and kept his memory green long after he began to write his love letters to Madame Recamier."

"Some women are always loved, others reach middle age before they are loved. As to the season: Spring, summer, autumn and winter make no difference."

TYPEWRITERS USED BY MANY WOMEN OF ROYAL FAMILIES

FRANKFURT, March 28.—The Frankfurter Zeitung, one of the most carefully edited papers in the Fatherland, has the royalties who typewrite their own letters.

"She is a finished typist," says the paper, "Mr. Roosevelt insisted that she learn the machine from the bottom up."

Other "royalties" who use the typewriter, according to the Zeitung, are Queen Alexandra of England, and her daughters, the Duchess of Fife, Queen Maude of Norway and Princess Victoria. While their official letters are written by secretaries and by hand, their private correspondence is done by themselves on the machine.

The Zeitung adds that the Czarina, Princess Ludwig of Bavaria, and Queen Amelia of Portugal are also typists. Of late the Empress of Japan has taken to the machine, after she discovered a typewriter in her husband's library. The strange little machine interested Her Majesty, and she had it explained to her. She soon began to finger it herself, and now she does considerable correspondence for the emperor. However, these royal ladies together probably use the typewriter less than Carmen Sylva, the Queen of Roumania, who rattles off her novels, poems and essays on the machine. The click of her typewriter is heard in the palace from six to seven hours every day, and often at night.

GIVE DIRECTIONS ON PLAGUE FIGHT

Citizens' Health Committee of 70
Instructed How to Conduct Campaign.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Citizens' Health Committee of Seventy, the following directions were adopted as to what the committee could do to further the plague campaign: Inasmuch as each of the seven wards of Oakland has a representation of ten in the committee, it was decided that each ward be divided into ten subdivisions and that one member of the committee be assigned in charge of the sub-district, to make a house-to-house visit throughout his district and talk to the people about the plague situation and explain to them the necessity of carrying out the instructions of the board of health and Dr. J. D. Long, report to the health office any case of nuisance or make any complaint which he may have knowledge of in order that it may be corrected as quickly as possible; and report any employee of the health department whom he may see loafing or who he may learn is not performing his duty as becomes a gentleman and an employee of the health department. It is requested that he report, if possible, the place at which anything may occur and the name and number of the employee, as each employee of the health department is designated by a badge with a number.

It is further suggested that at stated intervals two or three of the men in each ward go in company to the different factories and workshops and other places where people aggregate in large numbers and address them, with reference to the plague and the measures to be taken to prevent it. Schools might be advantageously visited and addressed. It is also suggested that as many as possible of the members of the committee of seventy attend the meetings of the City Council where questions affecting the plague situation are likely to be discussed, in order that they may lend their influence and prestige in the furthering of any such measure.

Continue Cleaning Up.

In addition to inviting the attention of the people of the city to the necessity of cleaning up, they should insist upon their cleaning up, not only once but at all times. This is essential, and is important for the reason that the majority of the people, while they do not manifest any opposition to the sanitary inspectors, will do so only at the moment of receiving instructions, and after that they generally drop the work.

Each member of the committee must instruct the people in his voting precinct that a campaign is being conducted; that it is not a political arrangement of any kind, that there is no politics in it, and that it is a matter of public interest, in order that the doubters may be converted as quickly as possible to the necessity of working for their own good, as well as for the good of the community.

There will soon be a bond election called for the construction of a garbage incinerator or destructor, and for providing funds for the establishment of a free system for the collection and disposal of garbage. While this will mean a small increase in the tax rate, it will actually be a saving over what is now being spent for a poor system, so that when the election does take place the majority of the voters will vote as they should, for their own best interests and the interests of the community.

Any further information that is desired may be got from the members of the executive committee, which includes: M. J. Bligh, fifth, P. G. Elben, fourth, William Walsh, third, E. S. Bingham, seventh, C. W. Patey, sixth, and Dr. J. B. Wood, first.

BREUNER'S BEAUTIFUL BUNGALOW

(A Home in the Piedmont Hills)

A Gift of Appreciation to Commemorate

Our Golden Jubilee

Fifty Years in Business in the Golden State

Way back in 1858 John Breuner opened a furniture store in a little cabin at Sacramento; he sold only that which he could sincerely recommend to his personal friends; he gave every man a square deal whether his purchase amounted to 50c or $50.00; he guaranteed satisfaction on the money-back policy, and by these honest methods he laid the foundation of an establishment that has grown to be the largest retailer of furniture on the Pacific Coast.

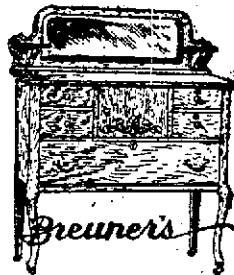

Do not think because we are giving away this beautiful bungalow that the price on our merchandise will be in any way changed. You will find the prices the same as always—the lowest for guaranteed quality—marked in plain figures so that you can compare the quality and price with those of our competitors. We do not fear comparison—we court it.

HENEY'S ATTACK ON PERKINS AND LUKENS A PAR- DEE MOVE

THE KNAVE

THE FLEET COMMITTEE GETS A LESSON ON MANNERS AND CLUB AMENITIES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Possibly the most significant move on the part of the so-called graft prosecution during the week just closed, is its arrangement with the Good Government League, otherwise Isidor Jacobs, to petition the Board of Supervisors to make an appropriation of $120,000 in the municipal budget for the next fiscal year for the conduct of the graft prosecutions by the city through its authorized law officer, the District Attorney. There has been financial friction among the purveyors of municipal purity for some time. A few days ago, when a bill was presented to James D. Phelan for expenses of private revenge and political promotion, the ex-Mayor is reported to have said: "I will stand this no longer. I have to pay all the bills and Spreckels gets all the glory."

For some days Isidor Jacobs has been taking luncheon with leaders of the graft vendetta. One day Heney and he were seen with their heads close together at a corner table in Blanco's. At another time Isidor took his noonday provender with District Attorney Langdon. Chester A. Rowell, of the Fresno Republican, was Jacobs' host on one occasion, and there was a rumor that Rudolph Spreckels furnished sustenance for Jacobs at one of the noon hours of the past week. The report quickly gained circulation that there was something doing for the Good Government League was being overfed.

The purpose of all this entertainment of the League, otherwise Isidor Jacobs, was that another great moral wave was to be rolled on the beach by the graft prosecution. On Friday the Good Government League announced that it would petition the Supervisors to make an appropriation in the municipal budget for the conduct of the prosecution of the grafters during the next fiscal year. It was intimated that two or three more luncheons to that grand reform organization, Isidor Jacobs, would have resulted in the Good Government League petitioning the City Fathers to refund to Spreckels and the other members of the syndicate for revenge and revenue all the moneys they had contributed to that personal cause. Undoubtedly there will be more luncheons later and the Good Government League will undertake to resolute some more money out of the pockets of the taxpayers to refund the philanthropic contributions of the spotless promoters of the war of spite that has done so much to injure San Francisco during the past eighteen months.

The possibilities are that the Supervisors will make an appropriation for the continuance of such portions of the private graft prosecution as should be a public affair. It is not likely, however, that they will permit of the developing of a new graft on the citizens by the creation of private detective bureaus and the maintaining of a band of third-rate lawyers for the purpose of keeping San Francisco in a continuous and damaging state of agitation and turmoil.

The so-called graft prosecution apparently is willing to back down and crawl out by passing the buck to the Supervisors. The signs of its decay and early dissolution have been numerous of late. "Gumshoe" has reduced his spy force, dismissing some of his best manufacturers of testimony by the keyhole and shadow system. Heney, if possible, has become more frenzied and incoherent in his frothings. District Attorney Langdon has developed an even greater degree of stupidity than was deemed to be possible with that complaisant official. The dissolution of the conspiracy against the best interests of San Francisco was apparent. It was falling asunder because of its innate putridity.

Among those who have joined with Isidor Jacobs in asking the Supervisors to hand over $120,000 of the peoples' money to the Spreckels private prosecution is George H. Boke, the Berkeley "professor of jurisprudence," who lifted himself out of obscurity by reversing the Appellate Court in an opinion he wrote for the Call. It is understood that Boke was paid for the article, but whether his honorarium came out of the graft prosecution fund or was one more charge to the loss account of the Spreckels organ is a matter of doubt.

The action of Boke in petitioning the Board of Supervisors to place $120,000 at Langdon's disposal conveys the impression that he hopes for another whack at the war chest of reform. The Call stood for his queer reasoning and his British House of Lords authorities, but even Heney did not have the nerve to quote his ridiculous law and his absurd conclusions. Boke's authorities were never cited to the Supreme Court.

But why is Boke meddling with the affairs of San Francisco? He is not a citizen of this town, and apparently has butted into the graft prosecution to advertise himself or get another stipend for supporting Spreckels and Heney with his profound ignorance of law.

Boke's article in the Call would have excited no attention whatever had he not signed himself "Professor of Jurisprudence, University of California." He employed his job at the State University to dignify his assault on the integrity of the Appellate Court. It is not surprising, therefore, to find him yelling with Isidor Jacobs for a big wad of public money for Langdon, Heney and Burns to spend. Boke knows which side of his bread is buttered even if he is ignorant of the law.

Rev. William Rader, who succeeded Dr. John Hemphill as pastor of Calvary Church, the largest and wealthiest congregation in the city, has lost his job on the Bulletin. It is reported that Fremont Older discharged him because he would not preach Bulletin editorials on the Supreme and Appellate Courts from the pulpit of Calvary Church.

When Dr. Rader first assumed charge of his new pastorate he championed the graft prosecution in a rather lively manner, and on one occasion aminadverted severely on the Appellate Court for its decision in the Schmitz case. This use of the pulpit did not meet with the approval of some of his leading parishioners, however, and he was speedily apprised of the fact. Since then he has confined himself to preaching the word of God and exhorting sinners to repentance.

Shortly thereafter he lost his job on the Bulletin staff, and the rumor has crept around in newspapers circles that he was "fired" for failing to come through for Spreckels, Heney and Burns in his sermons.

There is a movement in process of incubation by which it is proposed to bring civil suits against the boodle Supervisors to recover the moneys they confessed to having received from Ruef, Halsey and others for their votes in favor of franchises for quasi public institutions. There appears to be no question of law but the city is entitled to all money paid public officials for franchises or other privileges granted by it. The opinion has been expressed that the City Attorney is the proper official to bring such actions and that he has not proceeded to recover the considerable sums of boodle that legally belong to the taxpayers of San Francisco has been adversely commented upon. Several citizens have had the matter under consideration, and one of their number will probably be selected to act as plaintiff in the suits that are to be brought. Several hundred thousands of dollars, it is claimed by those who have investigated the question, may yet be turned into the city treasury and at least that measure of additional compensation given the taxpayers for the privileges that have been voted the corporations by the boodlers.

The civic purists in giving the boodling Supervisors immunity for the felonies they had committed, in consideration of elastic testimony they were to present to Grand Jury and court, probably included the bribe money, as an additional bonus for the perjury that was negotiated. But even these criminal relations will not act as a bar to some responsible citizen bringing action to enforce the rights of the taxpayers. The failure of City and County Attorney Long to bring these suits long ago has no effect upon the legal status, for his lack of action is probably due to his sympathy with the delinquent, if not corrupt prosecution, the City Attorney owing his nomination to those influences that are centered in this coterie of purists.

Why is Judge Lawlor dawdling over the motion to set aside the arraignment of Abe Ruef? Can it be that this eminent representative of equity, fairness and right, is afraid to face the music that his decision would evoke no matter which way it may be? As I understand the proceeding Ruef simply asks that he be placed back where he was before he was given a promise of immunity which contract was afterward voided because he would not give testimony in accordance with the demand of the prosecution, and which the defendant declared would be perjury direct. Ruef wishes to have all his legal rights restored that have been in any manner jeopardized by his acts under the advice and instruction of the prosecution, and which were committed under the influence of that immunity contract.

Why does not Judge Lawlor either restore Ruef's legal status or refuse to do so? Is it because if the eminent jurist decides that Ruef was deprived of those rights he will sustain the affidavits of Rabbis Nieto and Kaplan and practically determine that Heney, Burns & Co. committed perjury in their affidavits. On the other hand if Judge Lawlor refuse to grant the motion he will have practically declared as against the truthfulness of the Rabbis and consigned them to the perjury list.

Lawlor has had his troubles with the Jewish citizens and apparently he is in no great haste to resume them. During his first campaign for Superior Judge he was accused by Max Popper and others of being Jew-baiter, and had it not been for a series of fortuitous circumstances he would have been defeated. The particular charges of Jew-baiting were in connection with his course in the Olympic Club of which he was a member. Can it be that a vivid memory of these things and the fact that the Jewish electors of this city cast in excess of 10,000, cause the Judge to hesitate in respect to which side of the judicial scales he shall throw his decision in this matter.

The graft prosecution and the Spring Valley Water Company, acting in perfect unison, succeeded the other evening in making an indecent spectacle of the Bar Association. A resolution mildly censuring that part of the newspaper press that sought to flout the Supreme and Appellate Courts for having correctly construed the law of the State in relation to the Schmitz and Ruef extortion charges, was introduced. The resolution was opposed by Matt Sullivan, who has had a large and unprofitable practice in damage suits against the United Railroads, and is also attorney for Crothers and Older in the malodorous and collusive libel suit in which one Troy poses as the conservator of the reputation of W. S. Tevis. Sullivan, presumably, was retained in this connection by Rudolph Spreckels and James D. Phelan, the latter being the principal promoter of the Hetch Hetchy water scheme which is understood to be in the interest of Spring Valley.

The opposition to the resolution was mildly seconded by E. S. Heller, an attorney for Spring Valley, and was defeated. Heller held that the resolution indorsing the action of the higher courts would place the association in a ridiculous position. Francis J. Heney was present in the role of the boss bully of the job. There is much dissatisfaction among reputable lawyers at the attitude of the Bar Association and many resignations are contemplated, although the complainants are largely responsible for the outcome which was made possible by their absenting themselves from the meeting.

Among the non-attendants was W. B. Cope, president of the association. And hereby hangs an interesting chapter of the graft prosecution which has never been published in type.

Cope was one of the attorneys in the Parkside Railroad franchise matter. The Grand Jury voted an indictment against him at, or about the same time that it did against Umbesen, Brobeck and Green. At the time the Oliver inquisition found these bills Cope was chairman of a special committee of merchants and others that had been evolved to estimate the value of the properties Spring Valley was endeavoring to unload on San Francisco.

The filing of the indictment against Cope was withheld pending the announcement of the report by the special water committee. When this report was made it favored the higher valuation of Spring Valley and the withdrawal of parts of its holdings for speculative purposes. Apparently this report gave perfect satisfaction to certain interests. The Grand Jury held a special session, and, at the psychological moment, after some of its members had gone away, the indictment against Cope was reconsidered and rescinded.

The indictments against Green, Umbesen and Brobeck were not reconsidered but were returned into court. Of course no indictment was returned against Cope.

While the course of the Bar Association was a disappointment to some of the more reputable members it was not a surprise. Nothing that remarkable aggregation of disciples of Blackstone may do would startle much less feaze those who have been entertained by seeing it in normal action. But there are those who are surprised at the attitude taken by Matt Sullivan. Heretofore the law firm of Sullivan & Sullivan, of which former Superior Judge Jeremiah Sullivan is the senior member, has been consistent in its advocacy of the policy of maintaining the dignity of the courts. That Matt Sullivan, by reason of his being retained to defend the collusive Bulletin-Troy libel suit, should have reversed his attitude in this regard is the subject of much speculative comment among members of the bar regardless of their position on the present controversy. The old aphorism, "evil association corrupts good morals," is quoted by those who would be lenient and charitable in their criticisms of the Sullivans.

Many members of the Bar Association are preparing to send in their resignations at the end of the next quarter. Membership in that weak and wobbly institution that would repudiate the fundamental principals of the profession which it has falsely assumed to represent, is no longer regarded as desirable by men who have a modicum of self-respect.

The Finance Committee of the citizens' fleet reception body are having troubles of their own nowadays. A short time ago they went into executive session and agreed to tell the truth with the utmost frankness. All agreed that a great deal of money would be needed for the proper reception of the naval visitors and that but comparatively little was being collected.

Then A. A. Watkins spoke up and declared that the animosity of the people to the James D. Phelan was the cause of the financial stringency. Addressing Phelan, Watkins said:

"EITHER YOU RESIGN AS CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE, AND WE WILL GET THE MONEY, OR YOU REMAIN AS CHAIRMAN AND PUT UP THE MONEY THAT IS REQUIRED FOR THE RECEPTION."

Phelan fairly gasped at this broadside, and declared that his opposition to him was animated by Patrick Calhoun.

A member of the committee said that the reiteration of this statement by Phelan had become monotonous and that it was also ridiculous, the way in which some gentlemen dragged in the name of Calhoun to account for all sorts of things and all kinds of absurd conclusions. The fact was that Calhoun was the first representative of a large industrial enterprise to contribute $5,000 to the committee of which Phelan, who was working to destroy the United Railroads, was chairman. This at least showed how much bigger man Calhoun was than Phelan.

By this time Phelan was as pale as a ghost, but the tension was relieved by one of his toadies who moved "a vote of confidence in our chairman," which was carried and the committee adjourned.

The State officials are arranging to give a reception to the fleet on the part of California as a State. Governor Gillett and his associates in office had been practically ignored until within the past four days, Phelan apparently thinking that it was a reception of the fleet to him and not of San Francisco and California to the fleet. It is the present intention of the State officials, including Governor Gillett and his staff, to proceed to San Diego by special train and there give the officers of the fleet an official welcome to California. On the night of May 7th a big State banquet, at which there will be several hundred guests, will be given by the Governor and his staff. State headquarters will also be maintained in San Francisco at which members of the Governor's staff will always be in attendance in full uniform, and prepared to extend all possible courtesies to the naval visitors.

Apropos the coming of the fleet, Frank J. Symmes is getting roundly roasted by members of different social clubs for the manner in which he has attempted to order them about and instruct them in ethics of club hospitality. I hear he has received some responses calculated to chasten his self-conceit, if not to improve his manners.

Symmes sent letters to the various clubs instructing them what to do in the matter of entertaining the officers of the fleet and ordered them to send cards to the committee for distribution to the visiting naval officers; assuming that the clubs did not know enough to extend their hospitality in the usual way and through the regular channels. He also took occasion to say this was customary and proper.

The variety of comments passed on these missives cannot be enumerated, but they were both spicy and sulphureous. Symmes' idea of what constitutes good manners received a scolding in language far from polite. Incidentally Phelan got his share, for the Symmes assurance was taken to be a reflection of the Phelan style of doing things.

"The idea of Symmes telling us what we ought to do and taking it upon himself to put men up at the clubs!" exclaimed one prominent clubman. "It's the most cheeky proceeding I ever heard of. Why, it has always been the practice of the San Francisco clubs to send cards to visiting officers of the army and navy, and they certainly would not overlook the hospitable precedents of the past on an occasion like the visit of the fleet. Clubs do not extend their hospitality through outside committees or at the bidding of every popinjay strutting around with brief importance. Symmes made an ass of himself in ordering the clubs around like a parcel of waiters."

During an exhibition of frenzied blackguardism, Francis J. Heney, while haranguing a Berkeley audience recently, said: "I am after three rabbits. One of these is Abe Ruef and the other two, while not exactly rabbits, are lying Rabbits." This insult to the Israelites of California and of the whole world has not passed unchallenged. Individual Hebrews have already communicated with President Roosevelt on the subject and inquired of the President, if he sanctions and indorses the attitude of his protegee in attacking Jewish citizens through their religious representatives. The various large Jewish organizations will probably also take up the subject for investigation.

This is not the first attack of Heney and others of the graft prosecution upon Hebrews who constitute so large a part of the best citizenship of the country. Every effort has been made to discredit Jews when drawn in panels for trial jurors in the graft cases. Aided by a collusive and Jew-baiting Judge, Israelites have been challenged and excused on every possible pretext, from serving on these trial juries. "We do not want any Jews on the jury," has been the frequent declaration of those connected with the so-called graft prosecution.

The attention of District Attorney Langdon will be called to the Jew-baiting propensities of his chief assistant and he will be asked if he, too, entertains the same sentiments against the Hebrews of San Francisco as his silent indorsement of the repeated insults of those people and their religion by Heney would indicate.

Public Works Commissioner Casey's political plan for removing debris from the front of buildings is exciting comment among property owners. Casey sends one of his heelers to the offending property owner and the agent creates a rumpus which includes threats of the inflicting of penalties for further disobedience, and concludes with the announcement: "Well, you will have to go out and see Commissioner Casey." The citizen ambles out to the offices of the Board of Works and tells his story to Casey. The Commissioner regards the offender for a moment with critical gaze, and then with a majestic wave of the hand grants him immunity, announcing: "Seeing it's you, it is all right." Casey considers this as a great political stroke, believing that he has enlisted the property owner on his staff and made of him a friend for life. And the heaps of dirt and rubbish remain on the streets and sidewalks to obstruct traffic and to be whisked by ever changing breezes into the faces and eyes of pedestrians. But great is the Casey and Mayor Taylor is his political sponsor.

The Spring Valley water grab, in connection with which a clean-up of $15,000,000 or more for the promoters or financiers has been suggested, is again to the fore. This was one of the principal motives by which the so-called graft prosecution was incited to its great work of political philanthropy which involved the capture of the municipal government, the harassing and damaging of the United Railroads and the unloading of the Spring Valley plant on the taxpayers at a figure many millions in excess of its value.

The alleged graft prosecution took steps to have its first Board of Supervisors, which it seized from Ruef and Schmitz, and which was composed of Gallagher, Loneragan, Wilson & Co., take the preliminary steps to have the plant of the Spring Valley unloaded on the city at a charge in excess of $30,000,000 after certain properties, now vested in the corporation, should have been held out. These properties which were to be withheld included the Lake Merced tract which had been valued by experts at from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000, for speculative purposes. Although the pins were partially set for the putting in motion of this job by the Gallagher Board, some exposures made at the time indicated the rawness of it all, and the proceedings were temporarily suspended.

But here last week it bobbed up again with Dr. Taylor, Mayor of San Francisco, wearing the cap and bells for the water concern. Old "Fuzzy Wuzzy" took the first bound through the hoop by asking Supervisor Gianini if he would have any objection to Supervisor Rixford introducing a resolution providing for action preliminary to the city issuing $10,000,000 in bonds for the purchase of the lakes and reservoirs known as the "peninsula system" of the Water Company. As Dr. Gianini is chairman of the Public Utilities Committee to which such matters are referred, when the usual course is pursued, he replied that not only would he object to the introduction, out of order, of such a resolution by Rixford, but he would consider the proceeding to be a distinct insult to him as chairman of the Public Utilities Committee.

Notwithstanding the attitude of Gianini, dear old "Fuzzy" had Rixford introduce the $10,000,000 bond proposition at the last meeting of the Board of Supervisors, according to the Spring Valley program. It is safe to say that the Supervisors will give the resolution short shrift and early burial.

This new angle of the water controversy is in pursuance of recently announced policy of the Spring Valley to make San Francisco its partner in the business of supplying water for municipal and domestic purposes. In other words, the corporation proposes to make the city put up the money for all its future developments of supply and improvements to its plant. A part of the scheme of partnership is to make the city itself, in a measure, responsible for any lapses by the corporation in carrying out its contract to furnish an abundant supply of potable water for the citizens of San Francisco. It is said that the Water Company, as soon as it can complete its plans, will refuse to furnish beyond a certain quantity of water, on the ground that it has not the funds with which to do so, and that its available supply has been exhausted. The reservoirs of the company, from which the supply is furnished having been turned over to the city, the municipality will be held jointly responsible with the water concern when the water in these reservoirs is lowered beyond the line of safety which assures an abundant supply for domestic uses and for the extinguishment of fires. When this stage is reached the taxpayers are to be held up for the purchase of the remainder of the Spring Valley system at the price fixed by that corporation under threat of a water famine and the danger of the city being destroyed by fire for the reason of this shortage.

The Water Company would not dare assume this attitude toward the consumers of its product, if it were alone in the scheme, but with the city as its partner in the responsible situation it feels that it could be thus audacious with a measure of safety.

But the Supervisors are not likely to permit this high-handed scheme to be consummated without at least a challenge and the probabilities are that the job will not be easily accomplished and the proposed division of the spoils by the civic purifiers will be long deferred.

Last Thursday morning the San Francisco Examiner and the Chronicle got Francis J. Heney's "goat." The two papers published the story of the finding of the new indictments against Calhoun, Ford and Ruef. The poor old Call did not have the news, having been too busily occupied with internal graft to pay much attention to outside affairs on that day. Then, too, the management of that old dodo of local journalism had entered into an arrangement with that angelic promoter of public, if not of private morals, Francis J. Heney, by which it was to have been given the story exclusively the next day. But the two other morning papers got the news and published it, for which treason they were duly scored by Heney the same morning in court. About the only piece of exclusive news the poor old Call, which is suffering from internal complaints that are doing it even more damage than its outward financial ailments, was a report of some evidence taken before the Oliver Grand Jury, and which was juggled into its possession by Heney. A repetition of this job was proposed, hence the rage of the arch purifier of municipal morals when he found that his plans had gone awry.

Michael Casey, president of the Board of Public Works, has again distinguished himself. The front street merchants wished to clean up that street. It was dirty and otherwise in an extremely bad condition and there was no indication of the municipal administration furnishing any relief, it being too busy doing politics. The merchants collected the money requisite and then applied to Casey for permission to put the thoroughfare in passable condition. But Casey has the disposition of a dog-in-the-manger. He would not cause the street to be cleaned by the city nor permit the merchants to do the work, except under certain conditions. Casey's brother-in-law must be appointed Superintendent and a lot of his political heelers laborers on the job, otherwise the improvement could not be made. As this was the best the merchants could get they paid Casey's brother-in-law and Casey's political getters their own money and the street was fixed up.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt League lost one of its leading members when Marshall Hale, the well-known merchant, resigned from its executive committee. Hale gave to the public a proposed tour of Europe as his reason for retiring from the hyphe-nated political organization. It is understood, however, that the underlying cause of the withdrawal of Hale from the combination of "exes" and "formers" who are out of political jobs, was that Hale had wearied at the attacks on Governor Gillett and other friends of his in the present State Administration.

It is understood in political circles over here that Heney's attack on Senator Perkins in his Oakland speech was intended to be the opening gun of George C. Pardee's campaign to succeed Perkins at the next election.

It is pointed out that the attack on Perkins was accompanied by an attack on State Senator Lukens, who is a candidate for re-election. Lukens is an ardent supporter of Perkins, and in announcing his candidacy for a third term stated that he was unreservedly in favor of sending Perkins back to the Senate.

Now Pardee has a candidate for Lukens' place in John W. Stetson, attorney for the State Lunacy Commission, in favor of the ex-Governor. Stetson has not declared himself outright as a candidate against Lukens, but a situation is evidently being framed up for him. He has refused to say whether he would be for or against Perkins.

By taking Pardee as his candidate Stetson could avoid the odium of trying to down a man from his own town and county.

It has been observed that the Enquirer, Pardee's personal organ, made a great display of Heney's speech. Pardee's adherents attended the meeting in force and led the cheering for Heney and Spreckels. Evidently there was a prearranged plan to make the occasion a political demonstration against Perkins that would pave the way for Pardee's advent into the arena as a Senatorial candidate.

Moreover, it has not escaped the attention of politicians that the Saturday effusions in the Enquirer signed "Wayfarer" have for months been a steady knock on Senator Perkins. Pardee is generally regarded as the author of the "Wayfarer" articles, and it is significant that Heney's attack on Perkins followed closely the lines mapped out by Pardee in his personal organ.

Chester Rowell, State President of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, is credited with having a hand in cooking up the scheme for Heney to launch at Perkins in his home town. He has been boosting Pardee lately in the Fresno Republican, and reprinting and echoing the diatribes in the Saturday Enquirer. Rowell has lately been in San Francisco connubiating with the graft prosecution and the kickers against Perkins. He has been very thick with A. J. Pillsbury, Pardee's secretary of the State Board of Examiners, who has joined the Spreckels literary clique.

Pillsbury is very sore over losing his job, and has been roasting Governor Gillett and Senator Perkins ever since. He knifed Gillett in the late campaign, and then wrote the Governor a whining letter begging to be allowed to retain his job. Recently he was fired from the Sacramento Union, and is now as hungry as a coyote. He has been ingratiating himself with Spreckels by writing fulsome eulogies of that individual to such country papers as would print the drivel.

Seen in this light the situation explains itself. Pretending to take civic righteousness for his theme Heney fired a blast for Pardee directly at Senator Perkins, and incidentally at Russ Lukens.

The attack on Lukens is peculiarly atrocious in view of the assistance he gave to Pardee's nomination and election. Lukens made Pardee's fight his own. For a time Pardee made his political headquarters in the Lukens mansion. Lukens spent his money like water and worked night and day to get Pardee nominated.

Although Pardee did not use him well he was the Governor's loyal supporter in the Senate, and worked hard for his re-nomination. Now for him to be slugged in Pardee's eyes, and with Pardee's connivance is little rough in the house of the most callous politicians. Iago's sword thrust in the dark was hardly a fouler blow.

THE KNAVE.

WILL CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN JUBILEE

Their Fifty Years of Business in the Golden State Will Be Celebrated by Giving Away Absolutely Free a Beautiful Bungalow in Oakland.

While many mercantile establishments are making but little effort to get business at the present time, believing that trade is at a standstill in Oakland, we wish to call your special attention to the announcement of the John Breuner Co. found on another page of today's paper. This enterprising firm has always believed that Oakland is to be one of the coast's greatest cities, and they are backing their belief with their capital. Before the fire of 1904 the John Breuner Co. made arrangements to build a store in this city, and but a few days after the great calamity erected a temporary building at Fifteenth and Harrison until their new store could be completed. One year ago last Monday, March 23, 1905, they opened one of the largest and finest furniture stores on the Pacific Coast—a big story and basement reinforced concrete building—on the corner of Thirteenth and Franklin streets, a store that would be a credit to either Chicago or Philadelphia.

The history of the John Breuner Co. demonstrates that honest merchandise and honest methods will always spell success. Away back in 1858 (before Abraham Lincoln became our President) John Breuner opened a store in a little cabin in Sacramento. He sold only that which he could personally recommend to his most intimate friends, he gave every man a square deal, whether his purchase amounted to 50c or $50, and he won the confidence and patronage of people for miles around.

To successfully supply their ever-increasing patronage, the John Breuner Co. were obliged to open stores in several cities of California and one in Nevada. Having such a large purchasing power they are able to buy in train-load lots, shrewdly their bills and control the coast output of many large factories. This power enables them to have the pick of merchandise, guarantee the quality and sell to their patrons at a big saving in price. Every employee of this firm is working full time on a full salary, the same as a year ago. Most of these men have families, which means the spending of hundreds of dollars every month among the merchants of this city. Look through THE TRIBUNE during the past three or four months and you will see that while many merchants have cut down on their advertising the John Breuner Co. has increased their space. Nearly every issue of THE TRIBUNE contains their advertisement, and you can rest assured that this firm lives up to its advertising. During the panicky days last November they offered a premium of 20c on the dollar for all clearing-house certificates, for they had faith in the banks of Oakland and its people and its prosperity. It is public-spirited deeds like this, coupled with their square dealing, that has given the John Breuner Co. such a strong foothold in the homes of Oakland and California.

To celebrate their 50 years of business in this Golden State the John Breuner Co. feel that they owe their people some appreciation for the large and increasing patronage which they now enjoy. To commemorate their Golden Jubilee they are going to give away, absolutely free, on New Year's Eve, to one of their free, not an employee or his immediate family, a beautiful 5-room bungalow, now being built in Randolph avenue, Fourth-avenue Terrace, Oakland. While this gift represents an expenditure of at least $3500, we feel assured that their increase in business during the next nine months will more than repay them for the expense—not alone in actual cash, but in increased sales and satisfied customers. May the city of Oakland have many more public-spirited, wide-awake business houses like the John Breuner Co. is the wish of this publication.

PRINCESS OF WALES AWAITING THE STORK
LONDON, March 28.—The reason that the Princess of Wales will not accompany the Prince on his brief visit to Canada is that another interesting event is expected in the Marlborough House family towards the end of the London season.
The Prince and Princess are already blessed with six children, five boys and a girl.

HEIRS OF HOHENLOHE HAVE NOT PAID TAX
STRASSBURG, March 28.—Deputy Blumenthal, of the Alsation Diet, has created a sensation by stating that an investigation of the records failed to show that the heirs of the Kaiser's uncle, Prince Chlodwig von Hohenlohe, the late Chancellor of the Empire, had paid the state inheritance tax. Neither had the Prince and Princess of Hohenlohe made a "declaration" required by law.

TRUSTEES BACK DOWN IN TAKING GARBAGE GROUND

Board Will Probably Lease Bone Yard

BERKELEY, March 28.—The trustees have made a lightning backdown on the garbage question. The repeal clause of the sanitary ordinance permitting them to dump refuse where they pleased, without reference to the 500-yard distance from residences, became law this morning, but they did not make good their threats of yesterday to send scavengers on to the George Schmidt property, at the foot of Harrison street under police protection. No scavengers put in an appearance anywhere in the neighborhood of Corbin station, and for that matter not a pound of it was gathered or any attempt made. The threat of injunction from the Superior Court may have had a deterring effect, but the meat of the affair was in the fear of the garbage men themselves to attempt to cross the dead line along the water front.

Scavengers Represented.
Joseph Birella, head of the scavengers, told Mayor Ferrer last night that he was afraid that some of his men would get shot if the anger of the Corbin station people was further aroused. "I have had no sleep for four nights," he says, "and the garbage of Berkeley may remain in the yards and garbage cans, for all we will do until we are assured that dumping may be carried on without the risk of life to the scavengers."

To Get Boneyard.
Following the ultimatum delivered by Birella, the trustees in caucus decided to make an attempt to lease the old boneyard property to the south of Fleming Point for the temporary dumping ground, pending the result of the coming remainder bond election. This means that the lease of the George Schmidt land will not be effected. At the last meeting of the board the Mayor and Clerk were authorized to enter into an arrangement for four years with Schmidt for the rental of the much-talked-of seven and a half acres of land, belonging to him and Mrs. Jesse V. Mendonhall, wife of the Town Clerk, at a rate of $200 a month, the lease to become ineffective in case of the purchase of the cemetery bonds and the success of the property for $20,000. The San Francisco Chemical Works owns the boneyard property.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE BURIED BY FATHER
LONDON, March 28.—The body of the Duke of Devonshire, who died at Cannes, March 24, was laid at rest this afternoon behind the body of his father in the little church at Bodens, near Chateaufort.

non Mayor Ferrer left for San Francisco to agree to the terms with the officials of the company.

There is nothing else for us to do but to pay for the boneyard, as matters stand," said the Mayor. "I think the rent is high, but we must have it. By this arrangement we will not lease the Schmidt property—that is, not for the present—but I may say that the fear of the people about Corbin station that the scavengers will attempt to make a dumping ground there may rest."

OAKLANDER WRITES BOOK OF POWERFUL INTEREST

Life, Addresses, Orations and Travels of Late Stephen G. Nye Is Keenly Interesting Work.

Emma M. Nye has compiled a book of addresses, letters and travels of the late well known jurist and scintillating member of the bar Stephen G. Nye, which should prove of great value to those who like to have a look at the inner life of a lovable husband, kind father and worker in the great cause of humanity.

The book has literary merit, aside from the large human interest side it shows.

The opening chapter is devoted to his themes for his numerous addresses, and many of them contain high literary form and a style peculiarly the judge's own.

Wit, humor and pathos are in evidence throughout the entire book, the spirit of Puritanical honesty of purpose, and a clinging to high ideals, like the clematis clings to its lattice work, is shown.

The opening chapter is devoted to a sketch of the life and labors of the distinguished jurist, and portrays the struggles of an honest mind, and animated soul working out its struggles and following the dictates of the inner conscience.

The part devoted to the orations and speeches contains many excellent and characteristic talks by Judge Nye, in power of oratory, the judge was rivalled by few men that ever practiced before the California bar. He focused a powerful mind on a multitude of subjects and handled them all in a masterful, keen and analytical manner. There are many beautiful sentiments in his speech of the death of our martyred President, James A. Garfield, who fell by the hand of a mad assassin and there are a number of touching appeals in his oration on "The Colored and the American Boy."

On the question of prohibition the judge showed a power of prophecy which rings true in the face of latter day reform, and he displayed a grasp on large problems which was unequalled even by men like Lovejoy and the early day prohibitionists.

The letters and travels are highly enjoyable and profitable reading. The judge showed a high power of concentrated observation and his description of the places he visited are interspersed with lively anecdotes and details of his many travels in foreign countries.

The letters and lectures on ancient Rome are highly enlightening and cannot fail to arouse sympathy with the author in intellectual minds.

The work is handsomely bound and illustrated and aside from the contents is a very handsome volume.

RICH MAN DIES ON LONG AUTO RIDE FOR HEALTH

W. S. Arnold Succumbs to Heart Disease

William S. Arnold, 5 years of age, a wealthy lumber dealer and owner of the Alta Planning Mill, Los Angeles, died suddenly of valvular heart disease yesterday afternoon, in the Dundee Apartment house, 308 San Pablo avenue at 4 o'clock, about half an hour after his arrival by automobile from Los Angeles on a search for health.

Arnold was accompanied on the trip by his private secretary, J. Anderson and chauffeur, Thomas Welch.

According to the latter, the party left Los Angeles Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock in Arnold's white steamer trip consuming nearly four days as they proceeded at a leisurely pace up the coast.

Arnold's object in taking the excursion was to benefit his health, as he has long been a sufferer from heart disease. During the trip he complained of a great deal because of pain in his left side.

On arriving in Oakland yesterday afternoon Anderson accompanied Arnold to room 11 on the third floor of the Dundas apartments, while Welch took the auto to a garage.

Seized With Convulsions.

Anderson says that in a few minutes Arnold was seized with convulsions and retired to the bathroom. When he failed to appear in a few minutes Anderson saw his suspicions were aroused and going to the bathroom he found Arnold lying doubled up on the floor dead. It was evident that Arnold had fallen during an attack of vomiting.

Anderson says that he carried Arnold into the hallway, and that a Mrs. Lynch, who was visiting in the room, telephoned for Dr. Adam Lyons.

Claims Heart Disease.

Arnold's body was removed to the morgue, where Dr. Lyons performed an autopsy and later declared that Arnold had died of valvular heart disease.

Mrs. Arnold lived at 1711 E. 14th street, Los Angeles and has been prominent in business circles in the southern city for many years being one of the wealthiest lumbermen on the Pacific Coast.

He is survived by a son, Ray H. Arnold, at present manager of the Alta Planning Mill and his widow.

Jay Arnold was notified of his father's death and immediately telegraphed that he would arrive in Oakland on the Owl this morning to take charge of the remains.

ROAD INTERESTED IN THE ELECTION

Says Metropolitan Street Railway Was Connected With Supreme Court Justice.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Sensational testimony with reference to the alleged interest of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company in the election of a justice of the Supreme Court was given by Louis E. Julius at today's session of the hearing on charges preferred against District Attorney Jerome.

Julius said that while he was in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, he was connected with the Supreme Court and told him that he had been offered the nomination for the Supreme Court, but that he could not accept it, and that he (Julius) could not name the man and he (Julius) could not name the man.

Julius said that he was with him when he telephoned and overheard the conversation. John F. McIntyre is a prominent lawyer, and at one time was an assistant district attorney.

John F. Davis is now a justice of the Supreme Court.

WRITES NOTE AS SHE WAITS DEATH

Woman, Gradually Choking, Leaves Directions For Care of Children.

SANTA ROSA, March 28.—Gradually choking to death and realizing that she was too far away for medical assistance to reach her before the end, Mrs. Jennie Hensley between her gasping breath, wrote directions to her husband as to how he should care for their little boy and girl and what disposition he should make of their property and then calmly awaited death.

In an hour and twenty minutes from the attack of coughing that she knew would result in death, she was a corpse.

Mrs. Hensley's tragic death occurred at the family home at Lower Gap, on the line between Sonoma and Mendocino counties the past week. She was formerly Miss Luce and her father was a well known Methodist minister. She was formerly a member of the faculty of Pacific Methodist College in Santa Rosa and also a school teacher in Mendocino and Sonoma counties.

The cause of death was a throat affection and it was known that it was liable to produce death at any time.

LOCAL FANCIERS TO GIVE FINE EXHIBIT

Best Dogs Ever Shown on the Coast Will Be Exhibited at Oakland Kennel Club.

(By T. P. MAGILLIGAN.)

The entries for the next show of the Oakland Kennel Club, which closed last Thursday night, were so unusually heavy that the management of the show feels very grateful to the fanciers of Oakland, Alameda county and San Francisco for the liberal way in which they have made entries.

The prize list is now out and the ones who possess the high-pedigreed and well-pointed dogs are bound to rejoice when the show is over, for never before in the history of dogdom on the coast has any show been planned on such an extensive scale.

Prizes that the club will give are of the very handiest, and will be worth keeping. Also there will be honor in winning any of the prizes for it will be a show wherein the finest dogs in America will compete and compact styles and qualities, which go to the making of the very highest type of the evolved dog.

Eugenics as a study may not apply to dogs, but those who are interested in that most instructive science will reap untold benefit by attending the dog show. On exhibition will be dogs of the highest type of scientific breeding as applied to dogs. Every good point will be shown, and the highest and most intelligent type of dogs ever shown on this coast will be on exhibition.

Also those folk who are society bent, will have a vent for stored-up energy.

Neither high nor low can help admiring beauty, and the highest beauty yet attained by the dog will be on exhibition. The exhibition will be such that not only will canine connoisseurs enjoy it, but it will be a treat for artists and laymen who have an eye to beauty of line and ensemble.

The Kennel Club takes pride in the coming show, and every member of the club is enthusiastic over the prospect.

LIST OF PRIZES BEST EVER GIVEN

Winners of Trophies in Coming Exhibit Will Get Prizes Worth Treasuring.

The exhibit, chief of which will be stereoscopic views of the winners of the late New York show. These pictures were made especially for the Oakland Kennel Club, and their presentation will mean that the greatest dog show on earth will be brought to our doors.

Ibora Park, the place selected for the great show, was secured with an eye to space for exercise, and because of the excellent facilities for exhibition.

All dogs entrusted to the management will be carefully groomed and tended by expert dog handlers. Below is a partial list of the prizes:

Sacramento Beat San Francisco

SACRAMENTO, March 28.—The Sacramento and San Francisco State League teams opened the season here today with a rugged game which the locals won by a score of 5 to 1. All sorts of form was shown from fast double plays to wholly inexcusable errors. The Bay team made it lone run in the first inning on clean cut two-baggers by Phil Knell and J. Bodie. The locals were lucky in the eighth when they made five on a base on balls and two fielders.

The locals were lucky in the eighth when they made five on a base on balls, two fielders' choices, three hits and an error. On the mound, Bodie had much the better of the argument with Allen, who apparently has not begun to season. Score by innings: San Fran 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 Hits 9, errors 4. Sacramento 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—5 Hits 6, errors 4. Batteries: Bodie and Conrad; Whalen and Byrnes.

San Jose Wins From Santa Cruz

SAN JOSE, March 28.—San Jose opened the State League season today with a dice to nothing victory over Devaux's team from Santa Cruz. A big crowd saw Elmer Strickland, the Brooklyn twirler, hold the Santa Cruz nine safe at all times. Schimpf of Portland opposed Strickland on the slab and was touched up for seven hits, one of them a three base drive in the eighth inning, which scored Smith. Barnes on the part of Shinn helped materially to swell the score.

Fresno Defeats Alameda Players

FRESNO, March 28.—In the opening game of the State League season here today the Fresno team defeated the Alameda team by the score of 2 to 0. The Fresno team scored its runs in the sixth inning. With two men on bases, George Croll, the left fielder of the Fresno team, knocked a two-bagger into left field, bringing the men home.

Preceding the game there was a large automobile parade. At the grounds D. S. Ewing, a prominent local attorney, delivered a speech and Mayor W. Parker Lyon pitched the first ball over the plate to A. R. Evans, the president of the Fresno club.

DURABLE DANE AND DISAPPEARING ABIE SHOULD PUT UP GRAND BOUT

Both Men Are Confident of Outcome.

Nelson Is Sure That He Will Come Across With the Wallop That Will Settle Battle.

By EDDIE SMITH

Tuesday evening Battling Nelson and Abe Attell will hook up for a fifteen-round contest that has attracted much more attention than was at first expected. The contest, although a handicap affair in which the Dane will have the better of about eight pounds in weight, is one in which the two extremes of pugilism will clash. Attell is rated, and rightly so, as being of the greatest boxers we have had in his weight division, and his remarkable cleverness has carried him over many a rough road. He is essentially a hit and get away boxer of the type that does not believe in taking a punch to land one. Abie's style of mauling calls for great head work and generalship, for he, like the great general of the day, always has a plan of battle well laid out before entering the ring, especially so if he has ever fought the man who is to be his opponent.

Attell a Repeater.

In most every instance where Attell has met a man twice he has defeated him the second time out, and as he has met the Battling Dane in a six-round no decision contest at Philadelphia he has a plan of battle arranged for the coming contest that he fully expects will gain for him the decision. The fact is, Abie has become imbued with the idea that he will put the rugged Nelson away. This confidence in his punching powers has come through the defeating of Freddie Weeks, Frankie Neil and Eddie Kelly by virtually scoring a knockout against all three. Another thing that has made Attell confident that he will be able to stow the Dane away, or at least beat him decisively, is the fact that Nolan had several others who had the opportunity of seeing Eddie Kelly act as sparring partner for the Dane have repeatedly said that Kelly was always able to hold his own with the Battler and that at one time when Nelson tried to put Kelly away for a supposed wrong that the little fellow had done he found it a hard task that he expected.

Argument for Attell.

Attell had a very easy time of it with Kelly and from the very start had him in such a condition that it was apparent that he would score a knockout. That Attell believed the story that Nelson had a hard time with Kelly is best known through the fact that the Hebrew went to Miller's and trained hard for the battle with the Dan. Nelson contest he hardly turned a hair in his training. The feather-weight has also had the chance to size Nelson up in the two or three times that the men boxed while Attell was in training for the Moran contest. Attell, in talking with the writer the other day, volunteered the information that in these sparring bouts he invariably gained a lesson to make a showing rather than take advantage of a man who was good enough to help him in his training by showing him up. In justice to Nelson it must be said that he had every appearance of being all in and state. In fact, at one time I had the pleasure of the company of a man whose opinion of the condition of athletes I have great regard for, and he suggested that Nelson had seen his best days at that time. His work was slow and in his boxing with Bobby Lundie he appeared slow and tired and the punches of the amateur seemed to affect him noticeably. Yet when he entered the ring with James Edward he never fought better than the expert on condition was of the opinion that he could not stand.

Since that time it has been expected by the great majority of those who know him best that the Dane was done for and yet he has been fighting like a demon since then and even after the terrific battle at Goldfield with Joe Gans and his defeat at the hands of Jimmy Britt he has come back and made several good fights.

Nelson-Britt Split.

After the Britt contest at the Auditorium at which time Britt handed the Dane a lacing that was the worst he ever received, even Billy Nolan came to the conclusion that the Dane was all in. Billy and Nelson fell out shortly afterwards and it went around like wildfire that Nolan had taken this opportunity to make his getaway. Nelson, of course, heard this story and it made the breach between him and Nolan all the wider, and it will be with great satisfaction that he will inform the ex-manager that he cannot all in if he is successful in defeating the clever Hebrew.

The satisfaction that Nelson expects to gain from this fact is very evident by his remarks, for the other evening he remarked that he was far from a done one. To watch him work in his training is to almost become convinced that he will be successful with the result of the last Britt contest at Los Angeles still in the memory of the people and the spry manner in which he works it would seem he is not by a long ways a back number. Nelson fully expects that he will be successful in his coming contest with his aggressive tactics and vicious style of milling.

Abie Very Confident.

On the other hand Attell is just as sure that Nelson will be powerless against his wonderful defense. This difference in style has made the bettors shy on picking the winner and the betting has been at even since it opened. The opinion is often heard that the contest will end in a draw, but to suggest this to either of the contestants brings forth the quick answer that it will either be a win, a losing fight, and that a draw is almost impossible.

Nevertheless the opinion that it will end in a draw has gained such a footing that it will be mighty hard to shake this idea from the heads of the fans.

Sullivan-Ketchel Contest.

Tomorrow night Jimmy Coffroth will in all probability sign up Stanley Ketchel and Jack (Twin) Sullivan for a twenty-five round contest, which will be scheduled to come off the first week after the next arrives.

Every promoter in San Francisco has been after this match and it is considered quite a victory for Coffroth to grab it. Ketchel and his manager, Joe O'Connor, have had a talk with Mike (Twin), who is acting as manager for Brother Jack and the preliminary arrangements have been agreed on, so that when the men come together tomorrow night there should be little trouble in signing them up if something unforeseen does not arise between that time and the time set for the meeting.

O'Connor has made up his mind that he will not take any chances with the heavier of the twins doing any of his fancy tricks upon his protégé, such as using his elbows on his face and other rough, unfair tricks that has made light men come to risk their chins with him and will have an agreement with the Sullivan and Coffroth to the effect that the elbow punches and other tricks will forfeit the end of the purse coming to the one who commits them.

Ketchel Wants Match.

All along Ketchel has been anxious to tackle the twin and would have taken him on long ago had it not been for the manager being a trifle cautious regarding the methods employed by Sullivan in a hard battle.

The clause will have the desired effect on the Twin, for if there is anyone under the sun that loves the almighty dollar that man is Jack (Twin) Sullivan. That Jack is well aware of the fact that he will have no easy time with the sturdy Montana fighter is best illustrated by the fact that for the past month he has been in light training and has stuck close to the training camp all during this time. Jack will be asked to make a weight that will cause him to hustle, and for that reason he has also been anxious to keep close to the mark. Ketchel is so dead anxious to meet someone that he is willing to take on Tim Flynn, Jack (Twin) Sullivan or even Jimmy Burns. He wants fight, and if he cannot get Peppy or Ketchel, which at the present time would seem the case, he is willing to take anything he can get.

Amateur Contests Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night the Reliance Athletic Club will hold the first real amateur show that has been held on this side of the bay for many years, and as this is the first of a series of inter-club contests between the Olympic Club and Reliance the management are more than anxious to have it be a successful one.

The boxers and wrestlers who will represent the San Francisco organization have been well trained and in all probability will be at it to give the local men the time of their lives to win. Many other forms of entertainment besides the boxing and wrestling are to be on the card and the members will no doubt be treated to fine night's sport.

As each member has had the privilege of inviting two friends who will be admitted at the nominal charge of one dollar it is expected that many of the visitors will be present. The allowing of outsiders to witness these contests will not be continued, but is simply done in this case to show the people the directors expect to live the intervals from now on at close intervals.

College Men Lose to Star Phoenix

In a slow and rugged fielding game the Phoenix defeated the Blue and Gold team at St. Mary's by the score of 7 to 4. Krause and Jordan were the pitchers. The Phoenix secured two hits from Jordan, while Krause was touched for three, but they were well scattered. California scored their runs in the fourth on four hits, two of them home runs. St. Mary's scored in their half on four errors and a hit. In the sixth they scored again on a two-bagger to left, sacrifice and an error. Following is the result:

ATTELL SAYS NELSON IS TORTOISE; BATTLER CALLS ABIE A BUTTERFLY

Fighters Are Inventors of Names.

Application of 'Lobster' Was Once All Sufficient, but New Order Changes Things.

By W. W. NAUGHTON

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—It used to be that a pugilist when wishing to express thorough contempt for an opponent referred to him as a lobster. The slur is still in vogue among the rank and file of Fightdom, but it isn't employed to any extent by the heads of departments.

It is too general in its application for the champions who like to spring something that describes the other fellow's individual peculiarities—something in fact that fits him like a hand bath.

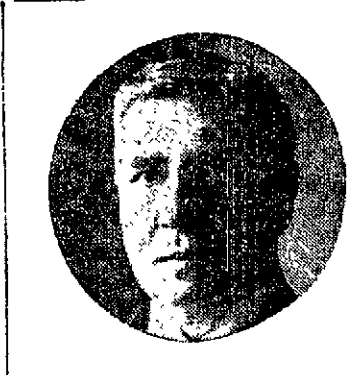

Battling Nelson says that, pugilistically, Abie Attell is a butterfly. Attell refers to the Dane as a tortoise.

You have no idea what a menace to society either of these things is until you look it up in the dictionary. There you will find the butterfly referred to as a rhapsodical lepidopterous insect. The tortoise is called a testudinate reptile.

The chances are that Bat and Abe would have hesitated about applying such terms to each other if they had known.

Attell Won't Run Away.

"I know Nelson thinks I am going to run from him, and I know that other people think so, too. But the idea is all wrong. I'll tell you why. I have fought Nelson and I've sparred with him. I know just how far he can go in any direction. That is why I made this match. Now, I want to get some credit out of it. If I run away, even if I should earn the decision, the crowd will sneer at me. Just what we expected, and I'll fight Nelson every inch of the way, just mark my words, and if I go down it will be with colors flying. The prize is worth striving for. If I lick Nelson in a give-and-take fight, and I fully expect to, I'll get the big boost. If he licks me fairly-minded sports will say, 'Well, Abe did his best against a man in a class above him, and, though defeated, he is not disgraced."

When Nelson heard of this little speech he remarked, "It sounds pretty, but it's almost too good to be true. As he says, the prospect of downing me in a hard fight is worth taking a chance for. As for my end of it I simply can't afford to be beaten. All my plans will be knocked endways if the little Jew boy does me up, so, whether he runs or mikes, I've got to get to him good and solid and show him that being champion of the feather-weights is glory enough for a fellow of his inches."

And with each fighter so cocksure of victory, the betting continues at even. This means that for each sport who thinks Nelson has the better of the bargain there is another who considers the outlook equally bright for Attell.

Attell Complimented.

Such a condition of affairs isn't often found in connection with what is known as a handicap match. If in the ordinary course of things a lightweight of championship caliber were matched against a feather-weight, the lightweight would be an overwhelming favorite. It isn't so in the present instance, even although the lightweight is only required to box a pound below the scale and has given ample proof that he can do the weight with ridiculous ease.

All things considered, the odds is a big compliment to Attell. It is an indication that the men who support their opinion with hard cash believe he is capable of giving away weight to one of the world's wonders in the lightweight division, something which is in distinct defiance of the old prize ring formula—a good little man cannot defeat a good big man.

Today Attell and Nelson will bring their training to a close. Attell will hold forth at Miller's where Pecky McFarland, who is preparing for his contest with Jimmy Britt at Coffroth's arena, will be an additional attraction.

The Dane will be monarch of all he surveys at the baseball park on Eleventh and Valencia streets. He will go through a varied assortment of exercises on the diamond and will conclude the afternoon with several rounds of sparring, his opponents being Eddie Madison and Jeff Perry. As there will surely be a big crowd on hand to watch Nelson it stands to reason that the sparring partners will have to "protect themselves at all times."

A few days from now the Nelson-Attell bout will be hampered with the fights that have been fought and then the sports who admire this form of entertainment will focus their attention on the match between Pecky McFarland and Jimmy Britt.

McFarland Vs. Britt.

At this stage of the proceedings there

Jimmy Britt Is at Evens With Packie.

Bettors Consider Jimmy Britt to Have an Equal Chance With the Chesterfield of Ring.

It is even money betting and plenty of it, something which, for one, must admit rather surprised me in view of the way Britt's chances have been belittled. When the match was first spoken of the Britt end of it was openly sneered at. The idea of bringing Jimmy back into the fold after his display with Gans was deprecated. The sports around town gagged at the notion and the anonymous writer was out in force.

There was a feeling against Britt and it blanded his critics to the fact that he had ever made a good, game fight. The quality of a Britt-McFarland match as a sporting event was something that was not considered. There was a suggestion in fact that Britt did not figure to stand a chance with the bundle of fireworks from the stockyards district of Chicago.

There are more reactions in Sportdom probably than in any other walk of life; something that must be apparent to anyone who stops to reflect upon the number of wrong-doers who have been forgiven in regard. The opposition to Britt is subsiding, and no what a fight with Jimmy in it is inevitable the record of his past exploits is asserting itself and Britt is an equal choice with the middle western wonder.

It is an exemplification of the old adage "Money talks," and it shows that any other kind of talk is as the foam of the sea.

Britt-Gans Episode.

It was necessary to discuss Britt occasionally in order to deal with the Britt-McFarland match fairly and intelligently, and I suppose the Gans episode will not down entirely. For the present I will content myself with saying that Gans has always inspired in Britt a respect that no other opponent inspired. It is frequently so in pugilism. Men who are utterly indifferent to consequences with the majority of the fighters may be called upon to meet single one man who they think it is proper to try and conquer. It is the much-talked of Indian sign.

Britt's strong point in his fights with men other than Gans has been a fine quality of courage. Take his meetings with Battling Nelson for instance. That knockout at Colm didn't prevent him from going into the ring with the Battler at the first available opportunity and administering almost a thorough trouncing as he received on that other occasion. But aside from the question of gameness, Britt has met hard opponents and has won hard fights by a combination of cleverness and endurance. Look at the record—Kid Lavigne, Frank Erne, Willie Fitzgerald, Charlie Eler, Ernie Canole, Young Corbett, Jabez White and Battling Nelson. There are no incompetents in that bunch and it explains why Britt is selling even with Pecky McFarland.

Of this score, Albert Sidney Munn, a graduate of the Oakland High School and a student in the Natural Science College, made 25 points, all in field events. Munn's work was the feature of the day. He broke four records in freshman field events. He got the hammer throw, the pole vault, the high jump and the shot put. BASEBALL FANS WILL SEE COAST LEAGUE MEN IN REAL GAME ONE WEEK FROM TODAY

Portland Will Open With Seals.

McCredie's Men Will Oppose Danny Long's Aggregation at Freeman's Park Next Sunday.

By T. P. MAGILLIGAN

Just one week from this morning at Freeman's Park, the baseball fans will have a chance to get a look at their favorites in action.

On next Sunday morning the San Francisco Seals and the Portland Beavers will open their season. The day before the same teams will open Jack Gleason's park, and there will be parades, speeches, and the other ceremonies that usually precede the opening of a baseball season in the first-class league.

This season bids fair to be a notable one in the annals of Pacific Coast ball. All the teams have strengthened up, and the fight for honors should be keen and well contested throughout the year. Last season it was Los Angeles all the way. Not once did any other club in the league overhaul the Southerners. At one time the San Francisco bunch was within four points of the leaders, but Los Angeles struck them off and long before the season came to a close it was a cinch that the team that would finish first was Los Angeles.

Should Be Close Race.

This season the order promises to be different. Danny Long has gathered an unusually strong team, and Walter McCredie up Portland way has been sleeping. Both men have picked up fine and willing looking youngsters. Van Haltren is well pleased with his youngsters, and from present indications it looks as though all the men of the Coast League are satisfied that they are strong enough to make a fine showing when it comes to making a race for the Coast League honors.

From training quarters Van Haltren is continually sending the cheering word. He declares that he has a couple of youngsters that will be an agreeable surprise to the local fans when they see them work. Of Altman, Van Haltren speaks in the highest terms. He says that the young fellow from the Northwest league looks to be the goods, and he thinks that he will fill a long felt want in the

T. P. MAGILLIGAN.

Oakland line-up. Altman has snap and ginger, and is a good infielder. The Dutchman can also slam the ball, and get around on the paths, which makes him a valuable young man.

Cooke is Nifty. Cooke is also a good man in any position. Cooke has been doing stunts at third in conjunction with Altman and he does very well according to the Oakland manager. The pitchers, Van says, are all in. Inigo, and Smith's aside will be strong when the team returns. In all it looks bright for the Oakland players the coming season. The same old outfield will work for Van Haltren again this season. Jimmy Smith will be in left field. The little fellow has picked up some extra weight, and Van Haltren thinks this will help him considerably in his playing. At that Smith played an unusually correct game of baseball last year. He hit well and no one, not even the most fastidious, could find any fault with his fielding. Smith should be better this season than he was last year, especially if he puts on a little meat. He was in it for a long time, but at that he hit the ball with greater accuracy, and almost as much frequency as any man on the team.

Van at Old Post.

Van is going to cover the center garden himself. The old boy is as good as ever, and that is saying a whole lot for when he is right Van Haltren is about as neat a ball player as you will find in the league. Heine Heilmuller is going to play at the old place in right field. For a time it looked as though Heine might "blow the works," but he will be on hand and it's a cinch he will jump in many a fine win with that big bat of his this year.

With some improvement in his work, the big fellow is a sure bet to make the big league next season. Connie Mack looked him over carefully last year and liked the line of work that the young fellow put up in the field. If Heine continues to improve and plays the article of baseball this season that he did towards the close of last year then he will be a big league

Oakland Team Should Do Nicely.

New Men in Van Haltren's Line-Up Ought to Improve the General Playing of the Home Team.

Very little fault can be found with that Oakland outfield. They are about as good a trio of fly chasers and hitters as the league can boast.

Haley Is Weak Spot.

Unless Haley shows improvement over last season upon the infield will not be as strong as it might. Van says Haley is on the improve. Haley should be a fair 4-4 of ball player. He is a young fellow, who, when he gets off right is a cracking good fielder, a fair hitter and very fast, but somehow or other he lacks gumption. George allows the other fellows to take the play away from him. He cannot touch a runner. No one can explain this deficiency in Haley unless it is that he is a heart and shy. Any time a base runner makes give him plenty of leeway instead of applying the block to him. Season before last Haley declared that Buck Franks interfered with his play. He accused that player of "crabbing," but no one could accuse Trueman Eagan of the same feat, yet Haley did no better work last season than he did the year before.

Good Pitching Staff.

The pitching department looks good, although a bit more experience would help that department out a good deal. Wright showed good form last year, and so did Hopkins. Had Hopkins been with the team earlier in the season they would have used against the Oaklanders would have done better in the race. Oakland went through most of the season without a left handed pitcher and this hurt the team's chances for high class work. Quick should help the team out considerably. Eddie had little encouragement from Danny Long, who is at his best a curmudgeon and far from a jollier, or a salve spreader. Van is easier, more jovial and a better fellow to work for than Long, and this should help Quick. It's up to Quick this season. McFarland, they say, is pretty good, and Carmes is of the improving kind. Killian, the new man, is also highly spoken of, so that Oakland should be fairly well off for pitchers.

DOCTOR BILLY MOSKIMAN OPENS SEASON BY PITCHING NO-HIT, NO-RUN, GAME

STOCKTON, March 28.—The State League baseball season opened here today at Oak Park with a game between Oakland and Stockton, the latter winning under wraps by a score of 7 to 0. Moskiman pitched a no-hit, no-run game. Oakland never had a chance. The game was preceded by procession through the principal streets, led by a brass band. There were twenty-five automobiles in line and the Stockton team, pennant winners of last season, was cheered along the line of march. Schwartz, the diminutive short stop for Oakland, played a fast game and

CLARK GRIFFITH HAS FINE BALL TEAM

NEW YORK, March 28.—Leading baseball men all over the country are making predictions just now as to the way the teams will finish in the American League and the National League pennant races. New York fans have received assurances from both Clark Griffith and John McGraw that there will be plenty of fine ball to be seen in Harlem this season. It is the consensus of opinion that the New York Americans have a better chance to win a championship than the New York Nationals, for the reason that the Chicago Cubs are expected to retain their present lineup. Griffith has been induced to play the part of a prophet and in an interview given out at Hor Springs he says in his opinion the Detroitis will finish first once more while the New Yorks will be close behind, followed by Cleveland, Chicago and New York teams will fight it out for the flag. GAMBLING FIENDS DRIVE HANS WAGNER OUT OF GAME

(By HANS WAGNER.)

I have seen phenoms come and go. They get a great hand, are exploded, then sign with some other team, and when they come back to Pittsburgh, the town goes daffy, hands them things and names streets after them. I have borne the heat and burden of the day and the best I get, if I make a blunder, is a hiss.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 28.—Hans Wagner gradually adjusted to a friend here the other day that he had been driven to retire from baseball this year by the reason to which he had been subjected by the gamblers at Pittsburgh games. He was further named and ridiculed and recalled instances to bear out his assertions that the betting fans here have reached the stage where they expect him to make at least a triple every time he comes to bat, and a double play, at least, every time he gets his hands on the ball.

"I have seen phenoms come and go," he said. "They get a great hand, are exploded, then sign with some other team, and when they come back to Pittsburgh the town goes daffy, hands them things and names streets after them. I have borne the heat and burden of the day and the best I get, if I make a blunder, is a hiss."

Wagner himself and some of his team mates have been afraid during the last two years that almost any day he would be roasted so hard he would forget himself and climb into the grand stand to punish some of the leading gamblers, thereby disgracing both himself and the game. For years at the local park a section of the stand has been appropriated by gamblers, who take wagers not only on the publicly announced odds, but make and accept bets on almost every play. The heaviest wagers usually are made on Wagner's work at bat.

Admit Superiority of American Pugs

LONDON, March 28.—English admirers of the manly art show considerable chagrin over the easy defeat of the Irish champion by Burns. It is usually admitted on all sides that Great Britain no longer produces men capable of meeting the best American boxers. Watson, the best English authority on the subject, thus accounts for the deterioration of the English fighters: "Some seem to think the decline in boxing here is a matter of the last few years, but this is not so. For the last twenty-five years we have been going from bad to worse. I attribute the superiority of the American boxer today to his methods of living outside the ring, his methods of training and his general discipline of life. The American is so bright, so quick, so brainy, he sees an opportunity and the moment it is in his mind he makes some use of it. Our men do not notice that when they are going to lead time, it is in close to their man. English boxers do not get in as close as they should."

"Their present style of fighting is not conducive to good fighting. The man is too much tucked up, and his limbs are not elastic enough. Look at Burns when he is in the ring. Every muscle is relaxed until it is wanted, and when it is needed it can be used with force. Most of all the harder by means of its sudden tension."

"As regards training, the only kind of any use to a man is that which suits his constitution; but that is not the modern operand of the English trainer. He has done, and now shall do it, Americans have not made a burden of their training. The American fighter, when his work is done, changes into comfortable clothes, and has a nice little party of friends in the evening, thus breaking the monotony. The Englishman wears his thick jersey and heavy boots from morning to night, and spends his time when he is not actually at exercise talking of his former fights and nothing else. I have seen men go quite stale in consequence. The American, if he gets run down, makes a change. He says, 'I'll have a cigar and a small bottle of champagne,' and he feels all the better for having it, going back to work with renewed zest."

Schreck Prepares For the Rainy Day

This winter talk of the sporting scribbles about the various professional baseball players who are wealthy has attracted quite considerable attention among the fanatics who are interested in anything and everything pertaining to the great host of others have been fortunate enough to be the sons of rich fathers. The other day a group of fans were in one of the local resorts of baseball players when the talk turned on these thrifty ball players, who have the money in bunches, when Billy Smith turned to Ossie Schreck and remarked: "Well, I suppose you have something laid by for a rainy day, eh, Ossie?" "Yes," replied the big catcher with a merry twinkle in his eye, "I have a meekintosh and an umbrella."

Berkeley Wins Big Field Meet

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—Berkeley beat the University of Southern California this afternoon at Harvard field, in their dual meet, by a score of 65 1/2 to 36. A large crowd of college voters and graduates from both colleges were on hand and gave support to the athletes. Results: Hammer throw—Won by Richardson, U. S. C.; Dalquist, Berkeley, second; Burek, U. S. C., third. Distance, 128 feet 2 inches. Mile run—Won by Scott, U. S. C.; Erickson, Berkeley, second; G. Richardson, U. S. C., third, Time, 4:54. 120 yard hurdles—Coxwell and Edwards, Berkeley, tied; Lenox, U. S. C., third, Time, 1:16. 100 yard dash—Won by Wilson, U. S. C.; Grundy, Berkeley, second; Thompson, U. S. C., third, Time, 10:2-5. 440 yard dash—Stanton and Fleh, Berkeley, tied; Stockley, U. S. C., third, Time, 1:14 2-5. Two mile run—Clavaugh and Jaines, Berkeley, tied; Garbuth, Berkeley, third, Time, 11 minutes. 220 yard hurdles—Burek, U. S. C., won; Edwards, Berkeley, second; Lenox, U. S. C., third, Time, 2:14 4-5. 220 yard dash—Won by Stanton, Berkeley; Paul, Berkeley, second; Thompson, U. S. C., third, Time, 2:32 2-5. 880 yard run—Won by Nordahl, U. S. C.; Doster, Berkeley, second; Healy, Berkeley, third, Time, 2:07 2-3. Mile relay—Won by Crossfield, Paul, Fick and Stanton, Berkeley; Reed, Shirley, Lenox and Burek, U. S. C., second. High jump—Won by Bull, Berkeley; Richardson, U. S. C., second; Babsard and Trotter, tied for third. Shot put—Won by Richardson, U. S. C.; Blake, Berkeley, second; Trotter, U. S. C., third. Pole vault—Won by Richardson, U. S. C.; Bull, Berkeley, second; Ostrander, Berkeley, third. Broad jump—Won by Richardson, U. S. C.; Richard, U. S. C., second; Stanton, Berkeley, third.

Fog Blankets Football Players

The recent Rugby football match between England and Wales was hardly seen by the 25,000 or so spectators at Brighton. A thick fog settled down after fifteen minutes of play and the best that could be done after that was to get a glimpse of the players when they were near the side lines.

Has It That Cobb Is Tight

Tyrus Raymond Cobb stands about as much chance to get that $5000 contract for three years as an armless and legless man would have to climb a cactus tree, says the Detroit Journal. President Navin has not even answered his letter which tore the news that he would not sign the contract offered and stating his terms. Ten to one Cobb is rushing to the postoffice every time a train rolls into the little Georgia burg and raising the same sort of a fuss with the postmaster for not giving him a letter from Navin that he used to raise with the negro waiters when the club was on the road last season. The club officials haven't had a worry about Cobb. They are determined to let him do all the worrying, and there is every indication that he is doing it good and plenty.

Cue Experts Will Play for Title

CHICAGO, March 28.—Thomas A. Huston of St. Louis, present pool champion, and Jerome Keough of Buffalo, N. Y., will meet for the title at Brooke's casino in this city March 30, starting on that date a three-night contest of 650 points. That there is unusual interest in continuous pool at the present time is shown by the fact that the big manufacturers have decided to give a purse of $500 for an open pool tournament in this city, immediately at the conclusion of the cue contest.

Has It That Cobb Is Tight

"The club has the edge on Cobb in this matter," said one close to baseball headquarters, "because Cobb is the tightest human being that ever lived. He would be the idol of old Russell Sage's heart. Oh, how he loves money! Never spends a cent. When the club was traveling he used to spend his mornings in his berth and miss breakfast so he could save the dollar that Schumm had given him for his breakfast in the buffet car. For dinner he would save at least 70 cents by buying a pie, a sandwich and a glass of milk at a railway station lunch counter. When Cobb sees the time arriving for the day to start he will make the dog's head wail."

ROSE QUEEN TURNS TABLES ON GAME LEE ROSE

SHOW MONEY GOES TO TRANCE, ADDED STARTER

Pajaroita Beats Speedy Gemmeil in Pacheco Handicap.

LEE DEMIER.

By LEE DEMIER.

Lee Rose, which last Saturday proved himself king of the two-year-old division, met defeat at the hands of Rose Queen in the Gebhard Handicap, the feature of yesterday afternoon's racing program at Williams Park. McIntyre got the winner away flying and tipped all the way, although at the end she had to be hard ridden to stall off the determined bid of Lee Rose.

The latter ran a cracking good race, but the crushing weight told on him. Trance, the added starter, easily beat the others. The value of the purse to the winner was $350.00.

After ten minutes' delay at the post the field in the opener broke to a very poor start. Bell Reed beat the gate by four lengths, but chucked it up early, and failed to get any part of the purse. Blonday, under a clever ride, held on long enough to beat out Nagazam. Ray Bennett finished on the Nib.

Meada at 12s came to life in the second, and showing surprising tendency to go a route, hung on gamely under a keen driven-out Nagazam. Ray Bennett, the favorite, all the way, winning by half a length. Mill Song saved the third.

Hilbert had a good start in the third race, which was a split of the second, and taking the lead on the turn for home left his field as if they were tired. Silver Line held Kruka safe for second place.

Another favorite was bowled over in the fifth, when Tonic breezed home an easy winner. Arcourt was an easy second from Eduardo. Miss Rille, the choice, ran a poor race.

The Pacheco Handicap, last on the card, resulted in another upset for the talent when Pajaroita scored an easy victory over Gemmeil. The latter could not concede the weight and the early pace killed his chances. St. Francis ran a game race to be third.

Buxton's Day.

While the Burlingame handicap at one and a quarter miles was the attraction for Thursday the feature of the day was the clever riding of "Happy" Buxton, who piloted three winners out of four mounts, finishing third on the other one at the July odds of 25 to 1. This was "Happy's" day and the way the little lad hustled his mounts was a revelation. His win of the handicap on Cloyne was a masterpiece of horsemanship and the stake slip on the favorite, Wing Ting, who was a strident runner. This boy's saddle work has been improving rapidly and it looks very much as if he would be the find of the winter meeting among the light-weight jockeys. If he keeps up this excellent form, however, he will be no surprise to see his contract grabbed by some of the big Eastern racing firms and the opportunity given him to show his ability among the cracks of the country.

Frankie Dwyer Puts Life Into Betting Ring.

Not only was the racing full of sparkling features at the Williams Park Saturday but the betting was heavier than on any day previous for months, which all goes to show how popular is the sport of kings with the liberal minded lovers of the game here on the coast.

I asked a prominent lawyer Saturday how he accounted for the sudden life infused into the money market, and his reply was, "Little Frankie Dwyer is here." Sure enough Mr. Dwyer made his presence known in the racing world just as he always does when he goes racing in this or any other country, and I can safely state that there is not a race track of any consequence in the world that this famous turf character and natural born high-roller has not visited.

Mr. Dwyer, who is strictly an information player did not lay up anything Saturday and he beat the Tonic race for $300. His losing wagers were Gemmeil, Ralph Young and Nagazam. The trio landed in the second and third races, and it was clear that the clever little plunger steers clear of the dead meat.

During the winter Mr. Dwyer had at one time three books in operation down at Arcadia and will in all probability finance a book here in the future. He believes me it will be a big story if he does as Frank is one man who never does things by halves. Consequently, Mr. Dwyer, welcome to our city.

A Disastrous Week For the Bookmakers.

The talent almost routed the bookmakers the past six days and as clean and high class racing as has ever been seen at the popular course was pulled off. When the mid-week cut-in came around Wednesday five of the bravest doings of the late, Burney Schreiber and Ben Falk being two of the big operators to take to the ground, the former only started early, while Ben Falk will leave for the East next Sunday and wished the remaining few days to prepare for that tedious trip. Mr. Falk quit the game on this side of the Rockies close to $15,000 to the bank and the latter, who in his own terms he stood to win a fortune and is out only his expenses, so feels that a turn in affairs will come with a break his way. As he is one of the big guns throughout the Canadian circuit, where the prospects are bright, his little account placed on the wrong side of the ledger while out here will be balanced off before many days of racing occur down that way.

To the remaining thirty bookmakers who had the temerity to face the firing line Wednesday, as thorough and clean a drubbing as the public could give them was handed out when five favorites and one heavily backed third choice passed under the wire and the favorite, Pajaroita, won to $70,000 was taken out of the ring on this day. The line of mourners that filed out of the betting ring after cashing off for the sixth race was pitiable to behold and the little leather sacks assembled a battalion of Rubicon-Okuste on the derrick at 1:19 1-5 galloping with 121 pounds on Johnny Lyons and

COIN, THE UNDEFEATED, MAY BECOME WONDER OF TURF

Keene's Great Colt Promises to Outdo Sysonby and Domino, His Illustrious Grandsire.

WITH the turf world awaiting the opening of the Eastern racing season at Bangor tomorrow, the question is prominent in discussions among followers of the racing game—will Coin keep up his wonderful record of last year and go down in history as a greater colt than Sysonby or his own grandsire, Domino?

Coin, last year, was the 2-year-old wonder of the thoroughbred world. Not only did he win his eleven starts and quit the year without a single defeat placed against him, but he never was even in trouble to outrun his field. The same colt Uncle, now owned by Sam Hildreth, tried to run him off at Saratoga, and for four furlongs was but a head behind him. But when the stretch was reached Coin drew away and won easily by a length.

This great colt, owned by James R. Keene, is by Commando, out of Pastorella. His eleven starts last year netted Keene $129,205.60. His list of wins included the futurity, the best known 2-year-old race in the world, which was of the somewhat disappointing value of $26,640. This is in strong contrast to the futurity of 1907, when his grandsire, Domino, won by a short head and added $48,885 to the Keene purse.

Just now Meelick and Chapultepec loom up as the best among the "winter" 2-year-olds, baying only Uncle, who is in temporary quarters on the coast. Both met Coin on several occasions last year, and in every instance they were crushingly defeated.

They have been kept at training and both have earned good sums in stakes and purses for their owners, while Coin has been kept quietly in his barn. But the coming months will show whether this policy on the part of Keene has not proved far more profitable than any early work for the juvenile champion of 1907. It is safe to say that Coin will not be started until the season is well advanced.

Coin made his first appearance of last year very unobtrusively, but his reputation had preceded him. He was made favorite in a field of twenty-three starters and many expressed surprise that Keene started a colt, known to be valuable, in such a "scramble." He was held at 8 to 6 in the betting, an unusually short price for such a field, and won easily. Among those who finished third and dusty after the five-furlong sprint behind the big colt was Bar None, who ran second and who afterward turned into a first-class performer, although he closed the year a maiden.

Coin's next start was June 1, in the National Stallion stake, when he set a new track record of forty-eight seconds for five furlongs and pulled down 100,000 in his first money. In the Eclipse stakes, June 6, his victory gave him $8,885. His three wins with dates of June 29, Great Trial, $19,650; July 27, Brighton Junior stake, $11,750; August 10, Saratoga Special, $10,500; August 14, Grand Union, $3,250; August 31, Futurity, $23,240; September 7, Flatbush stake, $15,500; September 30, Produce stake, $2,000.

October 26, October 7, Matron stake, $9840; October 16, Champagne stake, $5700.

In the Matron stake Meelick finished fourth (last), carrying 125 to Coin's 123 pounds. In the Great Trial Coin beat both Meelick and Chapultepec. Meelick was second, carrying 125 pounds to Coin's 128, while Chapultepec was eleventh, carrying 117 pounds. In the Brighton Junior stake Chapultepec was second, carrying 127 pounds to Coin's 125. In the Futurity Chapultepec was third with 117 to Coin's 125, and Meelick was fifth with 119. Chapultepec was fifth in the Grand Union, carrying 127 to Coin's 127. In the Flatbush stake both Meelick and Chapultepec carried 115 pounds, finishing fifth and seventh, respectively, while Coin won with 120.

It can thus be seen that the Keene colt showed the same high class under all conditions, while Chapultepec and Meelick alternated and showed different form, reversing their previous performances when Coin is considered. Few doubt that Coin will maintain his record of last year.

One interesting story is told of how "Doc" Street, the western horseman, missed a fortune a second time in a turf deal, where Keene was involved.

When Domino won the Futurity of 1893, Street had a colt named Galilee in the race. The youngster was an outsider, but his owner had the utmost confidence that he would win and put his entire fortune on the chance that he would beat the undefeated Domino.

Galilee ran one of the most magnificent races in the history of the stake, and as he flashed past the winning post so closely lapped on Domino that scarcely any but the judges could tell which had won Street threw his hat in the air. For the number hung out was Galilee's. But a conference arose in the judge's stand, on account of one having been confused by the colors, and in as dramatic a scene of uproar as could be pictured Galilee's number was taken down and that of Domino substituted. The plating judge, who had not seen the number of the horses on the outside, was deceived by the resemblance in the colors worn by the pair.

The verdict was popular, as Domino was the favorite. But in the wild cheers which followed Keene realized that a man's fortune had been swept away in a situation which had probably never occurred before. And he told Street that he could always call upon him and handle any of his horses, on a percentage, that he cared to race in the West.

Street took advantage of the offer and yearly makes trips to the Keene farm to take his share of the horses. Last spring, while looking over the outfit, Street noticed that one youngster, who had not then shown his racing form, had an enlarged hock. He turned to the groom and said, with an air of disgust: "You needn't try out that one with the bum hock."

The one with the "bum hock" was Coin.

Coin is a large colt, gentle as a kitten, but is inclined to be lazy. He has to be urged to work and is never restless at the barrier. It is this very docility of disposition which enables him to save his nerve force when many an opponent wastes his chances by fretting.

BLITCHERS' EXCHANGE OF ALAMEDA

BOUGHERS EXCHANGE OF ALAMILDA.

COUNTY---WHAT IT STANDS FOR

To Look Out for the Interests of Members, Says One of Them, and to Give the Public a Square Deal.

One of the leading commercial institutions of this city, which has been in existence for a number of years, and which has done a great amount of business, is the Butchers' Exchange of Alameda county. This organization has been the medium through which have passed products represented by our retail business, to say nothing about those who are engaged in other branches of the industry.

"I have said to you that we sold to every person who desired to patronize us. The same thing is true in the matter of purchasing by ourselves. We are not

This exchange was organized as far back as 1834. It has been in existence since then. The members say that they have always desired to so regulate their business as to give satisfaction to the public.

Speaking on the matter, yesterday afternoon, one of the members said:

"The 'Butchers' Exchange of Alameda county is one of the most successful organizations of the kind in the country. It is compelled to buy meat at wholesale, and any person who such a person as this is personally, as also in the quality of his meats and in the prices which he wishes to charge. We could not be independent of one another, as we are. If we were compelled to buy of only one individual or one corporation, This is a fact which the public has long appreciated.

"The Exchange is stronger now than it ever was before, and the growth which it is now experiencing is an illustration of the fact that it is appreciated by the public."

In support of this idea I want to advise your attention to the advertisements which have recently appeared. There you will find that some of the butchers of the Exchange are selling steaks 50 per cent below what I can afford to sell them for. Yet those same butchers are members of our organization. It is their own business if they desire to do so. In this way they prevent them. Neither can our organization. In our line, as in almost every other line it is the survival of the fittest.

No Danger of Disbandment.

"So far as I can see, there is no danger of the disbandment of this association. On the contrary, it is growing in membership every day.

"Necessarily, we are called to sell to all kinds of people. We make no exception. If we have the goods on hand we want to sell them to the people who want them, though, in time of war, there is a big demand from those who are abroad for the moment, only we do not want to charge a high price, expressed willingness to meet a committee from the council to discuss a remedy for the alleged grievances and delays which litigants in personal damage suits against corporations complain of."

TOWEL SUPPLIES.

When we applied for a license some time later, we were told to get, for our application, the people endorsing it. A majority of the people endorsing it, one thousand feet of our place of business. We did that. We got more in our case to $300 a year. We agreed to the terms, but without losing the license in the case at all. The license remained at $100. We went to fight this discrimination in the courts."

Best again because they were built by the cleverest tailors in the land—real artists who know how to mold the severe lines of utility into those of grace and beauty.
